New Soviet Plan To Hit EDC

• Bramblett Convicted Of Padding Payroll

Congressman Faces Prison Term And Fine

California Republican Collected Kickbacks, Capital Jury Decides

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Rep. Ernest K. Bramblett, 52, California Republican, was convicted today of falsifying his office payroll to collect kick-backs for himself.

Bramblett was found guilty by a Federal Court jury of seven counts in the indictment. Each count carries a penalty of as much as five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The congressman, serving his fourth term in the House, heard the verdict without a trace of emotion. He told reporters he had nothing to say, and referred them to his attorney, Edward Bennet Williams.

At Liberty Under Bail

Williams said he would move to have the verdict set aside and would fight the case all the way to the Supreme Court if necessary. Meanwhile U. S. Dist. Judge Walter M. Bastian permitted Bramblett to remain at liberty under $2,500 bail.

The jury, which deliberated an hour and 40 minutes, found that Bramblett had falsely represented to the House disbursing officer that Mrs. Margaret M. Swanson of Arlington, Va., was a $4,700-a-year clerk on his staff for the last seven months of 1950.

Mrs. Swanson testified she did no work for Bramblett in connection with his official duties while she was on the payroll. Her husband, Irving, testified he "kicked back" to Bramblett most of the $3,300 his wife was supposed to have earned.

11 Counts Thrown Out

Before the Bramblett case went to the jury, Judge Bastian threw out 11 of the original 18 counts. The defense rested without presenting any witnesses.

Judge Bastian entered a judgment of acquittal on the 11 charges of the indictments in which Mrs. Olga Hardaway of Santa Barbara, Calif., figured.

Mrs. Swanson testified she did no work for Bramblett during the 16 months she was carried on his payroll beginning Sept. 1, 1949.

In fact, she said, she never even met Bramblett until the following summer.

The early months in which Mrs. Swanson was on the payroll were not included in the indictment because of the statute of limitations.

Senate Passes Farm Prop Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to President Eisenhower a bill providing $681,769,703 to keep the government's farm price support program going for the next few weeks.

The vote was 49-10.

The House had passed the compromise measure earlier in the day, by voice vote.

Sponsors of the bill said in both branches that the money was critically needed because the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) which finances the farm price props is out of funds.

The measure cancels 681 million dollars worth of notes given by CCC to the Treasury and, in effect, replenishes the lending agency's capital by that amount.

The cancellation is a device to reimburse CCC for losses which it has suffered in the past year.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee said it was his information the 681 million would last only until about March 10. Before that time, he said, Congress must act on another bill raising CCCC's borrowing authority by 1¾ billions to a new level of 8½ billion dollars. This committee already has approved this measure. It is to come up in the Senate soon.

Five Bail Out Of C119

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 9 (AP)—Five U.S. airmen from Sewart Air Base, Smyrna, Tenn., bailed out of a crippled C119 flying boxcar over Southwest Spain early today and were found by search parties near the town of Caceres. Two men were reported slightly injured.

Communists Within Eight Miles Of Laotian Capital

Vietminh May Not Attack City, Some Military Men Say

LUANG PRABANG, Laos, Feb. 9 (AP)—Spearheads of the Communist-led Vietminh rebels advanced to within eight miles of Luang Prabang today. The French Union defenders dug in deeper to meet any all-out assault of the royal Laotian capital.

The bulk of Vietminh's crack Division 308, slicing across Laos toward the Thailand border, was reported about 30 miles away. No direct attack on the city was foreseen for several days.

Some military leaders expressed belief the Vietminh may not attack Luang Prabang, despite the menacing advance of the last week. They view the rebel campaign as having more of a political than a military purpose. The rebels advanced toward the royal capital last May, only to pull away without attacking.

Other Possible Objectives

These military men believe the Vietminh has no chance of taking Luang Prabang with the estimated 12,000 men committed to the offensive. They said the rebels may have two other objectives:

1. Make the French pull back the forces with which they have been operating for two months in the Hou and Suong River Valley approaches to Luang Prabang.

2. Establish closer contact for the rebels between the Red Chinese frontier to the north and Burma and Thailand to the south and west.

Rebel Rafts Descend River

French Union troops have been in contact for two days with Vietminh guerrillas preparing the road for regular units and strengthening their supply connections. The bulk of Division 308 is advancing on Luang Prabang along the Hou Valley and French planes have noted many rebel rafts descending that river.

Union troops pulling back toward Luang Prabang are leaving a scorched earth behind them. They have evacuated villages in the path of the rebel advance and burned them along with their stocks of rice in an effort to cripple Vietminh supply. The rebels depend largely on thousands of pack-carrying coolies strung out in a thin line over jungle paths to the northeast.

Senator Declares U. S. "Riding Road" To "Intervention"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson reiterated today the United States is not sending combat troops to Indochina, but Sen. Stennis (D-Miss) declared in the Senate "we are riding hard on the road that will lead to direct intervention" in the war there.

Stennis criticized the Eisenhower administration for deciding to send about 200 Air Force technicians to Indochina without consulting the Senate Armed Services Committee, of which he is a member.

Technicians' Return Demanded

He said there are plenty of French mechanics capable of servicing the aircraft the United States has made available to France to fight the Communist Vietminh forces. He insisted the Americans be brought back "at the earliest possible date."

Those who approve of sending Air Force technicians to the Asian battleground, Stennis said, also ought to advocate a bigger army, more taxes and extension of the draft "so we will have the power to carry through on a policy which we are making inch by inch."

Probable French Victory Seen

Wilson, discussing the Indochinese situation at a news conference, predicted the French and loyal native forces probably would win a military victory unless there is intervention by the Red Chinese or a similar change in the situation.

The secretary said he thought military victory, rather than a negotiated peace, "would be perhaps both possible and probable."

Newsmen interpreted his remarks as meaning that he saw no need for sending extensive American forces against the Red Vietminh army, as was done against the Communists in Korea.

Safeguard Funds To Avoid Abuses, AFL Unions Told

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 9 (AP)—The AFL high command today called on all AFL unions to safeguard handling multi-million dollar health and welfare funds to avoid "abuses" and excessive administrative costs.

The resolution — adopted as one of several concluding acts of the AFL Executive Council's 10-day winter meeting — recognized widespread charges that the rich trust funds have sometimes been mishandled for the personal benefit of union leaders.

Some Abuse Indicated

The council said the funds have for the most part been "wisely and prudently" administered for union members but "there are instances where it is charged" that unions have permitted abuse in distributing commissions for handling the money.

President Eisenhower recently recommended that Congress conduct a searching probe of union administration of such funds and set up new legal curbs. A special House committee turned up evidence of "kickbacks" to union leaders in letting insurance contracts to favored companies.

Uniform Standards Urged

The AFL council attributed what abuses as have occurred to the widespread growth of such funds within recent years and advised all AFL unions to establish "uniform standards and procedures for their local unions to insure proper administration."

AFL President George Meany, in announcing the council action to reporters, said "by and large, I think these plans are well run—naturally, when you get into a field like this, you find some locals which have been careless."

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Feb. 9 (AP)—European countries are producing 25 million dollars worth of tanks and ammunition monthly for NATO forces, the U. S. Army's European headquarters said today.

McLeod Gets Full Pay For Oratory

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—A State Department spokesman said today that R. W. Scott McLeod, department security officer, will draw his full pay while making political speeches this week for the Republican National Committee.

The spokesman, in response to questions, also said he was quite sure McLeod's speeches were not being cleared by the State Department.

He said McLeod will be making the speeches under an invitation which went from the Republican National Committee to all presidential appointees in the State Department. To the best of his knowledge, the spokesman said, McLeod was the only one to accept.

McLeod, who makes $15,000 a year, accepted the Republicans' invitation after making sure he would not be violating the Hatch Act which restricts political activities of federal employes, the spokesman said.

BLS Reports Payroll Drop Of 2,000,000 In One Month

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today there was a decline of two million workers on the payrolls of industry, transportation, government and trade between December and January.

The non-farm total of employment last month—47,700,000—was the largest ever reported for the month except in 1953, BLS said. It was 646,000 smaller than a year ago because of factory layoffs; in non-manufacturing industries, January employment was the highest on record.

Factory pay rolls dropped by 380,000 between mid-December and mid-January, BLS said. This drop, "appreciably larger than usual," was described as the sharpest reduction for the season since the recession year 1949. Seasonal trends accounted for reductions in the lumber, food and miscellaneous manufacturing industries, BLS said.

The BLS report showed a drop in employment about twice as great as that indicated by the Census Bureau's monthly report on the labor force issued yesterday. Census said total civilian employment was 59,800,000 in January, or about one million below December level.

The seeming discrepancy was accounted for by census as follows: BLS figures are developed from payroll statistics, whereas census obtains its data from interviews with households and includes domestic help, unpaid family workers and self-employed persons who do not show up on payrolls.

Another difference arises from the fact that persons "temporarily" laid off with instructions to report back to work within 30 days are counted as employed by the Census Bureau. There were 275,000 of these in January, census said; but since they did not show up on factory payrolls they were excluded from the BLS statistics.

Gas Fumes Fatal To Four Persons

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9 (AP)—A young mother, two of her small children, and their guest were found dead today in the house they moved into only yesterday.

Coroner Gordon Hall said after an inquest the four died of "carbon monoxide from insufficient vents."

Dead were Mrs. Helen Glasscock, 19; her children, Charlotte Ann, 3, and Barbara Jane, 2 months; and Mrs. Darlene Kerns, about 20.

A third child of the Glasscocks, Paul Daniel, 2, was found unconscious but was revived and taken to a hospital where his condition was described as good.

The five were discovered by the father, Sgt. Donald Glasscock, stationed at Ft. Campbell, when he came home at 4:30 p.m. today.

Pope Pius Continues To Show Improvement

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today held the ground he has gained in his stubborn fight for recovery from the grave gastric ailment which struck him down 16 days ago.

The Vatican press office said the 77-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church "had a tranquil night and rested well."

For the second consecutive day the Pope was able to take some food and leave his bed for a short while.

It was hoped the Pope would soon regain sufficient strength so that his doctors would be able to make additional X-ray examinations to determine the conditions of the gastric wall and organs near it.

Mother Fails To Save Children

Sobbing and prostrate after her child slipped from her grasp, Mrs. Betty Mitchell, of Woodlyn, near Chester, Pa., lies on the bank of a quarry that claimed the lives of her 4-year-old son, Michael, and another 4-year-old, Michael Collins, yesterday. Mrs. Mitchell, who expects another child in two weeks, plunged fully clothed into the icy water in a futile rescue try.

GOP Blasts At Demos Deplored By Johnson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) today gave impetus to Democratic demands for President Eisenhower to soft-pedal Republican campaign blasts as an explosive battle erupted over GOP criticism of past Democratic regimes.

Eisenhower will have a chance to give his views on the subject at his news conference (10:30 a.m. EST) tomorrow.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, deplored what he termed "irresponsible statements by high administration officials" on the issue of Communists-in-government in bygone years.

The Texan told newsmen he did not necessarily mean to imply that recent GOP attacks would jeopardize the President's legislative program by depriving it of support from resentful Democrats.

He expressed the view, however, that recent utterances by GOP chieftains are not the way to encourage bipartisan support—such as Eisenhower must have to get his program enacted in the narrowly divided Congress.

Meanwhile, Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) accused the Eisenhower administration of resorting to "the big-lie technique common to both communism and fascism" in connection with the list of 2,200 federal employes it says have been dropped under the security check system.

Morse, who bolted the Republican party in 1952, said in an NBC TV broadcast that responsibility for the controversy over the 2,200 rests squarely on the shoulders of President Eisenhower.

Some Democrats contend that few if any of the 2,200 were fired as actual subversives and that some left the government in the normal employment turnover. So far, there has been no breakdown on specific reasons for the list of departures.

Johnson spoke out after James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said that Republican speakers who have been lambasting the Democrats in Lincoln Day speeches are "just giving the peopls the facts."

Hagerty thus shunted aside Democratic demands that President Eisenhower disavow such "attacks" as last Saturday's assertion by Sherman Adams, White House staff chief, that "political sadists" are trying to foist a "Fear Deal" on the country.

Coal Cleaning Plant Blast Fatal To One

INDIANA, Pa., Feb. 9 (AP) — A shattering explosion ripped out the metal side of a coal cleaning plant at nearby Lucernemines today, killing one man and injuring eight.

Leonard Buchovich, 25, of Lucernemines, died of burns in a hospital several hours after the blast rocked the little Indiana County mining community.

Seven of the injured workers were admitted to the hospital in fair condition. The eighth was treated and released.

Bullet Shatters Toy Plastic Gun And Injures Boy

OMAHA, Feb. 9 (AP)—Jack Shestak, 6, was playing yesterday with one of those toy plastic pistols, hunting "Indians" in the back yard.

He pulled the trigger.

Boom!

His mother, Mrs. John Shestak, said the boy had found a .38 caliber bullet and put it in the toy pistol. A plunger on the toy hit the shell hard enough to discharge it.

The pistol was shattered and Jack was treated for a wounded hand.

Mrs. Luce Denies Resignation Reports

ROME, Feb. 9 (AP)—Clare Boothe Luce said today she will return to the United States in the late spring or summer for a vacation, but denied reports she plans to resign as U. S. ambassador to Italy.

Mrs. Luce is under sharp attack from the Italian Communists, who accuse her of meddling in domestic politics.

Senate Probe Seeks Names Of Major Traders In Coffee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Senators prying into dollar a pound coffee prices were told by New York traders today that the cause is short crops and increased coffee drinking.

But members of a Senate Banking subcommittee still had an idea speculation might have something to do with price boosts that have aroused many protests.

When they started exploring that possibility, New York brokers refused to bring out lists of their customers and their dealings in a public hearing. They suggested the subcommittee subpoena the lists if it insists on having them.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Beall (R-Md), told reporters that is exactly what will be done, if necessary.

With Gustavo Lobo Jr., and Leon Israel, president and vice president of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange on the witness stand, Sen. Bush (R-Conn) asked for a sum-up answer to this question:

"Why is the price of coffee so high?"

Lobo replied:

"It is our feeling that the present price of coffee is due in a very great measure, if not in its entirety, to a changing statistical situation of world supply and demand."

He and Israel outlined the statistical situation this way:

Aside from coffee consumed in the growing countries, the world uses more than 30 million bags—each weighing 132 pounds—a year. The United States consumes roughly two-thirds of the total and Europe the other third.

Brazil is the world's biggest coffee producer — turning out more than half the supply in 1952-53. For the present 1953-54 crop year ending next June 30, Brazil had expected a crop of 16,900,000 bags. It estimated the 1954-55 crop at 17,900,000 bags.

But as a result of heavy frosts last July, these estimates have been lowered to 14 million bags for this year and 12,700,000 for next year.

Incomes To Stay High This Year, Experts Predict

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Six economic experts predicted to Congress today that Americans will enjoy high incomes and do a lot of buying at fairly stable prices in 1954.

The experts gave this generally optimistic forecast amid these related developments:

1. The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a drop of two million workers on the payrolls of industry, transportation, government and trade between December and January — but non-farm employment (47,700,000) was the largest ever reported for the month of January except in 1953.

2. The Commerce Department reported that total business inventories (stocks), which President Eisenhower has blamed for the current economic slow-down, were shrinking at the end of 1953.

The department said, however, that sales declined in the last quarter of the year at about the same rate as inventories dwindled.

Eisenhower said in his economic message to Congress last month that if sales are high enough to cut down inventories, production would swing up again and the current business dip would "soon come to a halt."

On Capitol Hill, a group of economic authorities testified that people may not spend as much as they did at the 1953 peak, but there is little reason for any panicky alarm over the outlook for the year ahead.

USSR To Offer West Security Scheme Today

Another Booby Trap To Weaken Alliance Expected By Allies

BERLIN, Feb. 9 (AP)—Soviet Russia, striving to wreck the Western defense alliance, declared tonight it will present a new plan for "European security" to the Big Four conference here tomorrow.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, who had refused at a secret session yesterday to get the Korean peace conference started on United Nations terms, today kept the foreign ministers in a futile deadlock on Germany.

In sharply worded exchanges with U. S. Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Eden, the Soviet foreign minister disclosed he would offer a new Communist security plan in an attempt to kill off the European Defense Community.

Molotov Ignores Eden

Rehashing Communist arguments since a six-nation European army including West German units was envisaged in 1950, Molotov said EDC was a "preparation for war" against his country.

He ignored Eden when the latter reiterated Britain's offer to extend the 20-year British-Soviet pact against German aggression beyond its expiration date in 1963 in order to allay Russian fears.

There were briefings on today's meeting, and statements of the ministers were released for publication, in contrast with yesterday's secret session.

There was no expectation in the Western diplomatic camp tonight that the new Communist security plan would be more than another booby trap to weaken free Europe.

Molotov clung tenaciously today to all his demands of last week for "neutralization" of a unified Germany with Communists at the governmental helm.

Secret Session Thursday

Their patience frayed, Dulles, Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault sought unsuccessfully to persuade Molotov to end the hopeless East-West quarrel here over Germany and EDC.

After renewed debate tomorrow on this bogged down issue, the Big Four will hold another secret session Thursday on Russia's proposal for a Big Five conference with Red China, and divergent Russian and French resolutions for a world armament policy.

The ministers agreed also to take up the long delayed Austrian independence treaty on Friday, with Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl, who arrived by plane today from Vienna, at the conference table.

Air Force Plans Five New Bases

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Air Force today announced plans to establish five new air bases and put eight others back into operation in the year beginning July 1 for its projected 137-wing Air Force program.

The announcement said use of the five new bases would depend upon satisfactory agreements with local communities for use of existing airports.

Several bases included in the program to meet the 137-wing goal previously had been scheduled but were dropped last year in a review of plans for Air Force expansion.

The announcement today gave emphasis to the Eisenhower administration's "new look" in military policy—the concept of putting greater reliance on hit-back air power.

The Air Force said it will submit to Congress soon requests for approval of its 1955 construction program which will include the 13 reopened or new bases. It said the request also will ask for additional money for construction at existing Air Force bases. No details were disclosed of proposed construction at present bases.

Weather Forecast

Gas Fumes Fatal To Four Persons

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9 (AP)—A young mother, two of her small children, and their guest were found dead today in the house they moved into only yesterday.

Coroner Gordon Hall said after an inquest the four died of "carbon monoxide from insufficient vents."

Dead were Mrs. Helen Glasscock, 19; her children, Charlotte Ann, 3, and Barbara Jane, 2 months; and Mrs. Darlene Kerns, about 20.

A third child of the Glasscocks, Paul Daniel, 2, was found unconscious but was revived and taken to a hospital where his condition was described as good.

The five were discovered by the father, Sgt. Donald Glasscock, stationed at Ft. Campbell, when he came home at 4:30 p.m. today.

Pope Pius Continues To Show Improvement

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today held the ground he has gained in his stubborn fight for recovery from the grave gastric ailment which struck him down 16 days ago.

The Vatican press office said the 77-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church "had a tranquil night and rested well."

For the second consecutive day the Pope was able to take some food and leave his bed for a short while.

It was hoped the Pope would soon regain sufficient strength so that his doctors would be able to make additional X-ray examinations to determine the conditions of the gastric wall and organs near it.

Russia Frees 61 Finns

HELSINKI, Finland, Feb. 9 (AP)—Sixty-one Finns held captive in the Soviet Union were returned to their homeland today.

BLS Reports Payroll Drop Of 2,000,000 In One Month

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today there was a decline of two million workers on the payrolls of industry, transportation, government and trade between December and January.

The non-farm total of employment last month—47,700,000—was the largest ever reported for the month except in 1953, BLS said. It was 646,000 smaller than a year ago because of factory layoffs; in non-manufacturing industries, January employment was the highest on record.

Factory pay rolls dropped by 380,000 between mid-December and mid-January, BLS said. This drop, "appreciably larger than usual," was described as the sharpest reduction for the season since the recession year 1949. Seasonal trends accounted for reductions in the lumber, food and miscellaneous manufacturing industries, BLS said.

The BLS report showed a drop in employment about twice as great as that indicated by the Census Bureau's monthly report on the labor force issued yesterday. Census said total civilian employment was 59,800,000 in January, or about one million below December level.

The seeming discrepancy was accounted for by census as follows: BLS figures are developed from payroll statistics, whereas census obtains its data from interviews with households and includes domestic help, unpaid family workers and self-employed persons who do not show up on payrolls.

Another difference arises from the fact that persons "temporarily" laid off with instructions to report back to work within 30 days are counted as employed by the Census Bureau. There were 275,000 of these in January, census said; but since they did not show up on factory payrolls they were excluded from the BLS statistics.

Mother Fails To Save Children

Sobbing and prostrate after her child slipped from her grasp, Mrs. Betty Mitchell, of Woodlyn, near Chester, Pa., lies on the bank of a quarry that claimed the lives of her 4-year-old son, Michael, and another 4-year-old, Michael Collins, yesterday. Mrs. Mitchell, who expects another child in two weeks, plunged fully clothed into the icy water in a futile rescue try.

GOP Blasts At Demos Deplored By Johnson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) today gave impetus to Democratic demands for President Eisenhower to soft-pedal Republican campaign blasts as an explosive battle erupted over GOP criticism of past Democratic regimes.

Eisenhower will have a chance to give his views on the subject at his news conference (10:30 a.m. EST) tomorrow.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, deplored what he termed "irresponsible statements by high administration officials" on the issue of Communists-in-government in bygone years.

The Texan told newsmen he did not necessarily mean to imply that recent GOP attacks would jeopardize the President's legislative program by depriving it of support from resentful Democrats.

He expressed the view, however, that recent utterances by GOP chieftains are not the way to encourage bipartisan support—such as Eisenhower must have to get his program enacted in the narrowly divided Congress.

Meanwhile, Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) accused the Eisenhower administration of resorting to "the big-lie technique common to both communism and fascism" in connection with the list of 2,200 federal employes it says have been dropped under the security check system.

Morse, who bolted the Republican party in 1952, said in an NBC TV broadcast that responsibility for the controversy over the 2,200 rests squarely on the shoulders of President Eisenhower.

Some Democrats contend that few if any of the 2,200 were fired as actual subversives and that some left the government in the normal employment turnover. So far, there has been no breakdown on specific reasons for the list of departures.

Johnson spoke out after James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, said that Republican speakers who have been lambasting the Democrats in Lincoln Day speeches are "just giving the people the facts."

Hagerty thus shunted aside Democratic demands that President Eisenhower disavow such "attacks" as last Saturday's assertion by Sherman Adams, White House staff chief, that "political sadists" are trying to foist a "Fear Deal" on the country.

Coal Cleaning Plant Blast Fatal To One

INDIANA, Pa., Feb. 9 (AP) — A shattering explosion ripped out the metal side of a coal cleaning plant at nearby Lucernemines today, killing one man and injuring eight.

Leonard Buchovich, 25, of Lucernemines, died of burns in a hospital several hours after the blast rocked the little Indiana County mining community.

Seven of the injured workers were admitted to the hospital in fair condition. The eighth was treated and released.

Bullet Shatters Toy Plastic Gun And Injures Boy

OMAHA, Feb. 9 (AP)—Jack Shestak, 6, was playing yesterday with one of those toy plastic pistols, hunting "Indians" in the back yard.

He pulled the trigger.

Boom!

His mother, Mrs. John Shestak, said the boy had found a .38 caliber bullet and put it in the toy pistol. A plunger on the toy hit the shell hard enough to discharge it.

The pistol was shattered and Jack was treated for a wounded hand.

Mrs. Luce Denies Resignation Reports

ROME, Feb. 9 (AP)—Clare Boothe Luce said today she will return to the United States in the late spring or summer for a vacation, but denied reports she plans to resign as U. S. ambassador to Italy.

Mrs. Luce is under sharp attack from the Italian Communists, who accuse her of meddling in domestic politics.

Incomes To Stay High This Year, Experts Predict

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Six economic experts predicted to Congress today that Americans will enjoy high incomes and do a lot of buying at fairly stable prices in 1954.

The experts gave this generally optimistic forecast amid these related developments:

1. The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a drop of two million workers on the payrolls of industry, transportation, government and trade between December and January — but non-farm employment (47,700,000) was the largest ever reported for the month of January except in 1953.

2. The Commerce Department reported that total business inventories (stocks), which President Eisenhower has blamed for the current economic slow-down, were shrinking at the end of 1953.

The department said, however, that sales declined in the last quarter of the year at about the same rate as inventories dwindled.

Eisenhower said in his economic message to Congress last month that if sales are high enough to cut down inventories, production would swing up again and the current business dip would "soon come to a halt."

On Capitol Hill, a group of economic authorities testified that people may not spend as much as they did at the 1953 peak, but there is little reason for any panicky alarm over the outlook for the year ahead.

Senate Probe Seeks Names Of Major Traders In Coffee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Senators prying into dollar a pound coffee prices were told by New York traders today that the cause is short crops and increased coffee drinking.

But members of a Senate Banking subcommittee still had an idea speculation might have something to do with price boosts that have aroused many protests.

When they started exploring that possibility, New York brokers refused to bring out lists of their customers and their dealings in a public hearing. They suggested the subcommittee subpoena the lists if it insists on having them.

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Beall (R-Md), told reporters that is exactly what will be done, if necessary.

With Gustavo Lobo Jr., and Leon Israel, president and vice president of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange on the witness stand, Sen. Bush (R-Conn) asked for a sum-up answer to this question:

"Why is the price of coffee so high?"

Lobo replied:

"It is our feeling that the present price of coffee is due in a very great measure, if not in its entirety, to a changing statistical situation of world supply and demand."

He and Israel outlined the statistical situation this way:

Aside from coffee consumed in the growing countries, the world uses more than 30 million bags—each weighing 132 pounds—a year. The United States consumes roughly two-thirds of the total and Europe the other third.

Brazil is the world's biggest coffee producer — turning out more than half the supply in 1952-53. For the present 1953-54 crop year ending next June 30, Brazil had expected a crop of 16,900,000 bags. It estimated the 1954-55 crop at 17,900,000 bags.

But as a result of heavy frosts last July, these estimates have been lowered to 14 million bags for this year and 12,700,000 for next year.

USSR To Offer West Security Scheme Today

Another Booby Trap To Weaken Alliance Expected By Allies

BERLIN, Feb. 9 (AP)—Soviet Russia, striving to wreck the Western defense alliance, declared tonight it will present a new plan for "European security" to the Big Four conference here tomorrow.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, who had refused at a secret session yesterday to get the Korean peace conference started on United Nations terms, today kept the foreign ministers in a futile deadlock on Germany.

In sharply worded exchanges with U. S. Secretary of State Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Eden, the Soviet foreign minister disclosed he would offer a new Communist security plan in an attempt to kill off the European Defense Community.

Molotov Ignores Eden

Rehashing Communist arguments since a six-nation European army including West German units was envisaged in 1950, Molotov said EDC was a "preparation for war" against his country.

He ignored Eden when the latter reiterated Britain's offer to extend the 20-year British-Soviet pact against German aggression beyond its expiration date in 1963 in order to allay Russian fears.

There were briefings on today's meeting, and statements of the ministers were released for publication, in contrast with yesterday's secret session.

There was no expectation in the Western diplomatic camp tonight that the new Communist security plan would be more than another booby trap to weaken free Europe.

Molotov clung tenaciously today to all his demands of last week for "neutralization" of a unified Germany with Communists at the governmental helm.

Secret Session Thursday

Their patience frayed, Dulles, Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault sought unsuccessfully to persuade Molotov to end the hopeless East-West quarrel here over Germany and EDC.

After renewed debate tomorrow on this bogged down issue, the Big Four will hold another secret session Thursday on Russia's proposal for a Big Five conference with Red China, and divergent Russian and French resolutions for a world armament policy.

The ministers agreed also to take up the long delayed Austrian independence treaty on Friday, with Austrian Foreign Minister Leopold Figl, who arrived by plane today from Vienna, at the conference table.

Air Force Plans Five New Bases

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Air Force today announced plans to establish five new air bases and put eight others back into operation in the year beginning July 1 for its projected 137-wing Air Force program.

The announcement said use of the five new bases would depend upon satisfactory agreements with local communities for use of existing airports.

Several bases included in the program to meet the 137-wing goal previously had been scheduled but were dropped last year in a review of plans for Air Force expansion.

The announcement today gave emphasis to the Eisenhower administration's "new look" in military policy—the concept of putting greater reliance on hit-back air power.

The Air Force said it will submit to Congress soon requests for approval of its 1955 construction program which will include the 13 reopened or new bases. It said the request also will ask for additional money for construction at existing Air Force bases. No details were disclosed of proposed construction at present bases.

A. & P. Strike Settled

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 9 (AP)—The nine-day strike of warehousemen at the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. was settled today and the company plans to reopen its 153 stores in Northeastern Pennsylvania and Southern New York Friday morning.

State Liquor Tax-Sharing Bill Approved By House

McKeldin Vetoed Similar Measure

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 9 (AP) — The Democratic majority of the House flexed its muscle for the first time in this session today to ram through a bill to put another nickel tax on a fifth of liquor and give one third of the total receipts to the counties.

The bill is identical, except for a change in the date of its effect, with one passed last year by the General Assembly and vetoed by Gov. McKeldin after the legislators went home.

That veto still is hanging in the House. The 89 votes by which the substitute passed was 15 more than necessary to beat a veto. All of the 20 votes against it except those of Dels. Bloom and Huyett (D-Washington) were cast by Republicans.

A crack at the Republican governor also was taken in the Senate by Sen. Turnbull, the new judiciary chairman from Baltimore County. He recalled that three years ago Gov. McKeldin called a Democratic idea to collect the gross receipts tax on utilities twice in the same year a scheme.

The governor now is proposing the same thing in order to get five million dollars necessary to balance his 238-million budget.

Turnbull acidly commented that when Gov. McKeldin pooh-poohed the double collection idea it "was not an election year." This year there will be an election of a governor, Turnbull noted.

Sen. Kimble (R-Allegany), the minority floor leader, sarcastically thanked the Democrats for the idea. The Republicans, he said, "after due consideration" decided it was a good one, he said.

The Senate passed four bills and enacted over the governor's veto a ban on haul seining south of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge on weekends.

The four measures passed and sent to the House included one which would wipe out the archaic ban on the sale of powdered or skimmed milk and similar products. Others would:

1. Prohibit the sale of motor vehicle registration lists for less than the cost to the state.

2. Provide for the suspension of the driver's licenses of minors convicted of either two moving violations within a year or three such violations before reaching adulthood. The present law makes suspension possible for other violations besides those involving moving vehicles.

3. To permit Air Force officers to serve as notary publics for members of the armed forces.

In 1952, American homeowners bought more than one million power lawn mowers and 150,000 garden tractors.

CHOW MOTHER STILL MAKES — Six years is a long time to wait for chow like mother used to make, so John Hvasta, who crashed out of a Communist Czech prison, turns to with a zest in Hillside, N. J., home. That's his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hvasta, giving him a taste of her home-made chicken soup.

Stokowski Seeks Jew's-Harp Player

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Symphony conductor Leopold Stokowski is trying to find a good jew's-harp player.

He needs one on his CBS radio concert program Feb. 21 but they seem to have become extinct.

There was a time when almost every small boy could play the jew's-harp, a small lyre shaped metal frame held in the mouth. A bent metal tongue attached to the frame is twanged with a forefinger.

But the AFL Musician's Union does not classify the jew's-harp as a musical instrument and cannot provide a player.

If any turn up, they will be given an audition Feb. 16.

A jew's-harp solo is needed in the presentation of "Washington's Birthday" from the symphony "Holiday" by the American composer, Charles Ives.

Federal Morale Low, Morse Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP) — Sen. Morse (Ind-Ore) said today the Republicans, out of power for 20 years, have now come into Washington "to despoil the career system of government employment."

As a result, Morse asserted, "there is practically no morale left in the government service today."

Interviewed on a television program (NBC's "Today"), the Oregon independent accused President Eisenhower of responsibility for a "fascist big lie technique" in the controversy over recent removal of 2,200 government employes.

"If there were a lot of Communists among those released, why doesn't the administration come forward, give an exact breakdown and tell how many?" Morse asked.

Pensioner Gives Away $42,400 He Won In Pool

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 9 (AP)—Old age pensioner George Murns won $42,400 in a soccer pool last weekend—and gave it away today.

"You don't need lots of money when you get to my age," said Murns, 70. "All I want out of this windfall is enough to buy some new spectacles and a hearing aid."

His three children and five grandchildren got the rest.

Gleasons Admit Marriage Shaky

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—An incident between Mrs. Jackie Gleason and a shapely dancer in the TV comedian's hospital room reportedly led both Gleasons to admit today their marriage was about on the rocks for good.

They have been separated numerous times in the past.

Neither Gleason nor his wife, Genevieve, could be reached tonight to verify newspaper reports, which quoted both of them as saying the main reason they are not getting divorced is because they are Roman Catholics.

The first report, in today's Daily Mirror, said Mrs. Gleason and dancer Marilyn Taylor, who is in the cast of Gleason's Saturday night CBS television show, squabbled Sunday when Mrs. Gleason came to the hospital room and found Marilyn there.

Gleason suffered a broken leg in a fall on his show a week earlier. He has left the hospital since the reported Sunday incident.

Diplomat Promotion Bottleneck Uncorked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—President Eisenhower, with Secretary of State Dulles warmly applauding, today uncorked a year-old bottleneck on promotion of America's career diplomats.

Eisenhower sent a list of 124 foreign service promotions to the Senate for confirmation. Dulles, in a congratulatory message from Berlin to those named, said other such promotions would follow.

The freeze on State Department hiring and promotions dates back to an austerity order from Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge on Feb. 3, 1953. It began to thaw a bit about two months ago, with relaxation of Dodge's ban, which applied to all government agencies.

But State Department hirings and promotions were still held up because of Eisenhower's security program put into effect last April 27. That program, designed to keep subversives out of the government, laid down rules which continued the job freeze started for economy reasons.

Raid Yields 100 Guns And 'Library Of Smut'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP) — Morals squad police raided a northwest Washington home today and said they found a "library of smut" scattered through six rooms and an arsenal of 100 guns and 50 daggers.

Police said they also found stacks of silverware, cameras, jewelry and furs in the house at 923 Shepherd St.

Julius Waskow, 41, occupant of the house, was released on $1,000 bond after being charged with two counts of possessing lewd and immoral literature, two counts of selling it, three counts of possessing brass knuckles and one of having a blackjack.

Police said Waskow told them he picked up most of the items at "auctions."

CAA Calls For Suspension Of Godfrey's Pilot License

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration, pressing its month-old charge of careless flying against radio-TV star Arthur Godfrey, asked today that his pilot's certificate be suspended for at least 30 days.

The CAA said its recommendation to the Civil Aeronautics Board gave "due consideration, as a mitigating factor" to Godfrey's "past good record."

Nevertheless, said S. W. Bobskill, regional attorney for the CAA in New York City, public interest requires "no less action" than suspension for at least 30 days and thereafter until Godfrey obtains a proper CAA medical certificate.

Godfrey, who has waived a hearing, was given 10 days in which to reply.

The CAA requires pilots to take medical examinations every two years. Godfrey, a naval reserve pilot, said he had obtained a Navy medical certificate last Oct. 25, entitling him to a civilian pilot's license for a year. The CAA said it had not been advised of this.

The CAA complaint, submitted to CAB Safety Examiner Albert H. Ruppar said Godfrey's plane on taking off from Teterboro, N. J., airport on Jan. 7 swerved 50 degrees to the left, missed three parked airplanes by 20 to 30 feet, passed 100 feet over the control tower and banked to the left again to take a southerly course "directly contrary to that prescribed."

Godfrey, in a written statement to the CAB on Jan. 29, denied he handled his twin-engine DC3 carelessly. He blamed buffeting by crosswinds for his unorthodox takeoff.

Prisoners Would Be Cheaper Chauffeurs Than State Troopers

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 9 (AP)—Prisoners might not make better drivers than state troopers, but they'd be cheaper.

Senate Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) said today that economic fact ought to be pondered in exploring state finances.

He got the idea from James M. Hepbron, chairman of the Maryland Parole Board. Hepbron told the Senate Finance Committee his chauffeur is a prisoner doing time in the penitentiary.

Explaining how his department spends money, Hepbron didn't want anyone to get an impression of extravagance from "seeing me accompanied by a uniformed chauffeur."

He said his man costs 25 cents a day, the standard rate for prison labor, and that he provided the uniform.

Goldstein estimated prisoners would relieve anywhere from 10 to 20 state troopers from driving state officials.

Remarries At 91

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9 (AP)—Booker Wright, 91, Spanish-American War veteran who won an uncontested divorce from Martha Bell Wright, 64, last Dec. 22, has remarried, the Pike County clerk's office said today.

Records disclosed Wright, a resident of Virgie, and Rebecca Johnson, 47, of Etta, applied for a license last Friday.

CAA Calls For Suspension Of Godfrey's Pilot License

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration, pressing its month-old charge of careless flying against radio-TV star Arthur Godfrey, asked today that his pilot's certificate be suspended for at least 30 days.

The CAA said its recommendation to the Civil Aeronautics Board gave "due consideration, as a mitigating factor" to Godfrey's "past good record."

Nevertheless, said S. W. Bobskill, regional attorney for the CAA in New York City, public interest requires "no less action" than suspension for at least 30 days and thereafter until Godfrey obtains a proper CAA medical certificate.

Godfrey, who has waived a hearing, was given 10 days in which to reply.

The CAA requires pilots to take medical examinations every two years. Godfrey, a naval reserve pilot, said he had obtained a Navy medical certificate last Oct. 25, entitling him to a civilian pilot's license for a year. The CAA said it had not been advised of this.

The CAA complaint, submitted to CAB Safety Examiner Albert H. Ruppar said Godfrey's plane on taking off from Teterboro, N. J., airport on Jan. 7 swerved 50 degrees to the left, missed three parked airplanes by 20 to 30 feet, passed 100 feet over the control tower and banked to the left again to take a southerly course "directly contrary to that prescribed."

Godfrey, in a written statement to the CAB on Jan. 29, denied he handled his twin-engine DC3 carelessly. He blamed buffeting by crosswinds for his unorthodox takeoff.

Prisoners Would Be Cheaper Chauffeurs Than State Troopers

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 9 (AP)—Prisoners might not make better drivers than state troopers, but they'd be cheaper.

Senate Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) said today that economic fact ought to be pondered in exploring state finances.

He got the idea from James M. Hepbron, chairman of the Maryland Parole Board. Hepbron told the Senate Finance Committee his chauffeur is a prisoner doing time in the penitentiary.

Explaining how his department spends money, Hepbron didn't want anyone to get an impression of extravagance from "seeing me accompanied by a uniformed chauffeur."

He said his man costs 25 cents a day, the standard rate for prison labor, and that he provided the uniform.

Remarries At 91

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9 (AP)—Booker Wright, 91, Spanish-American War veteran who won an uncontested divorce from Martha Bell Wright, 64, last Dec. 22, has remarried, the Pike County clerk's office said today.

Records disclosed Wright, a resident of Virgie, and Rebecca Johnson, 47, of Etta, applied for a license last Friday.

First Book Of Samuel

Scientist Reports Another Section Of Biblical Manuscript Translated

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP) — The editor of a scholarly quarterly said today scientists in Jerusalem have pieced together another scrap of Biblical manuscript found about two years ago in a cave overlooking the Dead Sea.

The 27 small pieces of parchment were identified as parts of chapters one and two of the First Book of Samuel.

Eli, the high priest who trained Samuel was 90 years old when he died, according to the basic Hebrew text, it was disclosed in the quarterly.

The quarter, the Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research, said Eli's exact age had not been known before. It also said the congregation or religious order Samuel belonged to has been established from the text.

The translation indicates the son of Hannah was a member of the Nazarites, a consecrated group forbidden to drink wine, cut the hair or touch a corpse.

These additions to Biblical texts will be followed by others over a long period, the quarterly said.

The magazine is edited by Dr. William F. Albright, archeologist and chairman of the Oriental Seminary of Johns Hopkins University.

The contents of the old Hebrew texts are being determined in the Arab part of Jerusalem at the Rockefeller Museum.

The formal report on the Samuel's discovery was written by Dr. Frank M. Cross Jr., of the faculty of the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago.

Cross took his doctorate under Albright at Johns Hopkins here.

Dr. Albright says, "All handbooks on the Bible, early Christianity and the history of Judaism will soon be in need of drastic revision" as a result of the discoveries in the Dead Sea caves.

He doubts, however, that much light will be shed on the actual life and teachings of Christ since much of the new testament is thought to have been written after the abandonment of the caves in about 70 A.D.

Jessup Site Selected For Mental Hospital

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP) — The new state institution for the criminal insane will be built on state-owned property near the House of Correction at Jessup, the Board of Public Works has decided.

The proposed hospital would house insane patients convicted of crimes now cared for at Spring Grove and Crownsville Hospitals. An architect and surveyor are to pick the exact site next week and preliminary work is to begin before the end of the year.

The 1953 Legislature appropriated two million dollars for "study, planning and initial construction" of the hospital.

"Tim" Bright Appeals

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP)—Temus R. (Tim) Bright, Republican candidate for governor, filed an appeal in Baltimore City Court today charging his driver's license was "arbitrarily, irregularly and illegally suspended and revoked" by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Norman J. Gearhardt, license examiner, revoked Bright's license yesterday as a result of a speeding charge for which Bright forfeited $11.45 last Dec. 30. Bright was on a year's probation at the time for a similar charge.

Baltimore County Man Given Life For Slaying Wife

TOWSON, Md., Feb. 9 (AP)—Thomas Penn, 24-year-old Baltimore County man, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the shotgun slaying of his wife.

Penn was convicted of the crime yesterday, and today Judge John B. Gontrum ruled the slaying was a first degree murder and imposed the life term.

The state had not asked the death penalty.

Penn's 21-year-old wife, mother of a small baby girl, was shot down last November in the Pulaski Highway restaurant operated by her parents.

The couple had been living apart.

Psychiatrists testified at Penn's trial that he was emotionally unstable and capable of great violence.

Grand Jury Will Get Slaying Case

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP) — Early grand jury action against William C. Thomas, accused of murder, rape and other offenses in the death of an elderly Baltimore spinster shopkeeper, will be sought by the prosecution.

State's Attorney Anselm Sodaro said today that the case will be taken before the grand jury on Thursday morning with the expectation that an immediate presentation and indictment will be returned.

Thomas, 32-year-old Negro, is accused of raping and strangling Miss Della Honeyman, 67, last Jan. 17 in her grocery store and residence on North Gilmore Street here.

Thomas entered pleas of guilty to robbery and rape at a Police Court arraignment yesterday but made no reply to the murder charge.

The brutal slaying of the shopkeeper, a favorite among children and grownups in her neighborhood, shocked the city and police have worked steadily on the case since.

They worked without clues and without much success until a man arrested on another charge gave police a tip that led them to Thomas.

He was arrested Sunday by officers who laid a trap for him at a club he was known to frequent on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Baltimore Rent Law Valid, Judge Decides

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9 (AP)—Judge S. Ralph Warnken ruled today that Baltimore's rent control law passed last year by City Council is valid under the "police power" of the city.

He also upheld legality of the city's Housing Rent Commission established under the rent control law.

The opinion said the enabling act passed in different forms last year by the two houses of the Maryland Legislature is invalid, but the broad powers given the city by its charter justify the law.

The enabling act, through a mix-up, went through the House of Delegates in one form and through the Senate in another.

The judge said continuance of rent controls in Baltimore depends upon the existing of a housing emergency but added nothing was presented to the court to show that no such emergency exists.

NEAR AND YET FAR APART — Bernarr MacFadden, 86-year-old physical culturist, nears corner in corridor of New York Supreme Court where his estranged wife, Mrs. Jonnie Lee MacFadden, was standing during a recess in her suit for separation. Mrs. MacFadden is seeking separation on the grounds of "cruel and inhuman treatment."

PRESTON, Md., Feb. 9 (AP) — Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday for Lee W. Noble, widely known Caroline County canner and business man killed in an auto accident yesterday at Denton.

The services will be held at Bethesda Methodist Church in Preston, with burial to follow in Spring Hill cemetery, Easton.

Gov. McKeldin Urges SRC Speed Up Bay Bridge Toll Study

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 9 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin today asked the State Roads Commission to hurry its study of Chesapeake Bay Bridge tolls to see if they may be reduced this summer.

"It is also important in planning any additional structures to see that users of the existing bridges do not have to carry an unfair burden," he said in a letter to the commission.

Other bridges cross the Susquehanna River at Havre de Grace and the Potomac at Morgantown. Their financing was tied in with the bay span and the projected tunnel across Baltimore harbor.

McKeldin's message to the commission noted that traffic had exceeded forecasts over the Chesapeak Bay Bridge since its opening in 1952. Auditors' reports indicate "some changes in rates can possibly be made with safety after July 30, 1954," he added.

That is the earliest date allowed by the trust agreement under which bridge bonds were sold.

Bay bridge tolls now start at $1.40 for passenger car and driver.

Control Of Coffee Exchange?

Coffee may soon be among the commodities covered by the federal Commodities Exchange Act. The Commodity Exchange Authority, which now exercises control over futures trading in 19 agricultural commodities, would be granted similar control over futures trading in coffee in U. S. commodity markets by a bill unanimously reported by the Senate Agriculture Committee on February 3. The primary U. S. coffee exchange is in New York City, but prices set there for coffee futures inevitably affect cash (present) prices, and hence retail prices, throughout the nation.

The basic legislation providing federal control of commodity exchanges was the Grain Futures Act of 1922, greatly strengthened and clarified by the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, and subsequently amended from time to time to extend federal control to additional commodities. The legislation prohibits price manipulation and cornering of a commodity, cheating or defrauding of customers, making false reports to customers, disseminating false crop or market information, certain other practices and transactions deemed undesirable by Congress.

The law now authorizes CEA regulation of futures trading in basic grains, and in cotton, rice, butter, eggs, Irish potatoes, peanuts, soybeans, fats and oils, and other commodities, 20 in all. In rice, the authorized control over trading was not exercised in the past year because of the inactivity of rice futures. Seventeen commodity exchanges throughout the nation are licensed as contract markets under the law.

The major city exchanges and boards of trade set their own margin requirements and daily limits for price fluctuation in commodities, following a policy of self-policing. Such measures have been taken by the New York Coffee Exchange, not as yet under federal control. The CEA fixes limits for licensed exchanges on the amount of speculative purchases or sales by a trader on one day and the amount of his speculative holdings of futures.

The relationship between futures prices and cash prices is outlined by the Commodity Exchange Authority report for 1953: "Futures prices are the basis for cash prices not only in the large terminal markets but also in hundreds of local markets and country points where farmers sell their crops." Similarly, futures prices are the basis for the eventual price of a commodity to the consumer.

How effective federal control of trading in coffee futures might be remains a question. CEA Administrator Mehl on February 2 told the Agriculture Committee that federal supervision could stop unwarranted rises in coffee prices. But he pointed out, as had coffee industry representatives, that the CEA had no power to do anything about the price-fixing, production, or production controls in foreign countries. Coffee would be the first primarily import commodity to be placed under federal control in this manner.

Moreover, the CEA would have little power to control the dissemination of false crop information on a commodity grown in another country. Nor would it have, for coffee, the accurate reports of the CEA's parent agency, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, to fall back on.

"Rattling The Bomb"

Jingoists formerly "rattled the saber" and sober-minded Americans found it a reprehensible practice. Now, says Secretary of Defense Wilson, there is a "rattling of the atomic bomb." He did not suggest this was a new manifestation of jingoism, but thought it should be toned down.

One of the big differences between a totalitarian state and a republic is that the government of a republic must take its people into its confidence. Public discussion of defense preparations is essential, but it can react to disadvantage in the face of totalitarian secrecy.

The Soviet Union is working just as hard to build up stockpiles of atomic weapons, but says little about it. Instead, it talks about its "peaceful" intentions.

No nation is more desirous of peace than the United States. But U. S. spokesmen find it necessary—both to reassure Americans and to give the Communists no reason to miscalculate—to warn of "massive retaliation" in event this nation is attacked. It is obvious that atomic bombs are in mind both as weapons of attack and of retaliation.

In the judgment of officialdom this much is necessary. It does not imply that Washington is ready to pour out destruction at the least provocation. Merely that the country is prepared for the worst.

But when Mr. Wilson suggests that it can safely be left to authorized spokesmen to give whatever warnings are required, is he attempting to imply that Americans should permit their government officials to do all their thinking for them?

Now It's Potato Prices

Potato growers open in Washington on Thursday a two-day conference with Secretary of Agriculture Benson on what can be done, if anything, about the present low price of potatoes. President Eisenhower recently signed legislation making ineffective an act of 1950 restricting the government price support that could be given them.

In 1950 the government price supports had dumped on Uncle Sam many more potatoes than could possibly be used. By the end of 1950 price supports for potatoes over the years had cost the Treasury something like half a billion dollars.

But in 1951, with price support restricted, land planted to potatoes dropped by about one-half, and the tuber became as scarce as it had been abundant. After consumer price controls ended, potatoes shot up to 10-12 cents a pound at retail, twice what they had been 12 months before. Housewives muttered about boycotting spuds unless and until the price fell.

It fell, all right. Whereas the average city retail price had been around nine cents a pound early in 1952, at the end of 1953 it was 4½ cents.

In May 1952 farmers were getting over $2 a bushel for potatoes. At the end of 1953 the average farm price was around 90 cents a bushel, as against the parity price of $1.60.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Mild Intestinal Upsets

Intestinal diseases are common and each year all communities have their quota of intestinal flu or other viral infections. These conditions are not completely understood by the medical profession and are labeled epidemic diarrhea, epidemic nausea and vomiting, winter vomiting disease, virus X, and acute gastroenteritis. Next to respiratory infections they constitute our most prevalent disease.

Dr. Richard Hodges, of Western Reserve university, had a unique opportunity to study this type of illness during an investigation of a group of normal Cleveland families. Each mother was asked to keep a day by day record of any sickness encountered by all members of the household, whether mild or severe. Acute respiratory disease accounted for 75 per cent of all symptoms; 15 per cent represented intestinal upsets; and a variety of childhood diseases, other ailments, and injuries was responsible for the remainder.

The study disclosed that each adult had at least one bout of nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea annually whereas youngsters had two or three. The upsets rarely lasted longer than 48 hours and usually started abruptly with severe abdominal pain, vomiting, and diarrhea. Some also had headache, dizziness, and marked cramping. Vomiting was more prevalent in the youngsters but adults had more diarrhea. As a rule, the condition spread from one member of the family to another at 24 hour intervals. Some members had a full-blown attack while others encountered only one loose stool or a few abdominal grumblings.

Babies seemed to be immune but, after the first birthday, the sieges increased rapidly and reached their peak at age 5. Thereafter the incidence declined, demonstrating that each year added more immunity to the system. Dr. Hodges was of the opinion that these disturbances were the result of a bacterial invasion. The organisms were not the same as those responsible for the respiratory infections because the attacks occurred just as often in families where there were no colds as in a sniffling household.

Contaminated food, milk, and water did not enter the picture because symptoms occurred only in one member of the family at first and was passed to others at 24 hour intervals. Food poisoning differs in that every one who eats the same meal becomes ill at the same time. Dr. Hodges concluded that persona contact was a factor; and because of the friendly nature of children, it was no wonder the illness was prevalent among them.

Treatment seldom was necessary although the majority felt better when confined to bed. Loss of fluid caused intense thirst but this was counteracted by taking small sips of water, ginger ale, or tea rather than larger amounts which aggravated distress. Ice chips also helped because they melted slowly in the mouth. There is no substitute for paregoric when cramping occurs. Few required other medication and practically every one felt better at the end of 24 to 48 hours. When the bout lasted longer, some other type of infection was responsible.

TOMORROW: Frostbitten limbs.

NECK PAIN

H. T. writes: What would cause a "crick" in the neck on the left side? I changed to a different type of pillow but still have trouble.

REPLY

This symptom is usually associated with arthritis of nearby vertebrae, slipped disk, or inflammation of the surrounding muscles and ligaments (muscular rheumatism). The condition may date back to an old neck injury. A small pillow is better than a larger one and in some instances relief is obtained by wearing a specially designed head halter that pulls out and relaxes the neck tissues.

There has been quite a hassel between the committees and J. Edgar Hoover on the various functions of the departments. We thought Hoover handled himself better than a life saver in the kiddies' pool.

We meet Mr. Hoover in the elevator over at the Walled-Off Astoria last week. What made it so chummy was we happened to be going in different directions.

We complimented him on good work on the FBI irrespective of politics, nepotism notations or evaporation in transit.

There has been a lot of research work using the Fifth Amendment as an eye chart.

Cowles Brothers' Lobbyist Threatens Rival TV Applicant; Look Publishers Have Inside Track With Ike Where TV Is Concerned

WASHINGTON — Buried in the dull and prosaic files of the Federal Communications Commission is an interesting story of how wires can be pulled in Washington—in this case by powerful GOP publishers. If the FCC record had been made two days before, it's possible that Senator McCarthy's man on the FCC, Robert E. Lee, might not have been confirmed.

But the record illustrates exactly what Senator Monroney of Oklahoma talked about when he led the fight against Lee's confirmation.

In this case, the Washington lobbyist for the Cowles brothers, publishers of Look magazine, the De Moines Register and Tribune and the Minneapolis Star-Journal, tried to buy off a rival applicant for a TV station. Simultaneously he was warned that he didn't have a chance because of Eisenhower's friendship for the Cowles Brothers.

"The Cowles have done a lot for Ike," James Milloy, vice president of the Cowles Publications, was quoted as saying, according to the official FCC record. "The Cowles are in Ike's book. John has just been called to the White House and is going back to Minneapolis to try to persuade Doctor Charlie Mayo to run against Humphrey.

Ike Helps Friends

"Things have changed at the commission (The FCC) recently," boasted the Cowles vice president. "A new commissioner, Mr. Lee, is now on the commission. Larry Fly (former FCC chairman, now attorney for the rival Des Moines applicant), has an ideology that is no longer applicable. Fly thinks things are the same now as they were a few years ago, but things have changed. The old philosophy doesn't hold.

"You know that Mike Cowles is about to leave on a Point 4 trip for Ike in the Middle East. All this stuff about Ike being pure is all right, but you know that when you are in the army, you learn politics," continued the testimony given in the FCC record.

"You don't get to go from lieutenant to a colonel and then to president without knowing about politics. Ike won't let the Cowles get hurt. He won't let them lose out on TV in Des Moines. I know how the wheels turn in Washington, and you don't have one chance in ten."

News Monopolies

The man to whom lobbyist Jim Milloy gave this warning was Kingsley H. Murphy Jr., 23-year-old head of the Murphy Broadcasting Company in Des Moines. Murphy's father had once owned the Minneaoplis Tribune but was forced to sell out to the Cowles brothers, who now have a monopoly of all newspapers in Minneapolis and also in Des Moines. In addition, the Cowles brothers own a television station in Sioux City, Iowa, KUTV, and two radio stations, WNAX in Yankton, S. D., and KRNT, the CBS station in Des Moines.

At one time Gardner Cowles Sr., founder of the newspaper empire, advised his sons against owning radio stations. He felt that to monopolize all mediums of news in a city was unhealthy and created ill will. However, the two boys, departing from that policy, are now applying for TV Channel 8 in Des Moines, with young Murphy, whose family they bought out in Minneapolis, also applying for the same channel.

Milloy, the Cowles vice president, who admonished Murphy that he didn't have a chance, is the same operator who arranged with the Eisenhower administration to appoint Fleur Cowles, wife of Mike Cowles, editor of Look, as special ambassador to Queen Elizabeth's coronation. Shortly thereafter, a feature story, building up Vice President Nixon, appeared in Look.

Stubborn Young Man

During the FCC hearings for Channel 8 in Des Moines, young Murphy obviously made a better showing. In the middle of the hearings, he got a phone message from Milloy at his hotel asking to see him, and later Milloy took him aside for a long talk in which he offered Murphy around $150,000 if he would withdraw his application leaving the field clear to Cowles.

Milloy held out various inducements, such as the glamor of living in New York and working for Look, plus the prospects of advancement in the Cowles organization.

"I used to live in New York and don't particularly like it," young Murphy replied. "I prefer Des Moines."

"Some of the executives at the top of the Cowles organization are getting old," Milloy argued. "Luther Hill (editor of the Des Moines Register) is 65. There are opportunties at the top."

"We have worked hard on TV," young Murphy replied, "we intend to run a good TV station in Des Moines and your proposal of $150,000 to get out is only a pay-off which I don't approve of."

"But there are terrific opportunities in Des Moines," argued Milloy. "And it's important for Luther Hill to get a young crew to take over from th older men."

Milloy went on to talk about a merger, in which the Murphy interests would own about 12 per cent or even 15 per cent of the TV station. Young Murphy replied that if there was going to be a merger, the Cowles brothers would have to take the 15 per cent.

Milloy didn't like this at all.

"The Cowles," he said, "have too much at stake to take a minority interest, though a management contract might be worked out."

Finally, when the Cowles lobbyist was able to get nowhere he threw out his veiled threat that the Federal Communications Commission had changed, was now subject to pressure, and that Ike, who understood politics, would never let the Cowles brothers "lose out on television in Des Moines."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Coffee And Beer

When recently I suggested that if coffee is too expensive, tea might be used, I also said that if tea becomes costly, we might switch to beer for breakfast. Whereupon my mail became swollen with anger.

First of all, the milk people set forth the argument that milk, cream, butter and cheese supply the essentials of any breakfast. There can be no two ways about that, provided one enjoys milk, etc. My own objection to milk and milk products is that I like them too rich and too much. Given a free hand at any refrigerator, I can put on 20 or 30 pounds in almost no time. Skimmed milk I do not like.

The Chinese prefer "Chuk" for breakfast. For many years I ate "Chuk," occasionally with cut-up bits of doughnut-like cake. "Chuk," if properly made, is a rice and chicken soup cooked for many hours until it is a thick gruel. When I used to cook it, I would include bits of fresh ginger and lotus hearts.

Some of my correspondents quarreled with me about beer at the breakfast table. My severest critics were those who attributed to me such virtuous perfections as no man should possess. Nevertheless, here is a very early breakfast food, used for centuries before Europeans tried coffee which was propagated by returning Crusaders who encountered the liquid.

"The English House-Wife," published in London in 1649, tells how oatmeal might be used for breakfast:

"Some eat it with hony, which is reputed the best sauce; some with Wine, either Sacke, Claret or White; some with strong Beere or strong Ale, and some with Milke as your ability or the accommodations of the place will administer."

I have never tried beer or oatmeal and suspect that I never shall, but I produce this paragraph from E. Parmalee Prentice's learned book, "Farming for Famine," as evidence that human being have used beer as a breakfast food. Coffee for breakfast came in some time at the beginning of the 17th Century but was used without milk, as it still is in Oriental countries. In fact, milk was for many centuries dreaded in most parts of Europe and in some parts of Asia is still not used. In China, the curds of the soy bean are preferred even to this day.

I received a letter from one reader complaining bitterly that I was misleading mankind by suggesting tea as a breakfast food when, according to this reader, everybody knows that coffee is "the universal breakfast beverage." How vain can mortals be? More than half the human race uses tea not only for breakfast but as its principal hot beverage. In fact, the entire Soviet Universal State is tea-drinking, the Russians having contracted the habit from the Chinese many centuries ago. The caravans that carried tea from Hankow to all the cities of Russia were famed in the days of the czars and the greatest merchants were those who dealt in tea. Odessa, celebrated for wheat, was also a tea port, as Boston, Philadelphia and New York were at the time of the American Revolution.

In my youth, coffee was cooked, as it is now in some parts of Europe and in New Orleans, with chicory, which fortifies the coffee, making it possible to purchase less expensive brands without losing the flavor. In fact, those who like coffee with chicory care for no other. Out of this brew is made coffee au lait, to mix a couple of languages. This is a delightful beverage which reduces the cost of coffee considerably as half the cup is boiling hot milk. The milk and coffee are poured into the cup simultaneously. Viennese coffee au lait is usually regarded as the best, possibly because the milk is so rich, although I enjoy the New Orleans variety, particularly if fresh doughnuts are dunked in it.

There is one queer thing about the present coffee crisis: while prices are going up because Brazilian coffee bushes suffered a frost, there is no shortage of coffee in the stores. If there is no shortage of coffee, why should the price go up? It is difficult to understand the economics of that because generally price reflects the law of supply and demand. Perhaps in the middle of the 20th Century everything is topsy-turvy because politicians, not merchants, move the goods that we use.

Matter Of Fact

Ike's New Leadership

WASHINGTON

The Bricker Amendment fight is something more than a political hassle about a great constitutional issue. It is the first serious test of President Eisenhower's new-style leadership, the end of the story is still to be told, but enough has already happened to make the test remarkably impressive.

When the struggle began last year, there were two main dangers. First there was the danger that the President would be too disinclined to oppose the apparent will of Congress. If he had continued his Pontius Pilate line, saying "I care for none of these things," the Bricker Amendment would have overwhelmed the opposition to it.

Second, there was the more complex danger that the President, having decided that the Bricker amendment must be beaten, would tackle the job the wrong way.

At bottom, the amendment is an expression of the distrust of the executive power that 20 years of Roosevelt and Truman instilled in almost all Republicans and the majority of southern Democrats. Last year, the distrust was still intense, even although the White House had changed hands. That is the real reason why Senator Bricker was able to get a full two-thirds of his fellow senators to act as his amendment's co-sponsors.

If Eisenhower had tried to beat the amendment the wrong way—if he had been rigid and brutal and instransigent—he might still have defeated Senator Bricker. But he would have ensured a maximum vote for Bricker. He would have had to depend on the Democrats and the Democrats alone to rescue him from the Republican extremists. And within the Republican party, he would have generated the kind of bitterness and ill feeling that all the Democrats have been hopefully predicting.

Bricker Support Dropped

Instead, the President has been firm but never rigid, clear as to principle but always ready to give any amount of time to discussing language and procedure. As a result, he has disappointed the Democratic hopes and altogether out-maneuvered his enemies in his own party.

Poor Senator Bricker is very much hurt that he has not been allowed to have his own way with the Constitution of the United States. Such Bricker allies as Senators Welker and Malone are grumbling, as usual, about State Department plots. But no one is bitter now except the bitterenders, who will go on being bitter unless President Eisenhower chooses to imitate President Harding.

More important still, Senators Knowland and Ferguson are confident that the last-ditch Republican support for the Bricker Amendment has dropped to somewhere between 15 and 18 votes. Even with the help of the most conservative southern Democrats, Bricker will hardly have a third of the Senate in his corner, instead of the sure two-thirds he thought he had. And Bricker himself has already, in effect, admitted his own plight by suddenly dropping the famous "which" clause.

Behind this really signal success, there is a story that might be called the "education of a president." When Eisenhower entered the White House, he had not thought very much about the functions, problems and prerogatives of the greatest elective office in the world. This was the period when he used to say of Congress, "I speak my piece, and after that, it's up to them." This was also the period when he briskly pulled the rug out from under Senator Wiley, after poor Wiley had courageously announced his undying opposition to the Bricker Amendment.

Trial Of Strength

Even in this period, however, Eisenhower clearly had his doubts about the incomplete concept of the presidency that he brought to the White House. In his methodical way, he even went back to the founders for light on the problem, making a careful study of the "Federalist" papers. Probably he had not made up his mind to be absolutely firm against the Bricker Amendment when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made his weighty case against it before the Judiciary Committee last April.

April was still the time when the President was letting members of the administration decide major issues for him, without feeling absolutely committed by the decision. During last spring, however, the President and Secretary of State Dulles went over the problem in the most minute detail. Eisenhower was studying every aspect with the care that has since allowed him to surprise the senatorial lawyers by his constitutional knowledge. The end result was the President's own strong statement against the amendment last June, and from that all else followed.

The delay in tackling the problem head-on has certainly increased the difficulty of the present fight. In the interval, a kind of coalition of patrioteers has been organized by Tom Coleman of Wisconsin, the original McCarthy backer, who is authoritatively said to be the strategist-behind-the-scenes in the present fight. Vast sums of money have been poured out for propaganda. The struggle has been transformed into a sort of trial of strength between Eisenhower and the Republican extremists.

Maybe the trial would not have turned out so well, if Eisenhower had not been so patient as well as so firm; and if Senator Knowland and Senator Ferguson had not handled their end of the problem really well. So far, however, the President and his Senate leaders have made the extremists look pretty sick.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — With Republicans striving hard to develop unity in their party, the big unanswered question in American politics today is when the Democrats are going to do the same thing. The problem really is whether the Democratic party will take to heart the true meaning of its defeat in 1952 or whether it is going to insist stubbornly on pursuing the same ill-fated course and suffer further defeats.

For the Democratic party has to choose between the discredited and depreciated leadership of former President Truman and a new leadership that will recover the prestige the Democratic party once had before it became the tool of special interests and the champion of privileged groups.

Demos Haven't Faced Up

Today the Democratic party cannot count on the support of voters on the farms or independents in the cities because the party appears to be owned by labor-union bosses who furnish most of the campaign funds and campaign workers. Also the Democratic party today cannot count on the support of the vast number of voters who think a coverup job was done by the Truman administration on Communists in the government. Nor is the party likely, without some evidence of repentence, to win the support of the citizens who think corruption and lax administrative practices were not ferreted out by the Truman administration.

The chief trouble with the Democratic party strategists is that they have not faced up to the necessity of ridding their party of Trumanism — a far worse form of demagoguery than McCarthyism as portrayed by the anti-McCarthyites. It is ironical, for instance, to hear various Democratic leaders in Congress protesting indignantly about the "dastardly" attacks of a general nature on the Democratic party made by Republican speakers, though not a syllable of protest ever came from the same sources when Mr. Truman was going up and down the land in the last campaign making attacks on both the patriotism and integrity of Dwight Eisenhower. Two wrongs, of course, do not make a right — and hence any attacks by Republicans today on Democrats as a party for being too soft on the Communist in government are as reprehensible as the attacks Mr. Truman has been making. There were many Democrats in Congress like Senator McCarran of Nevada who gave Communist sympathizers no quarter.

It sounds childish for certain Democratic spokesmen in Congress, on the other hand, to say they will not support some of Mr. Eisenhower's worthy legislative proposals just because some of his lieutenants are making speeches attacking the Democrats. If the recommendations the President has made to Congress are really meritorious, it would seem illogical for any elected member of Congress to reject them just because of personal or political pique.

Should Not be Issue

The truth is the Democratic party leadership has not repudiated the mistakes of the Truman administration. Instead of deploring the fact that Harry Detxer White was permitted to stay on in the government notwithstanding the damaging FBI reports of 1945 and 1946 and also Mr. Truman's two letters of commendation of White after the essential facts were available, the Democratic startegists have undertaken either to smear Attorney General Brownell personally or to pooh-pooh the charges altogether. The right approach should have been to condemn all the Harry Detxer Whites as having betrayed the confidence imposed in them and to point out the steps that were taken to eradicate Communists in in government. This should never have been nor should it be a partisan political issue.

The Democratic party is still regarded by many people as a worthy institution which deserves to be given an opportunity some day to come into power in the executive as well as the legislative branches of the government. But to win such a victory the Democratic party cannot allow itself to become the party of Socialist saboteurs who, under the pretense of being "liberal," want to bring on the economic chaos that would ultimately invite a destruction of human rights as well as property rights.

It is a curious thing that not a single Democrat anywhere who is being considered in the North as presidential timber has had the courage to adopt a conservatively liberal program or to take issue with the radicals in the party who now feel they can count on both Truman and Stevenson to keep the Democratic party on the radical side of the fence.

Control Of Coffee Exchange?

Coffee may soon be among the commodities covered by the federal Commodities Exchange Act. The Commodity Exchange Authority, which now exercises control over futures trading in 19 agricultural commodities, would be granted similar control over futures trading in coffee in U. S. commodity markets by a bill unanimously reported by the Senate Agriculture Committee on February 3. The primary U. S. coffee exchange is in New York City, but prices set there for coffee futures inevitably affect cash (present) prices, and hence retail prices, throughout the nation.

The basic legislation providing federal control of commodity exchanges was the Grain Futures Act of 1922, greatly strengthened and clarified by the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, and subsequently amended from time to time to extend federal control to additional commodities. The legislation prohibits price manipulation and cornering of a commodity, cheating or defrauding of customers, making false reports to customers, disseminating false crop or market information, certain other practices and transactions deemed undesirable by Congress.

The law now authorizes CEA regulation of futures trading in basic grains, and in cotton, rice, butter, eggs, Irish potatoes, peanuts, soybeans, fats and oils, and other commodities, 20 in all. In rice, the authorized control over trading was not exercised in the past year because of the inactivity of rice futures. Seventeen commodity exchanges throughout the nation are licensed as contract markets under the law.

The major city exchanges and boards of trade set their own margin requirements and daily limits for price fluctuation in commodities, following a policy of self-policing. Such measures have been taken by the New York Coffee Exchange, not as yet under federal control. The CEA fixes limits for licensed exchanges on the amount of speculative purchases or sales by a trader on one day and the amount of his speculative holdings of futures.

The relationship between futures prices and cash prices is outlined by the Commodity Exchange Authority report for 1953: "Futures prices are the basis for cash prices not only in the large terminal markets but also in hundreds of local markets and country points where farmers sell their crops." Similarly, futures prices are the basis for the eventual price of a commodity to the consumer.

How effective federal control of trading in coffee futures might be remains a question. CEA Administrator Mehl on February 2 told the Agriculture Committee that federal supervision could stop unwarranted rises in coffee prices. But he pointed out, as had coffee industry representatives, that the CEA had no power to do anything about the price-fixing, production, or production controls in foreign countries. Coffee would be the first primarily import commodity to be placed under federal control in this manner.

Moreover, the CEA would have little power to control the dissemination of false crop information on a commodity grown in another country. Nor would it have, for coffee, the accurate reports of the CEA's parent agency, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, to fall back on.

"Rattling The Bomb"

Jingoists formerly "rattled the saber" and soberminded Americans found it a reprehensible practice. Now, says Secretary of Defense Wilson, there is a "rattling of the atomic bomb." He did not suggest this was a new manifestation of jingoism, but thought it should be toned down.

One of the big differences between a totalitarian state and a republic is that the government of a republic must take its people into its confidence. Public discussion of defense preparations is essential, but it can react to disadvantage in the face of totalitarian secrecy.

The Soviet Union is working just as hard to build up stockpiles of atomic weapons, but says little about it. Instead, it talks about its "peaceful" intentions.

No nation is more desirous of peace than the United States. But U. S. spokesmen find it necessary—both to reassure Americans and to give the Communists no reason to miscalculate—to warn of "massive retaliation" in event this nation is attacked. It is obvious that atomic bombs are in mind both as weapons of attack and of retaliation.

In the judgment of officialdom this much is necessary. It does not imply that Washington is ready to pour out destruction at the least provocation. Merely that the country is prepared for the worst.

But when Mr. Wilson suggests that it can safely be left to authorized spokesmen to give whatever warnings are required, is he attempting to imply that Americans should permit their government officials to do all their thinking for them?

Now It's Potato Prices

Potato growers open in Washington on Thursday a two-day conference with Secretary of Agriculture Benson on what can be done, if anything, about the present low price of potatoes. President Eisenhower recently signed legislation making ineffective an act of 1950 restricting the government price support that could be given them.

In 1950 the government price supports had dumped on Uncle Sam many more potatoes than could possibly be used. By the end of 1950 price supports for potatoes over the years had cost the Treasury something like half a billion dollars.

But in 1951, with price support restricted, land planted to potatoes dropped by about one-half, and the tuber became as scarce as it had been abundant. After consumer price controls ended, potatoes shot up to 10-12 cents a pound at retail, twice what they had been 12 months before. Housewives muttered about boycotting spuds unless and until the price fell.

It fell, all right. Whereas the average city retail price had been around nine cents a pound early in 1952, at the end of 1953 it was 4½ cents.

In May 1952 farmers were getting over $2 a bushel for potatoes. At the end of 1953 the average farm price was around 90 cents a bushel, as against the parity price of $1.60.

Food poisoning differs in that every one who eats the same meal becomes ill at the same time. Dr. Hodges concluded that persona contact was a factor; and because of the friendly nature of children, it was no wonder the illness was prevalent among them.

Treatment seldom was necessary although the majority felt better when confined to bed. Loss of fluid caused intense thirst but this was counteracted by taking small sips of water, ginger ale, or tea rather than larger amounts which aggravated distress. Ice chips also helped because they melted slowly in the mouth. There is no substitute for paregoric when cramping occurs. Few required other medication and practically every one felt better at the end of 24 to 48 hours. When the bout lasted longer, some other type of infection was responsible.

TOMORROW: Frostbitten limbs.

NECK PAIN

H. T. writes: What would cause a "crick" in the neck on the left side? I changed to a different type of pillow but still have trouble.

REPLY

This symptom is usually associated with arthritis of nearby vertebrae, slipped disk, or inflammation of the surrounding muscles and ligaments (muscular rheumatism). The condition may date back to an old neck injury. A small pillow is better than a larger one and in some instances relief is obtained by wearing a specially designed head halter that pulls out and relaxes the neck tissues.

Your Shadow Sees You

If anybody sees his shadow today it will be an FBI man.

There has been quite a hassel between the committees and J. Edgar Hoover on the various functions of the departments. We thought Hoover handled himself better than a life saver in the kiddies' pool.

We meet Mr. Hoover in the elevator over at the Walled-Off Astoria last week. What made it so chummy w.s we happened to be going in different directions.

We complimented him on good work on the FBI irrespective of politics, nepotism notations or evaporation in transit.

There has been a lot of research work using the Fifth Amendment as an eye chart.

Some of its has come up with chewing gum under the table. Most of the investigation has been as vital as the spark plug in a one-cycle engine.

Cowles Brothers' Lobbyist Threatens Rival TV Applicant; Look Publishers Have Inside Track With Ike Where TV Is Concerned

WASHINGTON — Buried in the dull and prosaic files of the Federal Communications Commission is an interesting story of how wires can be pulled in Washington—in this case by powerful GOP publishers. If the FCC record had been made two days before, it's possible that Senator McCarthy's man on the FCC, Robert E. Lee, might not have been confirmed.

But the record illustrates exactly what Senator Monroney of Oklahoma talked about when he led the fight against Lee's confirmation.

In this case, the Washington lobbyist for the Cowles brothers, publishers of Look magazine, the De Moines Register and Tribune and the Minneapolis Star-Journal, tried to buy off a rival applicant for a TV station. Simultaneously he was warned that he didn't have a chance because of Eisenhower's friendship for the Cowles Brothers.

"The Cowles have done a lot for Ike," James Milloy, vice president of the Cowles Publications, was quoted as saying, according to the official FCC record. "The Cowles are in Ike's book. John has just been called to the White House and is going back to Minneapolis to try to persuade Doctor Charlie Mayo to run against Humphrey.

Ike Helps Friends

"Things have changed at the commission (The FCC) recently," boasted the Cowles vice president. "A new commissioner, Mr. Lee, is now on the commission. Larry Fly (former FCC chairman, now attorney for the rival Des Moines applicant), has an ideology that is no longer applicable. Fly thinks things are the same now as they were a few years ago, but things have changed. The old philosophy doesn't hold.

"You know that Mike Cowles is about to leave on a Point 4 trip for Ike in the Middle East. All this stuff about Ike being pure is all right, but you know that when you are in the army, you learn politics," continued the testimony given in the FCC record.

"You don't get to go from lieutenant to a colonel and then to president without knowing about politics. Ike won't let the Cowles get hurt. He won't let them lose out on TV in Des Moines. I know how the wheels turn in Washington, and you don't have one chance in ten."

News Monopolies

The man to whom lobbyist Jim Milloy gave this warning was Kingsley H. Murphy Jr., 23-year-old head of the Murphy Broadcasting Company in Des Moines. Murphy's father had once owned the Minneaoplis Tribune but was forced to sell out to the Cowles brothers, who now have a monopoly of all newspapers in Minneapolis and also in Des Moines. In addition, the Cowles brothers own a television station in Sioux City, Iowa, KUTV, and two radio stations, WNAX in Yankton, S. D., and KRNT, the CBS station in Des Moines.

At one time Gardner Cowles Sr., founder of the newspaper empire, advised his sons against owning radio stations. He felt that to monopolize all mediums of news in a city was unhealthy and created ill will. However, the two boys, departing from that policy, are now applying for TV Channel 8 in Des Moines, with young Murphy, whose family they bought out in Minneapolis, also applying for the same channel.

Milloy, the Cowles vice president, who admonished Murphy that he didn't have a chance, is the same operator who arranged with the Eisenhower administration to appoint Fleur Cowles, wife of Mike Cowles, editor of Look, as special ambassador to Queen Elizabeth's coronation. Shortly thereafter, a feature story, building up Vice President Nixon, appeared in Look.

Stubborn Young Man

During the FCC hearings for Channel 8 in Des Moines, young Murphy obviously made a better showing. In the middle of the hearings, he got a phone message from Milloy at his hotel asking to see him, and later Milloy took him aside for a long talk in which he offered Murphy around $150,000 if he would withdraw his application leaving the field clear to Cowles.

Milloy held out various inducements, such as the glamor of living in New York and working for Look, plus the prospects of advancement in the Cowles organization.

"I used to live in New York and don't particularly like it," young Murphy replied. "I prefer Des Moines."

"Some of the executives at the top of the Cowles organization are getting old," Milloy argued. "Luther Hill (editor of the Des Moines Register) is 65. There are opportunties at the top."

"We have worked hard on TV," young Murphy replied, "we intend to run a good TV station in Des Moines and your proposal of $150,000 to get out is only a pay-off which I don't approve of."

"But there are terrific opportunities in Des Moines," argued Milloy. "And it's important for Luther Hill to get a young crew to take over from th. older men."

Milloy went on to talk about a merger, in which the Murphy interests would own about 12 per cent or even 15 per cent of the TV station. Young Murphy replied that if there was going to be a merger, the Cowles brothers would have to take the 15 per cent.

Milloy didn't like this at all.

"The Cowles," he said, "have too much at stake to take a minority interest, though a management contract might be worked out."

Finally, when the Cowles lobbyist was able to get nowhere he threw out his veiled threat that the Federal Communications Commission had changed, was now subject to pressure, and that Ike, who understood politics, would never let the Cowles brothers "lose out on television in Des Moines."

Coffee And Beer

When recently I suggested that if coffee is too expensive, tea might be used, I also said that if tea becomes costly, we might switch to beer for breakfast. Whereupon my mail became swollen with anger.

First of all, the milk people set forth the argument that milk, cream, butter and cheese supply the essentials of any breakfast. There can be no two ways about that, provided one enjoys milk, etc. My own objection to milk and milk products is that I like them too rich and too much. Given a free hand at any refrigerator, I can put on 20 or 30 pounds in almost no time. Skimmed milk I do not like.

The Chinese prefer "Chuk" for breakfast. For many years I ate "Chuk," occasionally with cut-up bits of doughnut-like cake. "Chuk," if properly made, is a rice and chicken soup cooked for many hours until it is a thick gruel. When I used to cook it, I would include bits of fresh ginger and lotus hearts.

Some of my correspondents quarreled with me about beer at the breakfast table. My severest critics were those who attributed to me such virtuous perfections as no man should possess. Nevertheless, here is a very early breakfast food, used for centuries before Europeans tried coffee which was propagated by returning Crusaders who encountered the liquid.

"The English House-Wife," published in London in 1649, tells how oatmeal might be used for breakfast:

"Some eat it with hony, which is reputed the best sauce; some with Wine, either Sacke, Claret or White; some with strong Beere or strong Ale, and some with Milke as your ability or the accommodations of the place will administer."

I have never tried beer or oatmeal and suspect that I never shall, but I produce this paragraph from E. Parmalee Prentice's learned book, "Farming for Famine," as evidence that human being have used beer as a breakfast food. Coffee for breakfast came in some time at the beginning of the 17th Century but was used without milk, as it still is in Oriental countries. In fact, milk was for many centuries dreaded in most parts of Europe and in some parts of Asia is still not used. In China, the curds of the soy bean are preferred even to this day.

I received a letter from one reader complaining bitterly that I was misleading mankind by suggesting tea as a breakfast food when, according to this reader, everybody knows that coffee is "the universal breakfast beverage." How vain can mortals be? More than half the human race uses tea not only for breakfast but as its principal hot beverage. In fact, the entire Soviet Universal State is tea-drinking, the Russians having contracted the habit from the Chinese many centuries ago. The caravans that carried tea from Hankow to all the cities of Russia were famed in the days of the czars and the greatest merchants were those who dealt in tea. Odessa, celebrated for wheat, was also a tea port, as Boston, Philadelphia and New York were at the time of the American Revolution.

In my youth, coffee was cooked, as it is now in some parts of Europe and in New Orleans, with chicory, which fortifies the coffee, making it possible to purchase less expensive brands without losing the flavor. In fact, those who like coffee with chicory care for no other. Out of this brew is made coffee au lait, to mix a couple of languages. This is a delightful beverage which reduces the cost of coffee considerably as half the cup is boiling hot milk. The milk and coffee are poured into the cup simultaneously. Viennese coffee au lait is usually regarded as the best, possibly because the milk is so rich, although I enjoy the New Orleans variety, particularly if fresh doughnuts are dunked in it.

There is one queer thing about the present coffee crisis: while prices are going up because Brazilian coffee bushes suffered a frost, there is no shortage of coffee in the stores. If there is no shortage of coffee, why should the price go up? It is difficult to understand the economics of that because generally price reflects the law of supply and demand. Perhaps in the middle of the 20th Century everything is topsy-turvy because politicians, not merchants, move the goods that we use.

Matter Of Fact

Ike's New Leadership

WASHINGTON

The Bricker Amendment fight is something more than a political hassle about a great constitutional issue. It is the first serious test of President Eisenhower's new-style leadership, the end of the story is still to be told, but enough has already happened to make the test remarkably impressive.

When the struggle began last year, there were two main dangers. First there was the danger that the President would be too disinclined to oppose the apparent will of Congress. If he had continued his Pontius Pilate line, saying "I care for none of these things," the Bricker Amendment would have overwhelmed the opposition to it.

Second, there was the more complex danger that the President, having decided that the Bricker amendment must be beaten, would tackle the job the wrong way.

At bottom, the amendment is an expression of the distrust of the executive power that 20 years of Roosevelt and Truman instilled in almost all Republicans and the majority of southern Democrats. Last year, the distrust was still intense, even although the White House had changed hands. That is the real reason why Senator Bricker was able to get a full two-thirds of his fellow senators to act as his amendment's co-sponsors.

If Eisenhower had tried to beat the amendment the wrong way—if he had been rigid and brutal and instransigent—he might still have defeated Senator Bricker. But he would have ensured a maximum vote for Bricker. He would have had to depend on the Democrats and the Democrats alone to rescue him from the Republican extremists. And within the Republican party, he would have generated the kind of bitterness and ill feeling that all the Democrats have been hopefully predicting.

Bricker Support Dropped

Instead, the President has been firm but never rigid, clear as to principle but always ready to give any amount of time to discussing language and procedure. As a result, he has disappointed the Democratic hopes and altogether out-maneuvered his enemies in his own party.

Poor Senator Bricker is very much hurt that he has not been allowed to have his own way with the Constitution of the United States. Such Bricker allies as Senators Welker and Malone are grumbling, as usual, about State Department plots. But no one is bitter now except the bitterenders, who will go on being bitter unless President Eisenhower chooses to imitate President Harding.

More important still, Senators Knowland and Ferguson are confident that the last-ditch Republican support for the Bricker Amendment has dropped to somewhere between 15 and 18 votes. Even with the help of the most conservative southern Democrats, Bricker will hardly have a third of the Senate in his corner, instead of the sure two-thirds he thought he had. And Bricker himself has already, in effect, admitted his own plight by suddenly dropping the famous "which" clause.

Behind this really signal success, there is a story that might be called the "education of a president." When Eisenhower entered the White House, he had not thought very much about the functions, problems and prerogatives of the greatest elective office in the world. This was the period when he used to say of Congress, "I speak my piece, and after that, it's up to them." This was also the period when he briskly pulled the rug out from under Senator Wiley, after poor Wiley had courageously announced his undying opposition to the Bricker Amendment.

Trial Of Strength

Even in this period, however, Eisenhower clearly had his doubts about the incomplete concept of the presidency that he brought to the White House. In his methodical way, he even went back to the founders for light on the problem, making a careful study of the "Federalist" papers. Probably he had not made up his mind to be absolutely firm against the Bricker Amendment when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made his weighty case against it before the Judiciary Committee last April.

April was still the time when the President was letting members of the administration decide major issues for him, without feeling absolutely committed by the decision. During last spring, however, the President and Secretary of State Dulles went over the problem in the most minute detail. Eisenhower was studying every aspect with the care that has since allowed him to surprise the senatorial lawyers by his constitutional knowledge. The end result was the President's own strong statement against the amendment last June, and from that all else followed.

The delay in tackling the problem head-on has certainly increased the difficulty of the present fight. In the interval, a kind of coalition of patrioteers has been organized by Tom Coleman of Wisconsin, the original McCarthy backer, who is authoritatively said to be the strategist-behind-the-scenes in the present fight. Vast sums of money have been poured out for propaganda. The struggle has been transformed into a sort of trial of strength between Eisenhower and the Republican extremists.

Maybe the trial would not have turned out so well, if Eisenhower had not been so patient as well as so firm; and if Senator Knowland and Senator Ferguson had not handled their end of the problem really well. So far, however, the President and his Senate leaders have made the extremists look pretty sick.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — With Republicans striving hard to develop unity in their party, the big unanswered question in American politics today is when the Democrats are going to do the same thing. The problem really is whether the Democratic party will take to heart the true meaning of its defeat in 1952 or whether it is going to insist stubbornly on pursuing the same ill-fated course and suffer further defeats.

For the Democratic party has to choose between the discredited and depreciated leadership of former President Truman and a new leadership that will recover the prestige the Democratic party once had before it became the tool of special interests and the champion of privileged groups.

Demos Haven't Faced Up

Today the Democratic party cannot count on the support of voters on the farms or independents in the cities because the party appears to be owned by labor-union bosses who furnish most of the campaign funds and campaign workers. Also the Democratic party today cannot count on the support of the vast number of voters who think a coverup job was done by the Truman administration on Communists in the government. Nor is the party likely, without some evidence of repentence, to win the support of the citizens who think corruption and lax administrative practices were not ferreted out by the Truman administration.

The chief trouble with the Democratic party strategists is that they have not faced up to the necessity of ridding their party of Trumanism — a far worse form of demagoguery than McCarthyism as portrayed by the anti-McCarthyites. It is ironical, for instance, to hear various Democratic leaders in Congress protesting indignantly about the "dastardly" attacks of a general nature on the Democratic party made by Republican speakers, though not a syllable of protest ever came from the same sources when Mr. Truman was going up and down the land in the last campaign making attacks on both the patriotism and integrity of Dwight Eisenhower. Two wrongs, of course, do not make a right — and hence any attacks by Republicans today on Democrats as a party for being too soft on the Communist in government are as reprehensible as the attacks Mr. Truman has been making. There were many Democrats in Congress like Senator McCarran of Nevada who gave Communist sympathizers no quarter.

It sounds childish for certain Democratic spokesmen in Congress, on the other hand, to say they will not support some of Mr. Eisenhower's worthy legislative proposals just because some of his lieutenants are making speeches attacking the Democrats. If the recommendations the President has made to Congress are really meritorious, it would seem illogical for any elected member of Congress to reject them just because of personal or political pique.

Should Not be Issue

The truth is the Democratic party leadership has not repudiated the mistakes of the Truman administration. Instead of deploring the fact that Harry Detxer White was permitted to stay on in the government notwithstanding the damaging FBI reports of 1945 and 1946 and also Mr. Truman's two letters of commendation of White after the essential facts were available, the Democratic startegists have undertaken either to smear Attorney General Brownell personally or to pooh-pooh the charges altogether. The right approach should have been to condemn all the Harry Detxer Whites as having betrayed the confidence imposed in them and to point out the steps that were taken to eradicate Communists in in government. This should never have been nor should it be a partisan political issue.

The Democratic party is still regarded by many people as a worthy institution which deserves to be given an opportunity some day to come into power in the executive as well as the legislative branches of the government. But to win such a victory the Democratic party cannot allow itself to become the party of Socialist saboteurs who, under the pretense of being "liberal," want to bring on the economic chaos that would ultimately invite a destruction of human rights as well as property rights.

It is a curious thing that not a single Democrat anywhere who is being considered in the North as presidential timber has had the courage to adopt a conservatively liberal program or to take issue with the radicals in the party who now feel they can count on both Truman and Stevenson to keep the Democratic party on the radical side of the fence.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

The budget for the operation of your government for the next fiscal year has been presented to Congress, and it differs in two major respects with the budgets of previous presidents.

It differs in its basic philosophy and approach to government spending and financing. It differs in cost by some five billions of dollars. Both will affect your pocket book.

President Eisenhower's budget has been called an "armed peace" budget—and to a great degree that is an accurate description. In any discussion of our national budget one of the first things to realize is that 68 cents out of every tax dollar spent goes to national defense.

That such a huge expenditure is necessary is not the fault of the administration, or desire on the part of the American people—it is dictated by the threat of Communist aggression.

Of the 32 cents remaining in the tax dollar, 22 cents is spent on charges fixed by law such as veterans benefits, interest, and assistance to the various states.

Only 10 cents of your tax dollar remains for the operation of your government and for the services which the American people want their federal government to provide. Obviously, if the fixed charges, and expenditures for defense, could be cut, the federal budget would snap into balance and the national debt and taxes could be quickly reduced. Such miracles are not apt to happen.

Of the tax dollar your government receives, 43 cents from individual income taxes, 31 cents from corporate income taxes, 16 cents from excise taxes, six cents from customs and other taxes, and four cents from borrowing.

The objective of the Eisenhower administration and the majority in Congress is to balance the budget, and as Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said recently, "You can't change the course of events of 20 years in 20 minutes, or in 20 days or 20 weeks, or I'm afraid, in 20 months . . . this whole thing has to be taken into account and moved slowly so as not to upset the balance in our economy. You have a very delicate machine in this economic machine of ours, and if you go moving it too rapidly, you can readily upset it."

Radical changes in any direction could prove disasterous, so the aim is for twin goals—tax reductions and a balanced budget.

Cutting expenditures by over five billion enabled the administration to bring the budget within three billion dollars of balance. This advance toward a balanced budget will permit tax reductions totaling 1.25 billion dollars.

These savings and tax reductions mean that the American people will have more take-home pay—the average person will still think his taxes are too high — no one wants to pay taxes—but at least he is assured that progress is being made. That is a major difference which taxpayers will be aware of during the next fiscal year.

In the long range view, the difference in basic philosophy between the New Deal-Fair Deal approach and the Eisenhower method will have greater significance.

An economic philosophy unconcerned with taxes, debt, and spending encouraged inflation and compelled government participation in, and stimulation of industry. This necessitated government controls and planning. Such theories have been tossed out and in place we have the economic theory as stated by the President that his recommended tax proposals "will encourage the initiative and investment which stimulate production and productivity and create bigger payrolls and more and better jobs."

Secretary Humphrey explained it to interrogators this way—"The release of this money, the tax money that is being turned back to the taxpayers, just think of it, it's between five and six billion dollars. That is beginning in January, that's being turned back to the people to have to spend. We've increased the buying power by that amount of money. That will be a great stimulant to business..." Mr. Humphrey explained that most Americans depend on a sound and prospering business community for their daily earnings. He said, "They live on that, and things that help business, to help jobs, to give more tools for people to earn more money with, are the things that keep our economy going. That's the way America moves ahead, and things that stimulate business and activity and initiative and development are the things that give more money to the people as a whole to raise their standards of living with."

Many a theoretical economist would immediately spot that the secretary of the treasury ended his sentence with a preposition, but the average person will be more interested in his philosophy; which is, that in a thriving prosperous America there can be plenty for all.

Will Rogers, whose keen sense of humor made the depression of the thirties more bearable, once had a visitor right before lunch. Will, knowing that his friend had been out of work, kindly asked, "Have you et yet?"

"You shouldn't say 'et', Will," his friend replied, "to be correct you say 'Have you eaten, yet'."

"I know a lot of people these days," the humorist answered, "who say eaten, but who haven't et."

The 322 islands in Britain's Fiji colony spread over almost 100,000 square miles of the southwest Pacific.

B&O Net Income Shows Increase

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad had a higher net income during 1953 than it did during the previous year.

The railroad reported for the year ending December 31, 1953, a net income of $28,032.933, an increase of $724,105 over a year earlier.

Gross operating revenues for last year amounted to $460,848,986, up to $18,172,312 over the 1952 total.

Railway operating expenses of $366,066,149 were $14,548,343 higher than in the previous year.

Railway tax accruals came to $34,652,252 in 1953, an increase of $182,430 compared with 1952.

Declining freight revenues along with a lesser decrease in operating expenses resulted in a drop in net income for December to $2,513,062 from $3,308,903 a year earlier.

Gross operating revenues of $33,100,012 for the final month of 1953 were down $3,122, 926 from December last year. Railway operating expenses for the month were $28,670,208, a decrease of $1,407.771.

Net income was computed after fixed and contingent interest charges but before deductions for capital and sinking funds.

Radical changes in any direction could prove disasterous, so the aim is for twin goals—tax reductions and a balanced budget.

Cutting expenditures by over five billion enabled the administration to bring the budget within three billion dollars of balance. This advance toward a balanced budget will permit tax reductions totaling 1.25 billion dollars.

These savings and tax reductions mean that the American people will have more take-home pay—the average person will still think his taxes are too high — no one wants to pay taxes—but at least he is assured that progress is being made. That is a major difference which taxpayers will be aware of during the next fiscal year.

In the long range view, the difference in basic philosophy between the New Deal-Fair Deal approach and the Eisenhower method will have greater significance.

An economic philosophy unconcerned with taxes, debt, and spending encouraged inflation and compelled government participation in, and stimulation of industry. This necessitated government controls and planning. Such theories have been tossed out and in place we have the economic theory as stated by the President that his recommended tax proposals "will encourage the initiative and investment which stimulate production and productivity and create bigger payrolls and more and better jobs."

Secretary Humphrey explained it to interrogators this way—"The release of this money, the tax money that is being turned back to the taxpayers, just think of it, it's between five and six billion dollars. That is beginning in January, that's being turned back to the people to have to spend. We've increased the buying power by that amount of money. That will be a great stimulant to business..." Mr. Humphrey explained that most Americans depend on a sound and prospering business community for their daily earnings. He said, "They live on that, and things that help business, to help jobs, to give more tools for people to earn more money with, are the things that keep our economy going. That's the way America moves ahead, and things that stimulate business and activity and initiative and development are the things that give more money to the people as a whole to raise their standards of living with."

Many a theoretical economist would immediately spot that the secretary of the treasury ended his sentence with a preposition, but the average person will be more interested in his philosophy; which is, that in a thriving prosperous America there can be plenty for all.

Will Rogers, whose keen sense of humor made the depression of the thirties more bearable, once had a visitor right before lunch. Will, knowing that his friend had been out of work, kindly asked, "Have you et yet?"

"You shouldn't say 'et', Will," his friend replied, "to be correct you say 'Have you eaten, yet'."

"I know a lot of people these days," the humorist answered, "who say eaten, but who haven't et."

B&O Net Income Shows Increase

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad had a higher net income during 1953 than it did during the previous year.

The railroad reported for the year ending December 31, 1953, a net income of $28,032.933, an increase of $724,105 over a year earlier.

Gross operating revenues for last year amounted to $460,848,986, up to $18,172,312 over the 1952 total.

Railway operating expenses of $366,066,149 were $14,548,343 higher than in the previous year.

Railway tax accruals came to $34,652,252 in 1953, an increase of $182,430 compared with 1952.

Declining freight revenues along with a lesser decrease in operating expenses resulted in a drop in net income for December to $2,513,062 from $3,308,903 a year earlier.

Gross operating revenues of $33,100,012 for the final month of 1953 were down $3,122, 926 from December last year. Railway operating expenses for the month were $28,670,208, a decrease of $1,407,771.

Net income was computed after fixed and contingent interest charges but before deductions for capital and sinking funds.

Soroptimist Club Completes Plans For Benefit Dance

The Soroptimist Club completed plans for a benefit dance and inaugurated a membership drive at the luncheon meeting yesterday at Sheehe's Restaurant.

The slogan for the dance, February 26, is "Let's Help Them See and Walk." This year the project for the club is to help eye conservation for the aged and to aid crippled children. The dance is being held at Ali Ghan Country Club, with music by Jimmy Andrews and his Orchestra from 9 until 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Mildred Young is chairman of the dance with Mrs. Hazel Deffenbaugh, co-chairman; Mrs. Ella Everstine and Miss Olive Hurlburt, Publicity; Mrs. Mary Matthews, Tickets; Mrs. Fay Stillwagon, Miss Jeanette Bonig, Decorations; Mrs. Blanche Ridgeway, Prizes, and Mrs. May Tomilson, Program. Tickets may be procured from any member of the club, or at Curl's Camera Shop, the Darling Shop or Seifert's Furniture Store.

Reviewing the qualifications for membership in the club, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinds said there are 116 major classifications. A goal was set to obtain one new member a month. There are 28 members now.

Members signed the petition asking for the Cumberland bicentennial stamp. Plans were made to have a mock election at the March meeting, in preparation for the election in April. A special meeting will be held February 16 at Sheehe's Restaurant. Eighteen members attended.

Short Gap firemen and auxiliary will hold a ham supper Saturday from 5 until 8 at the fire hall.

Elaine Palmer Heads Young Republican Club Of County

The Young Republican Club of Allegany County elected officers and three members to the executive board at the meeting last evening at Central YMCA.

Mrs. Elaine Palmer was elected president; Mrs. George Hughes Jr., vice president; Miss Wanda Frobes, secretary, and Donald W. Mason, treasurer.

The three executive board members are George Hughes Jr., James Getty and Miss Patricia Golden. They will meet one half hour before the general meeting.

Mr. Mason and Mr. Hughes were appointed to revise the by-laws and present the amendments at the next meeting.

The club voted to obtain a standing membership at the Y as a group. Some social events, which will be open to the public, will be planned at the meeting March 9. Members were asked to have suggestions ready. Mrs. Palmer will appoint her committees and chairmen at this time also.

Mr. Hughes spoke of the significance of the Lincoln Day dinner, February 18 at Centre Street Methodist Church hall, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. Reminding the group that this is election year, he urged all attend. Governor McKeldin, Senator J. Glenn Beall, and Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde will attend.

WIFE PRESERVERS

If you put your nylon stockings into a jar half full of soapsuds, cap the jar and shake it until the suds have thoroughly cleaned the stockings, then use the same method for rinsing, there is no chance of having a fingernail snag the threads.

Allegany County Beauticians Committees For Year Named

The Allegany Unit of the Maryland State Hairdressers and Cosmetologists favored having the national convention in Baltimore in 1956, and an invitation was sent to have the quarterly meeting of the state group here September 19. The next state meeting will be March 21, the place to be announced.

Mrs. Alberta Lindner was re-elected unit vice president, to represent the local group at the state meetings. Mrs. Lindner read a letter from Mrs. Leona Mason, secretary of the state association, that an executive meeting will be held at the Beauty Salon of Mrs. Inez McGeach February 21. Mrs. Lindner was named chairman of the National Beauty Salon Week, February 22 to 28. The local observance will open with a group visiting Sylvan Retreat. Those going are Mrs. Esther Smith, Mrs. Lindner, Mrs. Pauline Smith and Mrs. Virginia Sunderlin.

The meeting was held at Central YMCA, with Mrs. Esther Smith presiding. She appointed the committees. They are Public Relations and Legislature, Mrs. Lindner, chairman; Herbert Broll, co-chairman; Mrs. Vanda Kirby, Miss Nyna Fey, Mrs. Edith Crabtree, Mrs. Novella Duncan, Mrs. Gladys Tewell, John Taylor; Entertainment, Miss Elsie Henry, chairman, Mrs. Leonora Young, Mrs. Eloise Ack; Membership, Edith Crabtree, Eloise Ack, Ruby Griffith; Sunshine, Pauline Smith; Historian, Ethel Henry; Publicity, Virginia Sundelin; Sylvan Retreat, Pauline Smith, Mayme Scott; Style, John Taylor, Herbert Broll, Vanda Kirby; Virginia Sunderlin, Thirnall Cossell, Ralph Smith; General, Lillian Coury, Catherine Welton, Alberta Lindner and Virginia Sunderlin.

Routine reports were given by Mrs. Sunderlin, Miss Crabtree and Miss Ethel Henry. An auditing committee which was named includes Ethel Henry, Leonora Young and Lillian Coury. Following the meeting Mrs. Smith showed pictures taken at the national convention in Miami, Fla. Fifteen members attended.

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has delivered a sharp answer to his critics who say his administration is either too liberal or too conservative: It is neither.

Prompted by a reporter's question, the President said his government is liberal in dealing with individuals but conservative in economic and money matters. His "liberal" policy toward individuals means encouraging their widest participation in setting policies. Farmers, for instance, can attest to this because a great many of them were members of his national agricultural advisory commission which helped write the new farm program.

His "conservative" policies in economics and finance, he said, are best shown by his new budget. Former presidents have sought to increase the government debt at faster rates in order to accomplish their programs. He has cut expenses two years in a row, and is working toward the day when the budget wil be balanced. At the moment, the rush into further debt has been slowed, and taxes have come down, too.

Two other "conservative" attitudes of the new administration have impressed me. In his housing program, the President has called for an "experiment." He wants to give the FHA authority to insure long-term loans of modest amounts with low down payments, so the many poorly housed, low-income families can begin buying homes, instead of having to rent them in federally owned projects.

This puts the government right where it should be — promoting, not replacing, more private ownership.

The same is true of Mr. Eisenhower's health insurance program. He said, "I am flatly opposed to socialized medicine." I think we can take his word for that. Instead of a compulsory health insurance program (which would inevitably turn into tax-supported, socialized medical care), he has asked for backing of the private health insurance programs with government resources.

Again, the government would provide a means for people to help themselves, leaving it to them whether or not they want to participate.

When the significance is grasped of these "liberal" and "conservative" philosophies of the national administration, it can be seen at once how unimportant these labels are. What is important is that it seems to be exactly the proper philosophy for modern America.

On my calendar: This Wednesday, the Lincoln Day dinner in Washington County at Hagerstown's Masonic Temple, and Thursday I will address the Wheaton Citizens Association at the Highland Elementary School in Montgomery County.

At sword's point.

The hardware and kitchen utensils wing of the Pentagon ukased that swords will be again be worn by admirals of the ocean sea.

They were abandoned during World War Two in favor of collision mats and jury rigging.

Now they will be worn again at Newport when the shrimp boats are perfuming the harbor sunsets.

John Paul Jones was our first admiral to pack a chiv. John led boarding-parties with knife and fork. Since the twist of the century they have been mostly ornamental.

Now once again they will be used for high brass charges on wall maps.

Most famous sword was King Arthur's Excalibur followed by Roland's Durandal. It took two men to lift Excalibur and four to lift King Arthur.

The Highlanders' Andrew MacFerrars were swords made by Andrea di Ferrara. There was nothing a Scotchman better liked to do than swipe off your hand and throw it in your face.

The mammoth sword exhibited at Dumbarton Castle as Wallace's actually belonged to Edward the Fourth. Along about 1724 the Scotch were forbidden to pack broadswords in Edinburgh between the hours of twelve and twelve.

In modern warfare the only use an admiral has for a sword is to dial a telephone.

Only A Stone's Throw

Nice to report that our United Nations have finally reduced belligerence to stoning embassies.

By next week we hope to have it down to hissing news reels.

From there it's a mere itinerary of steps to picketing legations, placarding conferences and marking on walls. It's the law of diminishing returns. A Roland for an Oliver or whichever typewriter you prefer.

I was over in Budapest around 1927 when the entente cordiale ran out the small end of the horn. Although no nations were at war the inhabitutes paid no more attention than the devil to a hot-foot.

They were busily engaged stoning an embassy representing a government opposed to drinking, square polka dots and pie for breakfast. Three major problems that had come up at the last meeting of the aunts of heroes, second class.

Budapest mobs of that time consisted of students rioting on a subsidy as a protest against Englishmen climbing the Mattenhorn in sedan chairs. National honor seemed to be revenged by heaving a dornick through a fan-light over a Georgian doorway.

The clientele of the free-stoned embassy had barricaded itself behind heavy duty lace curtains. The ambassador seemed to be keeping score. For future reference when replacing windows. And for possible mention for the Victoria Cross.

After all the windows were busted the mob got on its two-seater bicycle and rode away. The leader of course doing the steering from the back seat. Both governments apologized for the incident. Budapest for the stoning. And London for not having more windows.

In the 1950 United States census, 30 states showed a net loss in population.

Chinese Laundrymen New Target Of Red Propaganda

HONG KONG, Feb. 9 (AP)—New York's Chinese laundrymen have become the latest target for Peiping propaganda.

A typical blast aimed at Chinese in America by the Red Chinese newspaper Ta Kung Pao said recently:

"The majority of overseas Chinese in America operate laundries only because they are restricted by diverse local laws and have no other way of making a living. Laundries are simple and do not need large amounts of capital and all that is required is labor, hence Chinese take up this trade."

The paper added that in the United States, capitalists with their "monopolistic ways of doing business" have "long extended their tentacles to laundries operated by overseas Chinese."

"In New York over 3,500 Chinese operate laundries but actually do not run their own businesses. The two bare hands of Chinese cannot compete with machines costing over $600,000, nor can one Chinese iron compete with a $10,000 ironing machine," it added.

For this reason, the paper continued, Chinese are actually canvassing business and running errands for big American laundries and "the greater part of their earnings go into the pockets of big companies. . . ."

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Shavey Lee, unofficial mayor of New York's Chinatown, says that a Peiping radio broadcast asserting American Chinese operate laundries because they aren't allowed to do anything else is a lot of hogwash.

"It's a lie, it's ridiculous," said Lee, when queried by phone at his restaurant in Chinatown. And, he added, 90 per cent of the Chinese who run laundries run them as individuals, not even partnerships."

"Chinese men and women are in every business and profession you can think of," he said. "Why, there are more Chinese in the restaurant business than the laundry business."

Reserve Bank Profits Up

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today preliminary figures indicate that Federal Reserve member banks had net profits in 1953 of 865 million dollars, a gain of 36 millions over 1952.

Snoring Charge Ends In Divorce

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—William Jones Roberts complained his wife snored —and snored deliberately from the third night of their honeymoon.

His wife, Mrs. Hilda Irene Roberts, charged he hit her when she denied snoring.

Judge Samuel Edgedale granted the wife's plea for a divorce. He dismissed the husband's countersuit and commented:

"A man who starts quarrels with his wife on their honeymoon about her physical disabilities has something very queer about him."

Czech Flier Chooses Freedom, Other Reds

BONN, Germany, Feb. 9 (AP)—Two Czech airmen crash landed a training plane in West Germany last Friday. Today one was handed back to his Communist-led countrymen at the border while the other chose freedom in the West.

Cpl. Georg Jiri Skorm, 22, was granted his request for political asylum. Lt. Franz Zawadilik, 26, wanted to go home. The dismantled plane will be hauled by truck to the border on Thursday for return to Czech authorities. The plane had been landed near Bayreuth.

There are about 50,000 caves in the world yet to be explored.

Jammed Bolt On Gun Prevented Gen. Dean From Killing Red Tormentor And Himself

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9 (AP)—A jammed bolt on a sub-machine gun prevented Maj. Gen. William F. Dean from killing his most hated tormentor and then himself in the early days of his Communist captivity in Korea.

Dean tells about the dramatic incident in the fourth chapter of his series, "My Three Years as a Dead Man," appearing tomorrow in the Saturday Evening Post.

He had undergone sessions of up to 68 hours at a stretch of questioning by a hated North Korean, a Col. Kim. Kim threatened Dean with torture in efforts to get military information. Kim said bamboo splinters would be driven under Dean's fingernails and then set afire.

Dean resolved to kill Kim. He evolved this plan:

He would wait until the guard in his room fell asleep and the guards in an adjoining room went to breakfast. Then he would crawl to the adjoining room, grab the submachine gun, fire a blast that would draw Col. Kim on the run, kill him, then thrust the barrel in his own mouth and pull the trigger.

His plan worked up to the point where he got the gun.

"Then I tried to pull the bolt back but it jammed," Dean wrote. "I worked at it and must have made some noise. There was a bellow behind me. . . . I swung the gun. There was no time for Kim now but I could get Hong (another tormentor) or I could have if I could have solved that jammed bolt. But Hong was a brave man. He charged right into the barrel of that gun. And the damned thing wouldn't fire."

Dean was overpowered. He said he never saw Col. Kim again.

In slow stages, Dean was taken north in a truck and at last taken by the North Koreans across the Yalu River into Manchuria. On one stage of the trip, Dean fell off a truck, grabbed a scrub tree—and found himself dangling 200 feet above the floor of a canyon.

"I think I was taken to Manchuria because the Koreans intended to use my rank as a bargaining point in whatever peace negotiations came up," he said.

That was in October, 1950 while the Reds were being battered northward. The minute the fortunes of war swung the other way, due to intervention by masses of Chinese Reds, he was taken back into North Korea.

Back at Manpojin, near the Manchurian border, he said he "glimpsed Russian officers and civilians through the windows."

The Mason-Dixon line stretching along the southern Pennsylvania-northern Maryland border was established to settle disputes over private land grants and not as a dividing line between North and South.

Chinese Laundrymen New Target Of Red Propaganda

HONG KONG, Feb. 9 (AP)—New York's Chinese laundrymen have become the latest target for Peiping propaganda.

A typical blast aimed at Chinese in America by the Red Chinese newspaper Ta Kung Pao said recently:

"The majority of overseas Chinese in America operate laundries only because they are restricted by diverse local laws and have no other way of making a living. Laundries are simple and do not need large amounts of capital and all that is required is labor, hence Chinese take up this trade."

The paper added that in the United States, capitalists with their "monopolistic ways of doing business" have "long extended their tentacles to laundries operated by overseas Chinese."

"In New York over 3,500 Chinese operate laundries but actually do not run their own businesses. The two bare hands of Chinese cannot compete with machines costing over $600,000, nor can one Chinese iron compete with a $10,000 ironing machine," it added.

For this reason, the paper continued, Chinese are actually canvassing business and running errands for big American laundries and "the greater part of their earnings go into the pockets of big companies. . . ."

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Shavey Lee, unofficial mayor of New York's Chinatown, says that a Peiping radio broadcast asserting American Chinese operate laundries because they aren't allowed to do anything else is a lot of hogwash.

"It's a lie, it's ridiculous," said Lee, when queried by phone at his restaurant in Chinatown. And, he added, 90 per cent of the Chinese who run laundries run them as individuals, not even partnerships.

"Chinese men and women are in every business and profession you can think of," he said. "Why, there are more Chinese in the restaurant business than the laundry business."

Reserve Bank Profits Up

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today preliminary figures indicate that Federal Reserve member banks had net profits in 1953 of 865 million dollars, a gain of 36 millions over 1952.

Snoring Charge Ends In Divorce

LONDON, Feb. 9 (AP)—William Jones Roberts complained his wife snored —and snored deliberately from the third night of their honeymoon.

His wife, Mrs. Hilda Irene Roberts, charged he hit her when she denied snoring.

Judge Samuel Edgedale granted the wife's plea for a divorce. He dismissed the husband's countersuit and commented:

"A man who starts quarrels with his wife on their honeymoon about her physical disabilities has something very queer about him."

Czech Flier Chooses Freedom, Other Reds

BONN, Germany, Feb. 9 (AP)—Two Czech airmen crash landed a training plane in West Germany last Friday. Today one was handed back to his Communist-led countrymen at the border while the other chose freedom in the West.

Cpl. Georg Jiri Skorm, 22, was granted his request for political asylum. Lt. Franz Zawadilik, 26, wanted to go home. The dismantled plane will be hauled by truck to the border on Thursday for return to Czech authorities. The plane had been landed near Bayreuth.

There are about 50,000 caves in the world yet to be explored.

Jammed Bolt On Gun Prevented Gen. Dean From Killing Red Tormentor And Himself

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9 (AP)—A jammed bolt on a sub-machine gun prevented Maj. Gen. William F. Dean from killing his most hated tormentor and then himself in the early days of his Communist captivity in Korea.

Dean tells about the dramatic incident in the fourth chapter of his series, "My Three Years as a Dead Man," appearing tomorrow in the Saturday Evening Post.

He had undergone sessions of up to 68 hours at a stretch of questioning by a hated North Korean, a Col. Kim. Kim threatened Dean with torture in efforts to get military information. Kim said bamboo splinters would be driven under Dean's fingernails and then set afire.

Dean resolved to kill Kim. He evolved this plan:

He would wait until the guard in his room fell asleep and the guards in an adjoining room went to breakfast. Then he would crawl to the adjoining room, grab the submachine gun, fire a blast that would draw Col. Kim on the run, kill him, then thrust the barrel in his own mouth and pull the trigger.

His plan worked up to the point where he got the gun.

"Then I tried to pull the bolt back but it jammed," Dean wrote. "I worked at it and must have made some noise. There was a bellow behind me. . . . I swung the gun. There was no time for Kim now but I could get Hong (another tormentor) or I could have if I could have solved that jammed bolt. But Hong was a brave man. He charged right into the barrel of that gun. And the damned thing wouldn't fire."

Dean was overpowered. He said he never saw Col. Kim again.

In slow stages, Dean was taken north in a truck and at last taken by the North Koreans across the Yalu River into Manchuria. On one stage of the trip, Dean fell off a truck, grabbed a scrub tree—and found himself dangling 200 feet above the floor of a canyon.

"I think I was taken to Manchuria because the Koreans intended to use my rank as a bargaining point in whatever peace negotiations came up," he said.

Wife's Charges Denied In Court By MacFadden

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Bernarr MacFadden, 86-year-old physical culturist, entered a blanket denial today of "obsession" charges leveled against him by his wife in her separation suit.

He never, MacFadden told Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg, accused blonde Jonnie Lee of attempting to poison him or leaving the windows open so a lover could climb in.

And, he testified, he never tried to hit her, adding:

"I never struck or attempted to strike any woman in my life."

Mrs. MacFadden, 47, had raised each of the points in testimony yesterday.

Under examination by his attorney, Joseph Broderick, the veteran outdoor enthusiast and publisher said that on three different occasions "I was poisoned by food but I never at any time accused my wife."

James Roosevelt Refuses To Talk

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP)—James Roosevelt arrived in Chicago by plane from Los Angeles today but declined comment on his marital troubles. He also declined to talk about the possibility of a family conference on them with his mother, Eleanor Roosevelt, and his younger brother, Franklin Jr.

Asked by reporters if he planned to see his mother, who is in Chicago for two lecture engagements, James said:

"No. I didn't know that. Is she here?"

He said he was unaware that Franklin, also, was in town, registered at the same hotel where his mother is staying.

James said he, too, planned to stop at the same hotel.

"If they are there, of course I'll see them tonight," James said.

Capital Wonderful Town-Cabbie Hopes To Consult Chief Justice

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—Wonderful town, Washington. You're riding along in a taxi, thinking of nothing in particular, when all at once you're conscious that the cabbie is talking.

"Sorry," you say. "Guess I wasn't listening. I thought you said you wished I was the chief justice."

"That's right," the driver said. "I said I wished you was the chief justice because I got a tough problem. The way I figure, I could use some advice straight from the Supreme Court.

"All day long I'm trying to pick Mr. Warren up. But—just my luck—when I need him, I don't get him."

"You don't mean," you ask incredulously, "that you're trying to pick up the chief justice just so you can hand him your personal problems?"

"Why not?" the cabbie asks.

"You see, we got a stand right near where he lives, and I pick him up often. A real nice guy. Him and Mrs. Warren, too.

"Well, every time he gets in the cab, he asks: 'How's things?' So I tell him how's things. You know, a guy in a spot like that likes to know what people like me think about.

"Okay, I answer his questions. Now it's his turn to answer mine."

This explanation of democracy at work is so logical you can't think of anything to say. So you ride along in stunned silence.

"Like I say," says the gabby cabbie, "I got problems. Been to see my lawyer. He's all right, I guess, but the way I figure, he's no chief justice.

"You see, one day a couple of years ago I'm walking across the street with a green light, and a guy runs over me. Wouldn't you know it? The guy don't have any insurance.

"But that don't matter much because the company I'm hacking for then agrees to pay up to 250 bucks in hospital expenses. When the time comes to leave the hospital, the company says, okay, let him go, even though the bill is over a hundred bucks.

"Well, nothing happens, so finally I sue the guy who hits me, and I guess his lawyer tells him not to do anything yet. And the cab company decides to lay low until it sees how the suit comes out.

"And then yesterday, a guy comes to my door, saying I owe the hospital money, and he starts reading. You know, legal jabber, jabber, jabber. I begin to sweat, because I've never been in court, only traffic tickets, things like that.

"Well, my wife figures they have me for sure, and she begins to bawl, and then the kids begin to bawl. Boy, what a mess.

"So I go to my lawyer, and he works out a deal where I pay the hospital five bucks a month. Then the lawyer hits me up for 10 bucks.

"And all this because I'm crossing the street on a green light.

"Well, here we are, Jack. That'll be six bits. Like I said, I sure wish you was the chief justice."

"But that don't matter much because the company I'm hacking for then agrees to pay up to 250 bucks in hospital expenses. When the time comes to leave the hospital, the company says, okay, let him go, even though the bill is over a hundred bucks.

"Well, nothing happens, so finally I sue the guy who hits me, and I guess his lawyer tells him not to do anything yet. And the cab company decides to lay low until it sees how the suit comes out.

"And then yesterday, a guy comes to my door, saying I owe the hospital money, and he starts reading. You know, legal jabber, jabber, jabber. I begin to sweat, because I've never been in court, only traffic tickets, things like that.

"Well, my wife figures they have me for sure, and she begins to bawl, and then the kids begin to bawl. Boy, what a mess.

"So I go to my lawyer, and he works out a deal where I pay the hospital five bucks a month. Then the lawyer hits me up for 10 bucks.

"And all this because I'm crossing the street on a green light.

"Well, here we are, Jack. That'll be six bits. Like I said, I sure wish you was the chief justice."

The land north and east of the Great Lakes is rising, making a slow recovery from the great dimple pressed into the earth by the weight of ice during the Ice Ages.

Scotsman Looses Wailing By Saying Kilt Outmoded, Fit Only For Museum

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Feb 9 (AP)—A Scotsman named David McIntosh thought out loud before a gathering of the clans and loosed some wailing today.

"The kilt is an outmoded relic fit only for the museum," said McIntosh, speaking to the Clan Chattan Society two nights ago. Present were members of the Associated McIntoshes, the McBeans, the Farquharsons, the Davidsons, the MacGillivarys and some others.

"Absolute nonsense," said Hugh MacPherson.

"Worse than nonsense," said W. G. Kinloch Anderson.

Both make kilts.

Down Edinburgh's Princes Street where on a busy Saturday midday some 25,000 persons can be seen walking, you can spot at least two or three persons wearing kilts. Tourists may not give them an extra glance, but Scotsmen do.

The kilt is Scotland's traditional garb for ceremonial and social occasions. You can hire one from any well stocked shop. The kilt also is proper uniform—off duty—for Scottish Highland regiments. Troops wear battle dress in the field.

McIntosh, 30-year-old accountant and father of three boys who sometimes wear kilts, had this to say:

"The kilt may be all right in the heather, but it is out of place in the town. Most Scotsmen have not the physique to carry it off. They're too fat, thin, too tall or small to go swaggering around in tartan skirts.

"How can a businessman keep his mind on what he is doing when he is spending most of his time insuring that his kilt isn't too revealing?" asked McIntosh.

He could have been surpressing a smile because most civilians in kilts wear something underneath. Soldiers don't—or so they claim.

"The kilt," insisted McIntosh, "is no longer a symbol of national pride."

That did it.

Statistics began pouring in on how so many more kilts are sold now than before; how the kilted Scottish regiments get more recruits than the non-kilted ones; how in Canada a Black Watch of Canada regiment has been formed from other regiments because of the love of kilts.

Also, the Duke of Edinburgh wore kilts while here. So does Sir James Miller, lord provost of Edinburgh—on certain occasions. And Harold Skelton, chief guide on the famous Royal Mile here, never wears anything else but the kilt. The 70-year-old gentleman says Americans prefer it on him. Skelton said "nonsense," too, to McIntosh.

Hugh Young, who was in the Black Watch in the last war and wore kilts on dress occasions, said kilts are warm. They never billow up, either. But they collect mud and can prove awkward when you have to throw yourself suddenly on hard ground. Anyway, they have not been used in combat or training since the first World War.

"They're a good thing for tradition," said young.

"Me? Oh, I haven't worn them since the war."

Possible Tragedy Averted By Queen

LISMORE, Australia, Feb. 9 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II ducked into a hotel door with the Duke of Edinburgh in a hurry tonight and averted possible injury to hundreds caught in the crush of a crowd of 50,000.

The crowd had assembled in this town 95 miles south of Brisbane to welcome the Queen and her husband winding up the first day of their New South Wales country tour.

The eager throngs surged forward as the Queen waved from the hotel doorway. Women and children were shoved in the front lines. Their screams could not be heard above the roar of cheers.

Queen Elizabeth pointed excitedly to draw her husband's attention to the situation, then quickly entered the hotel.

The crowd broke through the police barrier again when the Queen and the Duke appeared on the hotel balcony. Police, soldiers and boy scouts linked arms and pressed back against them, but could not stop a breakthrough.

Weather Bureau Celebrates 84th Birthday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP)—The ultra-scientific Weather Bureau celebrated its 84th birthday today with forecasts as usual and a fond look back at Mr. Increase Lapham, the man who sent out the bureau's first report in 1870.

Lapham had no elaborate charts in his Chicago office. No radio, no television. He got his information from people who told him about the weather via magnetic telegraph.

Lapham guessed what the weather would soon be like and made a forecast. Signal flags on the Great Lakes relayed the information. So did the magnetic telegraph.

He was following orders from President Grant who signed the bill creating the bureau on Feb. 9, 1870. Rep. Halbert E. Paine, a Wisconsin Republican, wrote the bill.

The bureau was in the War Department at first, then Agriculture and in 1940 it moved to Commerce.

As everyone who has ever planned a picnic knows, the bureau has had a history of success and failure.

Back in 1892, for instance, a bureau spokesman noted today, California raisin growers saved a million dollars because a rain forecast came through in time for them to cover their raisins.

Then there's the story which everybody in the Weather Bureau seems to know. It deals with Professor Cleveland Abbe, who used to be the bureau's chief forecaster.

One day Abbe finished studying his charts and maps and issued a forecast: "No rain until tomorrow." He told an assistant to put out the forecast.

"But, professor," the assistant protested, looking out the window, "it's raining now."

The professor studied the situation for a minute and then concluded: "It can't be! The charts don't show it."

In the first year of the bureau's operation, Congress shelled out $50,000 for its operations. This year the service is costing the taxpayers 27 millions.

Police Probe Station Thefts

Authorities last night were looking for burglars who broke into two service stations on U. S. Route 40 near here early yesterday morning.

State Police said they are continuing their investigation of the thefts which are believed to have been committed by the same persons.

Cpl. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police, said Diehl's Esso Service Station in the Narrows and the National Esso Station on Baltimore Pike were entered and cash and merchandise stolen.

Lloyd Diehl, operator of the Narrows station, told authorities he closed his place of business about midnight and discovered the burglary yesterday morning when he opened again.

The thieves did not take anything from the service station, but they forced open a door into a snack bar in the same building, operated by Henry Knieriem.

Police said $14 in cash, merchandise valued at about $5, and about $3 in change was taken. The $3 in coins was stolen from a music box and from two pinball machines which were forced open.

The culprits gained entrance to the Baltimore Pike station, operated by John L. Walker, Polk Street, by climbing through a side window.

Cigarets and coins amounting to $1.50 were taken from a cigaret machine which was forced open. Also stolen stolen was a radio, a razor and other merchandise valued at $100.

Assisting Cpl. Baker in the investigation of the Narrows case were Trooper James F. Lewis and City Detective Leo E. P. Law.

Jaycees Await Cleanup Drive

Members of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce are going to have a one-night "Cleanup" campaign Friday night.

Miles G. Thompson Jr., who has accepted the chairmanship of the first Cumberland Home Builders' Show, which the Jaycees are sponsoring, wants all Jaycees at the Footer Building in work clothes and with brooms at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

The plan is to get that portion of the Footer Building cleaned up where the Home Builders' Show will be conducted March 25, 26 and 27.

Thompson also reported last night that George L. Carney Jr. had accepted the position as general sales manager. He will direct the solicitation of home appliance dealers who probably will wish to acquire booths for the springtime show.

Bill To Set Up Fund For Damage Claims Opposed

Insurance Spokesmen Oppose Proposal

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 9 (AP)—A bill to set up a fund for damage claims arising from automobile accidents and otherwise uncollectible was opposed today on the ground it "would put the state in the insurance business."

"The bill doesn't say so, but it puts the state in the insurance business," said John Coppage, deputy state insurance commissioner.

Coppage was among more than 100 persons, most of them insurance people, to appear against the bill at a joint hearing of the General Assembly judiciary committees.

Paul S. Wise, spokesman for an alliance of 118 insurance companies, criticized the bill on general principles and tore into it bit by bit.

The bill by Del. Dempsey (D-Balto 3rd), the judiciary chairman, calls for the funds to come by taxing motor vehicle owners with insurance $1 and those without $10. Insurance companies would contribute .5 per cent of their premiums.

A person involved in an accident with an uninsured driver, or with a hit-run driver, could make a claim to the fund for damages. The minimum claim would be $500 and the maximum $10,000.

Both Coppage and Wise said the fund undoubtedly would cause insurance companies to raise their premiums. In addition to the direct fund contribution, insurance companies would have to supply four members of an administrative board and bear the cost of investigating and defending claims in court.

Motorist Hurt As Car Skids On Ice

A Corriganville motorist was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital early yesterday suffering injuries sustained when his auto skidded on a patch of ice, went out of control and wrecked, throwing him into a ditch.

The condition of John Dickel, 25, was reported as "fair" last night by hospital attaches. Dickel suffered brush burns of the forehead, abrasions of the left hand and leg, and shock. X-rays were taken.

The accident occurred about 1 a. m. near Corriganville. Dickel, a son of Mrs. Mary Dickel, told attaches his car "hit a piece of ice on the road."

A local resident, James Lewis, 19, of 16 Altamont Terrace, was taken to the same hospital yesterday morning after he fell down several steps. He sustained severe bruises on the left side of the face and X-rays were taken. His condition was also reported as fair by attaches.

No Progress Noted On Taxi Contract

A "no progress" report was issued yesterday by Local 453, Teamsters Union (AFL), following a contract negotiating session with the Astor and Yellow Top taxicab companies.

C. E. Stutzman, business agent of the union, which represents some 50 workers for the two firms, said another meeting is planned Friday morning. The second weekly extension of the pact expires Sunday night.

No membership meeting has been scheduled, Stutzman said, since there was nothing new to offer. He said the earliest such a meeting could be held is Sunday afternoon.

The pact talks are deadlocked over a leasing plan proposed by the firms.

Blair Lockard At State Hospital

Blair Lockard, 26-year-old Corriganville man, is now confined in Springfield State Hospital at Sykesville for a complete physical and mental examination, according to deputies of Sheriff Edward R. Muir.

Lockard was arrested "for investigation" January 29 by Detective Lt. James E. Van at Lee's Tavern, 60 North Mechanic Street. In the following week he was examined by Dr. Richard W. Trevaskis, Jr., local psychiatrist, and Dr. J. E. McLean, county physician.

Last Saturday, Lockard was transferred from the County Jail to Sylvan Retreat. Monday he was taken from Sylvan Retreat to the state hospital at Sykesville by Raymond G. Messmer, superintendent at Sylvan Retreat, who acted on the order of Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick.

Lepley Convicted

identified Lepley as the man who had threatened him in argument over raccoons.

The jury retired at about 4:30 p .m. after hearing over an hour of closing argument by Assistant State's Attorney James S. Getty, by Hughes and Horchler, the defense lawyers, and finally by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher.

Associate Judge Morgan C. Harris, who presided at the all-day trial, announced that he would not pass sentence immediately.

ATLANTIC PREMIUM

Why does Atlantic use one of the world's most precious metals—PLATINUM—in refining its new PREMIUM gasoline?

In Atlantic's patented Catforming process*, platinum is used as a catalyst.

A catalyst is a material that promotes chemical reactions. Atlantic's platinum catalyst helps change ordinary gasoline into high octane or high anti-knock gasoline better than any other known catalyst.

That's the reason why new ATLANTIC PREMIUM gasoline is made with platinum.

Police Probe Station Thefts

Authorities last night were looking for burglars who broke into two service stations on U. S. Route 40 near here early yesterday morning.

State Police said they are continuing their investigation of the thefts which are believed to have been committed by the same persons.

Cpl. William F. Baker, criminal investigator for the State Police, said Diehl's Esso Service Station in the Narrows and the National Esso Station on Baltimore Pike were entered and cash and merchandise stolen.

Lloyd Diehl, operator of the Narrows station, told authorities he closed his place of business about midnight and discovered the burglary yesterday morning when he opened again.

The thieves did not take anything from the service station, but they forced open a door into a snack bar in the same building, operated by Henry Knieriem.

Police said $14 in cash, merchandise valued at about $5, and about $3 in change was taken. The $3 in coins was stolen from a music box and from two pinball machines which were forced open.

The culprits gained entrance to the Baltimore Pike station, operated by John L. Walker, Polk Street, by climbing through a side window.

Cigarets and coins amounting to $1.50 were taken from a cigaret machine which was forced open. Also stolen stolen was a radio, a razor and other merchandise valued at $100.

Assisting Cpl. Baker in the investigation of the Narrows case were Trooper James F. Lewis and City Detective Leo E. P. Law.

Jaycees Await Cleanup Drive

Members of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce are going to have a one-night "Cleanup" campaign Friday night.

Miles G. Thompson Jr., who has accepted the chairmanship of the first Cumberland Home Builders' Show, which the Jaycees are sponsoring, wants all Jaycees at the Footer Building in work clothes and with brooms at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

The plan is to get that portion of the Footer Building cleaned up where the Home Builders' Show will be conducted March 25, 26 and 27.

Thompson also reported last night that George L. Carney Jr. had accepted the position as general sales manager. He will direct the solicitation of home appliance dealers who probably will wish to acquire booths for the springtime show.

Bill To Set Up Fund For Damage Claims Opposed

Insurance Spokesmen Oppose Proposal

ANNAPOLIS, Feb. 9 (AP)—A bill to set up a fund for damage claims arising from automobile accidents and otherwise uncollectible was opposed today on the ground it "would put the state in the insurance business."

"The bill doesn't say so, but it puts the state in the insurance business," said John Coppage, deputy state insurance commissioner.

Coppage was among more than 100 persons, most of them insurance people, to appear against the bill at a joint hearing of the General Assembly judiciary committees.

Paul S. Wise, spokesman for an alliance of 118 insurance companies, criticized the bill on general principles and tore into it bit by bit.

The bill by Del. Dempsey (D-Balto 3rd), the judiciary chairman, calls for the funds to come by taxing motor vehicle owners with insurance $1 and those without $10. Insurance companies would contribute .5 per cent of their premiums.

A person involved in an accident with an uninsured driver, or with a hit-run driver, could make a claim to the fund for damages. The minimum claim would be $500 and the maximum $10,000.

Both Coppage and Wise said the fund undoubtedly would cause insurance companies to raise their premiums. In addition to the direct fund contribution, insurance companies would have to supply four members of an administrative board and bear the cost of investigating and defending claims in court.

Motorist Hurt As Car Skids On Ice

A Corriganville motorist was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital early yesterday suffering injuries sustained when his auto skidded on a patch of ice, went out of control and wrecked, throwing him into a ditch.

The condition of John Dickel, 25, was reported as "fair" last night by hospital attaches. Dickel suffered brush burns of the forehead, abrasions of the left hand and leg, and shock. X-rays were taken.

The accident occurred about 1 a. m. near Corriganville. Dickel, a son of Mrs. Mary Dickel, told attaches his car "hit a piece of ice on the road."

A local resident, James Lewis, 19, of 16 Altamont Terrace, was taken to the same hospital yesterday morning after he fell down several steps. He sustained severe bruises on the left side of the face and X-rays were taken. His condition was also reported as fair by attaches.

No Progress Noted On Taxi Contract

A "no progress" report was issued yesterday by Local 453, Teamsters Union (AFL), following a contract negotiating session with the Astor and Yellow Top taxicab companies.

C. E. Stutzman, business agent of the union, which represents some 50 workers for the two firms, said another meeting is planned Friday morning. The second weekly extension of the pact expires Sunday night.

No membership meeting has been scheduled, Stutzman said, since there was nothing new to offer. He said the earliest such a meeting could be held is Sunday afternoon.

The pact talks are deadlocked over a leasing plan proposed by the firms.

Blair Lockard At State Hospital

Blair Lockard, 26-year-old Corriganville man, is now confined in Springfield State Hospital at Sykesville for a complete physical and mental examination, according to deputies of Sheriff Edward R. Muir.

Lockard was arrested "for investigation" January 29 by Detective Lt. James E. Van at Lee's Tavern, 60 North Mechanic Street. In the following week he was examined by Dr. Richard W. Trevaskis, Jr., local psychiatrist, and Dr. J. E. McLean, county physician.

Last Saturday, Lockard was transferred from the County Jail to Sylvan Retreat. Monday he was taken from Sylvan Retreat to the state hospital at Sykesville by Raymond G. Messmer, superintendent at Sylvan Retreat, who acted on the order of Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick.

BY TED TROXELL

Allegany's explosive Campers, mindful of the only loss handed them during the season by the Beall High Mountaineers, turned on the boys from Frostburg last night at Campobello, trouncing them, 77-47. The win was Allegany's eighth in a row.

In the first encounter between these clubs, Beall staged a terrific drive in the final period, and eventually won in overtime, 64-59. However, in last night's contest, the picture was completely reversed, as the Campers expended their greatness offensive efforts in the last period, to "salt away" the decision.

Explosive Fourth Quarter

In fact, the Campers reeled off 10 straight points in the fourth quarter, before the Mountaineers could get their bearings, as Jim Hoffman scored on a tipoff play, then Dave Steele collected three successive field goals, and Hoffman drove in for another goal. At this point, the score was 61-34, Allegany, with any hopes the Mounties might have had of duplicating their celebrated feat, swiftly fading.

The Mountaineers used the full court press defense, the same operation that was instrumental in defeating the Campers last time, but this time the Bowersmen were ready for it, and on few occasions, did the visitors ever threaten to stop the Campers with this type of torment, and only during one quarter, the third, did they play on even terms with the locals.

Campers Shoot Well

After shooting with average accuracy in the first half, the Camper forces broke loose in the prosperous second half, paced by Steele, and ended up with a very respectable .419 percentage, hitting on 31 of 74 tries from the field. Beall posted a .304 mark, connecting on 17 of 56 field goal attempts.

It was Steele who led the scoring parade for both teams, as the tall "Spider" missed only once from the field in nine tries in the second half, to give him a total of 11 field goals in 19 tries, altogether. He also added six of seven foul conversions for a grand total of 28 points.

Hoffman, the city's scoring leader, also contributed heavily to the attack, as he fired 24 times from the floor, capitalizing on eight of the shots. He dumped in 7 of 13 fouls, for a total of 23 points, boosting his season's total to 295 points, for an average of 17.4 points per game.

Jim Sigler headed the losers' attack with 12 tallies, hitting on six of 13 attempts from the field, while Pinkney Holmes and Jim Smith supported the cause with 10 points each.

Joe Carter Sidelined

The Mountaineers played minus the services of one of their regulars, Joe Carter, who has a broken bone in his foot, and although it was not placed in a cast, the injury is too severe to allow him to play. Carter was one of the heroes in the Mounties win over the Campers in the first game, as he accounted for 20 of their points, and high scoring honors.

The win was Allegany's 16th of the season, and their sixth in WMI League competition, as they remained tied for the loop lead, with Bruce. The Beall quint now boasts a 9-6 mark over the season, with four of its losses coming in league play. Allegany now paces the field in the race for the right to represent this county in the district Class "A" tournament.

BY TED TROXELL

Allegany's explosive Campers, mindful of the only loss handed them during the season by the Beall High Mountaineers, turned on the boys from Frostburg last night at Campobello, trouncing them, 77-47. The win was Allegany's eighth in a row.

In the first encounter between these clubs, Beall staged a terrific drive in the final period, and eventually won in overtime, 64-59. However, in last night's contest, the picture was completely reversed, as the Campers expended their greatness offensive efforts in the last period, to "salt away" the decision.

Explosive Fourth Quarter

In fact, the Campers reeled off 10 straight points in the fourth quarter, before the Mountaineers could get their bearings, as Jim Hoffman scored on a tipoff play, then Dave Steele collected three successive field goals, and Hoffman drove in for another goal. At this point, the score was 61-34, Allegany, with any hopes the Mounties might have had of duplicating their celebrated feat, swiftly fading.

The Mountaineers used the full court press defense, the same operation that was instrumental in defeating the Campers last time, but this time the Bowersmen were ready for it, and on few occasions, did the visitors ever threaten to stop the Campers with this type of torment, and only during one quarter, the third, did they play on even terms with the locals.

Campers Shoot Well

After shooting with average accuracy in the first half, the Camper forces broke loose in the prosperous second half, paced by Steele, and ended up with a very respectable .419 percentage, hitting on 31 of 74 tries from the field. Beall posted a .304 mark, connecting on 17 of 56 field goal attempts.

It was Steele who led the scoring parade for both teams, as the tall "Spider" missed only once from the field in nine tries in the second half, to give him a total of 11 field goals in 19 tries, altogether. He also added six of seven foul conversions for a grand total of 28 points.

Hoffman, the city's scoring leader, also contributed heavily to the attack, as he fired 24 times from the floor, capitalizing on eight of the shots. He dumped in 7 of 13 fouls, for a total of 23 points, boosting his season's total to 295 points, for an average of 17.4 points per game.

Jim Sigler headed the losers' attack with 12 tallies, hitting on six of 13 attempts from the field, while Pinkney Holmes and Jim Smith supported the cause with 10 points each.

Joe Carter Sidelined

The Mountaineers played minus the services of one of their regulars, Joe Carter, who has a broken bone in his foot, and although it was not placed in a cast, the injury is too severe to allow him to play. Carter was one of the heroes in the Mounties win over the Campers in the first game, as he accounted for 20 of their points, and high scoring honors.

The win was Allegany's 16th of the season, and their sixth in WMI League competition, as they remained tied for the loop lead, with Bruce. The Beall quint now boasts a 9-6 mark over the season, with four of its losses coming in league play. Allegany now paces the field in the race for the right to represent this county in the district Class "A" tournament.

23 Yankees Are Unsigned As Salary Demands Soar

Erskine Signs With Dodgers, Gets Pay Boost

New York Giants Add Koslo, Corwin

BROOKLYN, Feb. 9 (AP) — Carl Erskine, who set a record of 14 strikeouts against the New York Yankees in the 1953 World Series, signed his 1954 Brooklyn baseball contract today.

Salary terms were not disclosed but the 27-year-old righthander is believed to have received a substantial increase over his reported $18,000 salary of last year. The 1954 figure probably is close to $25,000.

Erskine became the 29th Dodger to come to terms, leaving first baseman Gil Hodges as the only Dodger regular not signed.

Erskine won 20 games and lost only six in 1953, compiling a 15-2 mark after July 2. He had an earned run average of 2.26 for that stretch and was second only to Philadelphia's Robin Roberts in strikeouts. Roberts had 198 to Erskine's 187.

Carl also pitched a one-hit game against Cincinnati on May 17.

Meanwhile, the New York Giants added two pitchers, lefthander Dave Koslo and righthander Al Corwin, to their list. The Giants have announced 23 signings to date.

Pay Raises May Hit Additional $90,000

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pity the poor New York Yankees, who can't stop winning world baseball championships.

They're caught in a inexorable "graph squeeze"—declining attendance and rising salary demands.

The jaws of the vice are coming down on us from both directions," Red Patterson, team publicist, wailed today. "It's getting to be a critical situation.

"Our attendance has fallen off nearly a million—900,000, to be exact—since 1948. That year we had 2,400,000. Last year it was 1,500,000.

"But since then we have won five straight world championships. Naturally this causes the players to put a higher assessment on their value.

"They want more money. We have less to draw from. It makes one wonder where it's going to end."

As usual, the gold-studded Yankees again are having the most trouble getting their athletes under contract.

As of now, they have signed 19 players. Twenty-three remain unsigned, including most of the team's top talent.

Unsigned are infielder Billy Martin, outstanding star of the 1953 world series, and Whitey Ford, who topped all the pitchers with an 18-6 mark.

They are reported asking no less than double their modest 1953 1953 incomes, figured in the vicinity of $10,000.

Also on the yet unsatisfied list are inflielders Phil Rizzuto and Gil McDougald; pitchers Ed Lopat, Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds and outfielder Mickey Mantle, each of whom is shooting for the $30,000-$40,000 bracket.

Catcher Yogi Berra is the only top salaried Yankee who has come to terms. He put his name down for a reported $40,000.

The Yankee payroll is the highest in baseball already, estimated at between $500,000 and $750,000. One observer said today management will have to cough up $90,000 in raises to get all the Yankees in the fold.

West Virginia Will Set Hunting, Fishing Seasons On Monday

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 9 (AP)—West Virginia hunters and fishermen will get some important news next Monday.

Conservation Director Carl J. Johnson will meet with his commission at that time to set the seasons and creel limits on fishing and the opening dates of hunting seasons. Hunting closing dates and bag limits will be set later.

Johnson announced the meeting today. He said the main factor to be considered will be the preferences expressed by West Virginia sportsmen and sportsmen's groups at eight sectional meetings held recently. The last meeting was Jan. 28 in Martinsburg.

Vejar And Black Fight At Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pvt. Chico Vejar has a sort of boxing axe to grind when he meets Jed Black of Janesville, Wis. in a 10-round welterweight bout at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Two of Vejar's four defeats in 59 pro bouts came at the hands of Chuck Davey, Black's stablemate and also a Michigan State College product.

Davey has been struggling in anonymity since his TKO by Gavilan, while Black is being groomed for a shot at the big money. Black has won 27 of 28 fights, but only once has gone 10 rounds. That was in beating ring-worn Ike Williams last October.

Vejar, on leave from Fort Benning, Ga., is expected to be a 2-1 favorite by the time the nationally-televised bout starts at 10 p.m. EST. In 15 bouts since his last defeat by Davey. Vejar has won 14 and lost only one, to Vince Martinez after defeating him in a first meeting.

Shue Needs Ten To Break Terps' Scoring Record

Maryland Ace Hopes To Set Mark Tonight

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Feb. 9 (AP)—Gene Shue, Maryland's All-America candidate, will be out to break the Terps' all-time regular season scoring record when Maryland collides with Washington & Lee here Thursday night.

The lanky forward established the 435-point record last year.

He has 426 points so far for a 20.3 average per game and needs but 10 more to break the regular season record. Maryland has seven games remaining.

Shue also set Maryland's all time scoring record including post season play last year when he made 508 points.

Since the Terps are in line for Atlantic Coast Conference tournament play at Raleigh, N. C. March 4-6 in addition to the seven scheduled games, Coach Bub Millikan feels confident the old record will fall.

Shy Shue has been criticized for not shooting enough. His accuracy percentage is about 50 per cent, according to the University publicity department.

Maryland is currently on a six-game winning streak, has a 17-4 overall record and is leading the conference with a 6-1 mark.

In addition to W. & L., Maryland must meet Navy, Wake Forest, Duke, Georgetown, George Washington and William & Mary.

23 Yankees Are Unsigned As Salary Demands Soar

Erskine Signs With Dodgers, Gets Pay Boost

New York Giants Add Koslo, Corwin

BROOKLYN, Feb. 9 (AP) — Carl Erskine, who set a record of 14 strikeouts against the New York Yankees in the 1953 World Series, signed his 1954 Brooklyn baseball contract today.

Salary terms were not disclosed but the 27-year-old righthander is believed to have received a substantial increase over his reported $18,000 salary of last year. The 1954 figure probably is close to $25,000.

Erskine became the 29th Dodger to come to terms, leaving first baseman Gil Hodges as the only Dodger regular not signed.

Erskine won 20 games and lost only six in 1953, compiling a 15-2 mark after July 2. He had an earned run average of 2.26 for that stretch and was second only to Philadelphia's Robin Roberts in strikeouts. Roberts had 198 to Erskine's 187.

Carl also pitched a one-hit game against Cincinnati on May 17.

Meanwhile, the New York Giants added two pitchers, lefthander Dave Koslo and righthander Al Corwin, to their list. The Giants have announced 23 signings to date.

Pay Raises May Hit Additional $90,000

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pity the poor New York Yankees, who can't stop winning world baseball championships.

They're caught in a inexorable "graph squeeze"—declining attendance and rising salary demands.

The jaws of the vice are coming down on us from both directions," Red Patterson, team publicist, wailed today. "It's getting to be a critical situation.

"Our attendance has fallen off nearly a million—900,000, to be exact—since 1948. That year we had 2,400,000. Last year it was 1,500,000.

"But since then we have won five straight world championships. Naturally this causes the players to put a higher assessment on their value.

"They want more money. We have less to draw from. It makes one wonder where it's going to end."

As usual, the gold-studded Yankees again are having the most trouble getting their athletes under contract.

As of now, they have signed 19 players. Twenty-three remain unsigned, including most of the team's top talent.

Unsigned are infielder Billy Martin, outstanding star of the 1953 world series, and Whitey Ford, who topped all the pitchers with an 18-6 mark.

They are reported asking no less than double their modest 1953 1953 incomes, figured in the vicinity of $10,000.

Also on the yet unsatisfied list are inflielders Phil Rizzuto and Gil McDougald; pitchers Ed Lopat, Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds and outfielder Mickey Mantle, each of whom is shooting for the $30,000-$40,000 bracket.

Catcher Yogi Berra is the only top salaried Yankee who has come to terms. He put his name down for a reported $40,000.

The Yankee payroll is the highest in baseball already, estimated at between $500,000 and $750,000. One observer said today management will have to cough up $90,000 in raises to get all the Yankees in the fold.

West Virginia Will Set Hunting, Fishing Seasons On Monday

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 9 (AP)—West Virginia hunters and fishermen will get some important news next Monday.

Conservation Director Carl J. Johnson will meet with his commission at that time to set the seasons and creel limits on fishing and the opening dates of hunting seasons. Hunting closing dates and bag limits will be set later.

Johnson announced the meeting today. He said the main factor to be considered will be the preferences expressed by West Virginia sportsmen and sportsmen's groups at eight sectional meetings held recently. The last meeting was Jan. 28 in Martinsburg.

Vejar And Black Fight At Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 (AP)—Pvt. Chico Vejar has a sort of boxing axe to grind when he meets Jed Black of Janesville, Wis. in a 10-round welterweight bout at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Two of Vejar's four defeats in 59 pro bouts came at the hands of Chuck Davey, Black's stablemate and also a Michigan State College product.

Davey has been struggling in anonymity since his TKO by Gavilan, while Black is being groomed for a shot at the big money. Black has won 27 of 28 fights, but only once has gone 10 rounds. That was in beating ring-worn Ike Williams last October.

Vejar, on leave from Fort Benning, Ga., is expected to be a 2-1 favorite by the time the nationally-televised bout starts at 10 p.m. EST. In 15 bouts since his last defeat by Davey, Vejar has won 14 and lost only one, to Vince Martinez after defeating him in a first meeting.

Name Grid Coach

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Feb. 9 (INS)—Bob Kellogg, Tulane backfield star of the thirties and backfield coach at Texas Tech last year, today was named backfield coach at Mississippi State College.

Kellogg was an assistant coach at Wake Forest for four years before joining the Texas Tech staff. Previous to that, he spent two years as an assistant at Tulane, where he was an All-Southeastern halfback in 1939.

Shue Needs Ten To Break Terps' Scoring Record

Maryland Ace Hopes To Set Mark Tonight

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Feb. 9 (AP)—Gene Shue, Maryland's All-America candidate, will be out to break the Terps' all-time regular season scoring record when Maryland collides with Washington & Lee here Thursday night.

The lanky forward established the 435-point record last year.

He has 426 points so far for a 20.3 average per game, and needs but 10 more to break the regular season record. Maryland has seven games remaining.

Shue also set Maryland's all time scoring record including post season play last year when he made 508 points.

Since the Terps are in line for Atlantic Coast Conference tournament play at Raleigh, N. C. March 4-6 in addition to the seven scheduled games, Coach Bub Millikan feels confident the old record will fall.

Shy Shue has been criticized for not shooting enough. His accuracy percentage is about 50 per cent, according to the University publicity department.

Maryland is currently on a six-game winning streak, has a 17-4 overall record and is leading the conference with a 6-1 mark.

In addition to W. & L., Maryland must meet Navy, Wake Forest, Duke, Georgetown, George Washington and William & Mary.

County Board Protests Hike In Gas Rates

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has authorized Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, to prepare to file an official protest with the Maryland Public Service Commission against the request of the C & A Gas Company for a rate increase.

This action followed similar procedure by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland which Monday told Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, to enter the city's protest on gas rate hikes as proposed by the C&A.

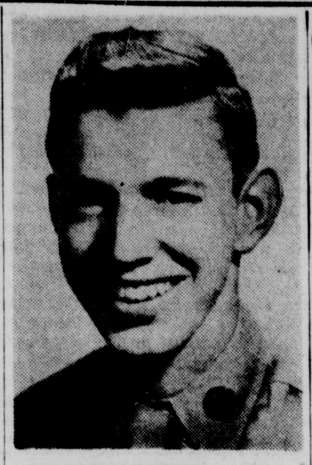
Both Finan and Getty joined in the protest and hearings before the PSC last year when a partial gas rate increase was granted.

A letter was received from Local 212, International Association of Machinists, in which the proposed gas rate increase was protested. C. F. Schelble, recording secretary of the organization, pointed out that the proposed gas rate hike would further aggravate the current high cost of living.

The commissioners received an offer from Glenn Morris to purchase Lots 47, 48 and 49 of the Humbird Addition in the South End for $150. The assessed valuation is greater than the offer, but Morris said he believes the market price is not more than $150.

Janitors were employed by the commissioners for duty at the Court House and Union Street County Building. They are George Shoemake, of Allegany, for the Union Street County Building and Herbert Allen, assigned to the Court House.

This provides 24-hour service on a seven-day week schedule for both structures.



ACCEPTS POSITION — Chester M. Jenkins, who received a B. S. degree in electrical engineering upon graduation from West Virginia University last month, has accepted a position with the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Luke. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Jenkins, Fort Ashby, he served in the U. S. Air Force for three years.

County Roads Official Urges Removal Of Shaft Underpass

J. Walker Chapman, supervisor of the County Roads Department, informed the Board of County Commissioners yesterday he has contacted the Western Maryland Railway relative to the underpass at Shaft.

Now that the railway has abandoned its tracks in that section of Georges Creek the county would like permission to eliminate the underpass by tearing out the huge stones which comprise the underpass.

Members of the Shaft Volunteer Fire Company requested the county several years ago to see if the underpass could not be widened as it was a hazard not only to the passage of fire trucks but also for other vehicles.

The underpass is so situated that the freeway is at an angle to the road. It was estimated that such a project would have cost about $50,000, the commissioners said.

Now that the railway is abandoning the tracks the underpass will no longer be necessary and the cost of eliminating it will be relatively small. The railway said it will check into the matter and give the county a decision at some future date.

Chapman also said he has contacted the West Virginia State Roads Commission concerning repairs to the bridge across the Potomac River between Luke and Piedmont. Cost of maintaining the structure is borne jointly by Allegany County and West Virginia.

Chapman said an agreement will have to be drawn up between the two governmental units to cover the work. No estimate of the cost was given.

Defense Radio Network Begun

An emergency Civil Defense radio network is now under construction, Sherley Ewing, state director, announces with the installation to be made at a cost of about $16,500 to Maryland.

The new communications plan, approved by the FCC, will be in addition to already existing amateur operators and stations in the network will be located in Cumberland, Hagerstown, Westminster, Frederick, Bel Air, Towson, Ellicott City, Waldorf, Salisbury, Easton, Annapolis, College Park, Conowingo Waterloo and Randallstown.

The emergency setup is expected to utilize existing State Police radio towers where they are available with the control center to be located at the State Civil Defense headquarters in Pikesville.

A 20-year project to establish an aluminum industry is under way on the Gold Coast of West Africa.

Area Towns On Complaint Map

Although Frostburg and Hancock were included on a map of complained-about traffic areas in the October issue of "Cars" the Automobile Club of Maryland noted it has had "only one complaint about the Allegany County community in the past two years and none about Hancock."

Meanwhile, the Automobile Club of Maryland emphasized that no speed traps or other "soak the stranger" enforcement methods are employed in either community.

As the text accompanying the map explained, the information was drawn from a wide variety of sources including American Automobile Association complaint files.

Complaints generally involve one or more of the following:

Strict letter-of-the-law enforcement of unreasonable or unrealistic regulations; obvious discrimination against the out-of-state driver; inability to get a prompt and fair hearing; entrapment through use of unmarked cars; officers not in uniform or in hiding; discourtesy, abusive treatment and excessive fines and costs.

If the situation is found to be bad, AAA sends notices to all affiliated clubs recommending that motorists be extremely wary in driving through such places.

Two Wills Admitted To Probate In Court

Two wills were admitted to probate yesterday in Orphans Court.

The will of John Henry Ayers Sr., who died December 22, 1953, names his son, Chester W. Ayers, 705 St. Mary's Avenue, as executor. The estate was left to his widow Mrs. Ella Ayers.

The will of Ella Regina Reed, 324 Emily Street, who died November 29, 1953 names a son, Robert Emmett Reed, as executor. The children of the deceased are beneficiaries.

New York Motorist Lauds Local Police

A resident of New York has commended the Cumberland Police Department for its courtesy card system in tagging overtime parkers from out of state.

Robert E. L. Keller, of Wappinger Falls, wrote that he came here to buy an automobile. After the purchase was completed, he visited a friend and in the interim received a courtesy tag.

"Needless to say, I appreciated this friendly gesture very much and have taken a great deal of pride in telling people up here how nice the people of Cumberland collectively are," Keller stated.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9 (INS) — The story of Alexander, the Conqueror, who, at the age of 23, invaded Asia Minor, Greece, in fact, the world of that time, is the coming-up 20th Century-Fox spectacle.

Frank Ross, who produced "The Robe," has been assigned to do the story of Alexander, whose war adventures and romantic life is one of history's most interesting chapters.

"The Conqueror," as the story will be called, is authored by Robert Hardy Andrews, who wrote John Wayne's "Trouble Along the Way."

No stars have been named, but needless to say, this will be in Technicolor, CinemaScope and all the other modern devices.

"The Glenn Miller Story" has brought so much publicity, plus so many dollars into the box office of Universal-International, that I'm not surprised to hear that a big deal is now on with the studio and Benny Goodman.

The idea is to make the life story of Benny, the greatest clarinet player of our time, using, of course, Benny's great arrangements.

He, himself, will supervise the picture and comes to the coast just as soon as the deal is closed, which is expected to be any day.

The hottest contender right now for the role of "Helen of Troy" is Cyd Charisse. She's read the script and likes it, but she doesn't want to have a test made. She feels her work at MGM stands for itself.

The director of "Helen of Troy," Robert Wise, is back on the home soil to get his Helen here instead of in Italy as was originally planned. Jeanne Crain is still in the running. Both Cyd and Jeanne are beautiful girls.

Paris, I suspect, will also be chosen in the USA. Wise has chosen a number of character actors aboard and the starting date of "Helen" is March 15.

I am told from an excellent source that Joe DiMaggio plans to go to Italy after he leaves Japan. He'll take a baseball team he organized in San Francisco to Italy on an exhibition tour.

And, anyone who knows Joe will bet that he won't leave his bride, Marilyn Monroe — so where does that put her with her home studio, 20th Century-Fox?

I hear that one of the studios has opened negotiations to obtain the screen rights to Joe's life story. What with now being married to Marilyn Monroe, it should be made by 20th.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random.

Tyrone Power had a bad wisdom tooth pulled today and that may keep him from going to Rio for the film festival.

Gary Cooper is back, and as of the moment Rocky's got him. They were at a party together a few evenings ago, apparently very happy.

At the same party I met Dany Robin, who was with Anatole Litvak. Dany plays opposite Kirk Douglas in "Act of Love."

Bette Davis is in New York and talking a deal to do a dramatic show on TV. It's good that she's getting well.

All the friends of Millie and Bob Considine are marking Feb. 23 on the calendar. That's the day Bob and his vivacious wife arrive in our town.

Mrs. David Niven is recovering from surgery she underwent Friday at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Gloria Grahame tells me that after she finishes at Universal-International she's going to Italy to make a picture. Cy Howard will not be leaving for Europe until she goes, and she says she's not unhappy — she's never been happier.

The Cosmopolitan article in this month's issue, "Sex Without Glamor," is attracting a lot of attention. It's a story of the Italian actresses who refuse "aids" to beauty and it makes entertaining reading.

Pat Crowley telephones to say she never meant to be difficult, and she's sorry if her actions were so construed. Well, Pat, you can't do more than say you're sorry.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

To keep your mid-section trim and the line of youth, make this 4-step circle a daily habit!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

There's nothing as aging to appearance as allowing the figure to slip into unlovely lines. Certainly it's something that need not happen to you—and if it has, start reclaiming your best appearance now!

A stooped posture, a lost waistline, a thickening midriff or too-rounded abdomen are the usual indications that you are letting your youthful look and attractiveness get away from you.

The first step is to engage in daily, systematic exercise. Even three to five minutes of effort will serve as a beginning and put you on the path to figure reclamation. When you become accustomed to that much exercise and have made it your daily habit, you can add another routine.

4-Step Circle

Where to begin? Right here! What follows is a wonderful set of stretching exercises that will have a beneficial effect on your whole body!

1. Bend over at your waist so that your face and chest are parallel to the floor. Place your feet about 24 inches apart. Fling your arms straight out at shoulder level.

2. Now straighten up and reach your arms overhead and let your fingertips touch. Then bend over your left side as far down as you can, keeping your fingertips together, over your head.

3. Again straighten. Keeping your fingertips together, bend back with arms overhead.

4. Now go back and do the second step over, this time bending over your right side.

Repeat circle bending in rhythmic motion as rapidly as you can with ease. Do not strain for a greater bend than seems natural.

Daily Does It

Gradually as your body limbers, you can increase the angle of your bends, speed up your action and perform more per day without tiring.

Faithfully performed, this one simple four-step exercise will improve your posture, serve as a deep breathing benefit, trim your waistline, midriff and the upper line of your hips and limber your figure so that you walk with more fluid grace. By the time you work up to ten or fifteen minute sessions per day, you'll not only be seeing the wonderful benefits reflected in your mirror but feeling them in the easier fit of your clothes!

Tomorrow: A step to grace.

Bids On County Jail Work Asked

Sealed bids will be received March 2 at 10:30 a. m. by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on a contract to construct certain additions inside the County Jail.

Included in the project is the building of a storage room for items used at the jail and also erection of a separate entrance to the women's quarters at the lock-up. The commissioners said the work will cost in excess of $5,000 and is part of a four-year program of improvements and repairs to county buildings.

Various grand juries have recommended the separate entrance for women prisoners in recent years.

Specifications and blueprints have been prepared by the Corinthian Engineering Company of this city and may be obtained by bidders at the commissioner's office at the Court House. A deposit of $5 for each set of specifications and blueprints is required.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for $500 and the successful bidder must be able to provide bond in the full amount of the contract. Workmen's compensation, public liability insurance must be carried by the contractor and prevailing wage rates must be paid on the job.

The commissioners also announced their meeting scheduled Friday will be held on Thursday because Lincoln's Birthday, a legal holiday, falls on Friday.

The term court plaster is so named from the old custom of English ladies at court wearing specks of black plaster on their faces.

Three United States Army officers proved in 1924 that dengue, or break-bone fever, is transmitted by the mosquito.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 9 (INS) — The story of Alexander, the Conqueror, who, at the age of 23, invaded Asia Minor, Greece, in fact, the world of that time, is the coming-up 20th Century-Fox spectacle.

Frank Ross, who produced "The Robe," has been assigned to do the story of Alexander, whose war adventures and romantic life is one of history's most interesting chapters.

"The Conqueror," as the story will be called, is authored by Robert Hardy Andrews, who wrote John Wayne's "Trouble Along the Way."

Damage Suits Voided By Error

Two damage suits were dismissed from the docket in Mineral County Circuit Court yesterday morning in Keyser when an error was found.

The cases included Frank Murphy against William F. Dixon and John L. Kline for $5,000 damage and Oria Murphy against Dixon and Kline for $15,000 damage. The suits resulted from a highway accident on December 29, 1951 between Winchester and Martinsburg.

Before the jury was drawn, Attorneys N. Howard Rogers and Henry H. Whiting, representing the plaintiff, and Attorneys H. G. Shores and H. R. Athey, for the defense, held a conference in the chambers of Judge Ernest A. See. The defense attorneys presented evidence showing that Dixon, the former owner of the truck, was not responsible since the truck had been sold to Vance Tucker, New Creek, in October 1951.

The mishap occurred on a stretch of road on which State Roads workers were clearing snow and a 15-mile speed zone had been established. As the Murphy car started past the workers, the truck, skidded into the auto.

The court dismissed the jury panel. Attorneys for the plaintiffs indicated they would file new suits to be presented May 3.

The case was the last jury trial for the January term.

Man Nabbed In Theft Of Power Saws

Sunday, Detectives George Niedenthal and Thomas Boylan went to Oakland to arrest Bernard Rembold, 22, of Benbush, W. Va.

Damage Suits Voided By Error

Two damage suits were dismissed from the docket in Mineral County Circuit Court yesterday morning in Keyser when an error was found.

The cases included Frank Murphy against William F. Dixon and John L. Kline for $5,000 damage and Oria Murphy against Dixon and Kline for $15,000 damage. The suits resulted from a highway accident on December 29, 1951 between Winchester and Martinsburg.

Before the jury was drawn, Attorneys N. Howard Rogers and Henry H. Whiting, representing the plaintiff, and Attorneys H. G. Shores and H. R. Athey, for the defense, held a conference in the chambers of Judge Ernest A. See. The defense attorneys presented evidence showing that Dixon, the former owner of the truck, was not responsible since the truck had been sold to Vance Tucker, New Creek, in October 1951.

The mishap occurred on a stretch of road on which State Roads workers were clearing snow and a 15-mile speed zone had been established. As the Murphy car started past the workers, the truck, skidded into the auto.

The court dismissed the jury panel. Attorneys for the plaintiffs indicated they would file new suits to be presented May 3.

The case was the last jury trial for the January term.

Man Nabbed In Theft Of Power Saws

Sunday, Detectives George Niedenthal and Thomas Boylan went to Oakland to arrest Bernard Rembold, 22, of Benbush, W. Va.

The Philadelphia officers claim Rembold sold the saws in Oakland. He and George Pace, 38, now under arrest in Dover, Del., for burglary allegedly took $5,794 worth of saws from Knife Crafters Inc., of Lardner's Point, South Philadelphia on November 8.

The authorities declare that they cased the place on November 8, returned that night, broke a padlock on the one-story building and entered. They removed the power saws, put them in an automobile and drove south.

They sold the saws around Oakland to lumbermen, police said. The saws have been recovered.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

A Hoosier Returns

Elmer Davis, praise the Lord, is back on the air again—on television at 1 p. m. (EST) Sundays ABC-TV, on radio 10:15 p. m. (EST) Sundays ABC — and that sane, clear witty voice is, I think, more troubled than it ever seemed to be in the past.

John Crosby

Davis has never been a crusader exactly; he has generally preferred to report the crusades of others with detachment and great good sense; but, in the last year he has embarked on a little crusade of his own in defense of the freedom of the mind, a freedom which has been gravely under attack these last five years.

Mr. Davis has a book forthcoming, "But We Were Born Free" (to be published February 15, Bobbs-Merrill $2.75), which is a distillation of his speeches and writing in the winter and spring of 1953. In this witty, erudite and—yes—angry book, Davis pours his educated scorn on the McCarthys and Jenners and Veldes, these "superpatriots" whose main aim, he points out, seems to be to divide their own country, to set American against American, and "to chase away our allies and leave us to go it alone."

"We cannot keep our freedom against the men who are now trying to take it away from us—our fellow citizens, I am ashamed to say—unless we stand up for it and fight to keep it whenever and wherever and however that may be necessary," he wrote in a recent magazine piece. "For there are men who insist that nobody must think anything but what they think and who mostly think wrong. They do not know what this nation is or what it has been; and they don't understand the world they live in . . . These men, of course, claim they are defending the United States against a deadly danger, communism. Well, communism is a deadly danger to American interests — communism in Russia, communism in China. But the men who make the most noise about communism don't seem to be interested in it where it is the most powerful and dangerous.

"They are seldom in the forefront of the drives for appropriations for national defense; still less often are they found supporting the American foreign policy which in the last seven years has stopped the advance of communism in Europe, stopped it in Korea and saved Japan, and is now helping to stop it in Southeast Asia."

In one chapter (which I feel free to quote from since it has already been published as a magazine article), Davis is especially devastating against the ex-Communists like Louis Budenz, Whittaker Chambers and Elizabeth Bentley who wander from congressional committee to congressional committee, talking and talking and talking, and whose "only claim to credibility (to quote an editorial in the Washington star) is that they once belonged to a society of liars."

Davis believes Chambers concerning his relations with Hiss and he believes Chambers "writes with cogency and authority about the strange and turbid inner world of Whittaker Chambers."

"But," adds Davis, "he (Chambers) seems to have understood very little of what was going on around him, as is amply proved by his misinterpretations of history. A man who felt that he was returning in 1938 to the same world he left in 1925 and who seems seriously to have accepted the suggestion that the Roosevelt administration might have him shot, had little awareness of objective reality . . .

"He quotes and accepts Krivitsky's remark that 'there are only revolutionists and counter-revolutionists'—which Chambers underlines by adding that 'in action, there is no middle ground'. Yet one of the most protuberant facts of the history of the past 20 years is

THOUGHT BEFORE TALK

IF YOU are going to do any thinking at all during the auction, it will pay you to do it before you talk. Indeed, if it is the right kind of thinking, it may cause you to keep your mouth shut. That order of events is of high importance when you are considering a business double of a high contract, especially a slam. Thorough reflection may tell you that the information given by your double may cause the declarer to make a contract which would be beaten if you didn't double.

	♠ 5 3 2 ♥ A K J 10 4 ♦ 5 ♣ A 4 3 2
♠ 9 ♥ 9 8 7 6 5 2 ♦ J 6 ♣ K J 10 7	N W E S	♠ K Q 8 ♥ 3 ♦ Q 10 8 2 ♣ Q 9 8 6 5
	♠ A J 10 7 6 4 ♥ Q ♦ A K 9 7 4 3 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	Dbl.	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl.

Bidding slightly different from that brought the same contract at another table of the tournament, except that it was not doubled, East being pleased to wait in ambush with his strength. The lead was the same in each case, the heart 6. The undoubled declarer won that with the Q, then began work on trumps, laying down the A. He expected the K and Q to fall together on the J, but East took two quick tricks with them, making the dummy entryless and setting the contract. When he returned the diamond 2, South played the 9, the J winning and the 6 coming back to the Q and A. The diamond K and West's discard showed that East had another diamond winner, so the contract was down three.

Where East doubled the 6-Spades, South won the heart 6 lead with the A, consuming his own Q, so he could immediately lead a spade through the doubler. After East played the 8, he finessed the 10 successfully. The diamond A was followed by a ruff of the 3 with the spade 3, the club A brought a discard of the diamond 4 and the heart K was led. East ruffed with the spade Q, which the A killed. The diamond 7 was ruffed by the spade 5 and the heart J led. East ruffed with the spade K and South picked this opportunity to discard his diamond 9. The club Q return was ruffed, and South got the rest of the tricks with his remaining trumps and diamond K to make his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A K 6 2 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ 6 4 3 ♣ Q 8 3
♠ Q J 4 ♥ A 10 9 5 4 3 ♦ 9 2 ♣ 6 2	N W E S	♠ 9 8 5 3 ♥ J 8 ♦ K Q J 7 5 ♣ 9 4
	♠ 10 7 ♥ Q 7 ♦ A 10 8 ♣ A K J 10 7 5

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What neat play must South build in order to make 5-Clubs after West leads the diamond 9 and East plays the J?

Radio And Television

A Hoosier Returns

Elmer Davis, praise the Lord, is back on the air again—on television at 1 p. m. (EST) Sundays ABC-TV, on radio 10:15 p. m. (EST) Sundays ABC — and that sane, clear witty voice is, I think, more troubled than it ever seemed to be in the past.

John Crosby

Davis has never been a crusader exactly; he has generally preferred to report the crusades of others with detachment and great good sense; but, in the last year he has embarked on a little crusade of his own in defense of the freedom of the mind, a freedom which has been gravely under attack these last five years.

Mr. Davis has a book forthcoming, "But We Were Born Free" (to be published February 15, Bobbs-Merrill $2.75), which is a distillation of his speeches and writing in the winter and spring of 1953. In this witty, erudite and—yes—angry book, Davis pours his educated scorn on the McCarthys and Jenners and Veldes, these "superpatriots" whose main aim, he points out, seems to be to divide their own country, to set American against American, and "to chase away our allies and leave us to go it alone."

"We cannot keep our freedom against the men who are now trying to take it away from us—our fellow citizens, I am ashamed to say—unless we stand up for it and fight to keep it whenever and wherever and however that may be necessary," he wrote in a recent magazine piece. "For there are men who insist that nobody must think anything but what they think and who mostly think wrong. They do not know what this nation is or what it has been; and they don't understand the world they live in . . . These men, of course, claim they are defending the United States against a deadly danger, communism. Well, communism is a deadly danger to American interests — communism in Russia, communism in China. But the men who make the most noise about communism don't seem to be interested in it where it is the most powerful and dangerous.

"They are seldom in the forefront of the drives for appropriations for national defense; still less often are they found supporting the American foreign policy which in the last seven years has stopped the advance of communism in Europe, stopped it in Korea and saved Japan, and is now helping to stop it in Southeast Asia."

In one chapter (which I feel free to quote from since it has already been published as a magazine article), Davis is especially devastating against the ex-Communists like Louis Budenz, Whittaker Chambers and Elizabeth Bentley who wander from congressional committee to congressional committee, talking and talking and talking, and whose "only claim to credibility (to quote an editorial in the Washington star) is that they once belonged to a society of liars."

Davis believes Chambers concerning his relations with Hiss and he believes Chambers "writes with cogency and authority about the strange and turbid inner world of Whittaker Chambers."

"But," adds Davis, "he (Chambers) seems to have understood very little of what was going on around him, as is amply proved by his misinterpretations of history. A man who felt that he was returning in 1938 to the same world he left in 1925 and who seems seriously to have accepted the suggestion that the Roosevelt administration might have him shot, had little awareness of objective reality . . .

"He quotes and accepts Krivitsky's remark that 'there are only revolutionists and counter-revolutionists'—which Chambers underlines by adding that 'in action, there is no middle ground'. Yet one of the most protuberant facts of the history of the past 20 years is

The lead was the same in each case, the heart 6. The undoubled declarer won that with the Q, then began work on trumps, laying down the A. He expected the K and Q to fall together on the J, but East took two quick tricks with them, making the dummy entryless and setting the contract. When he returned the diamond 2, South played the 9, the J winning and the 6 coming back to the Q and A. The diamond K and West's discard showed that East had another diamond winner, so the contract was down three.

Where East doubled the 6-Spades, South won the heart 6 lead with the A, consuming his own Q, so he could immediately lead a spade through the doubler. After East played the 8, he finessed the 10 successfully. The diamond A was followed by a ruff of the 3 with the spade 3, the club A brought a discard of the diamond 4 and the heart K was led. East ruffed with the spade Q, which the A killed. The diamond 7 was ruffed by the spade 5 and the heart J led. East ruffed with the spade K and South picked this opportunity to discard his diamond 9. The club Q return was ruffed, and South got the rest of the tricks with his remaining trumps and diamond K to make his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A K 6 2 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ 6 4 3 ♣ Q 8 3
♠ Q J 4 ♥ A 10 9 5 4 3 ♦ 9 2 ♣ 6 2	N W E S	♠ 9 8 5 3 ♥ J 8 ♦ K Q J 7 5 ♣ 9 4
	♠ 10 7 ♥ Q 7 ♦ A 10 8 ♣ A K J 10 7 5

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What neat play must South build in order to make 5-Clubs after West leads the diamond 9 and East plays the J?

Card of Thanks

We take this means of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends and relatives for the kindness extended to us during the illness and bereavement of our beloved wife, mother and sister, Mrs. Clara B. Warnick, Westernport. We wish also to thank Rev. Clyde W. Ash, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, Piedmont, those who sent floral tributes, the pallbearers and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

WILLIAM WARNICK and FAMILY, FLOYD, ELMER, HARRY AND HERALD MANSBERRY, WESTERNPORT.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear father Hanson P. Twigg who died one year ago, Feb. 10th, 1953.

God saw the road was getting rough.
The hills were hard to climb.
He gently closed his loving eyes,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
His weary hours, his days of pain
His weary nights are past
His ever patient worn out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.

Sadly missed by his daughter, Nita M. McLaughlin and Family.

In memory of our dear son and brother, Pfc. Charles "Pete" Jones, who sacrificed his life in Germany, 9 years ago, Feb. 10, 1945.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled!
Some may think you are forgotten
Though on earth you are no more;
But in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by,
MOTHER, SISTER and BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph O. Mellott who died Feb. 10, 1942.

Twelve years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts, he liveth still.
You have left a beautiful memory,
A sorrow too great to be told,
But to us who loved and lost you,
Your memory will never grow old.
Sadly missed by, Wife and Children.

HENRY—A tribute of love to our beloved mother, Mrs. Anna E. Henry, who departed this life, February 9, 1953.

We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often, and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.

Loving Children.

Card of Thanks

We take this means of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation to all our friends and relatives for the kindness extended to us during the illness and bereavement of our beloved wife, mother and sister, Mrs. Clara B. Warnick, Westernport. We wish also to thank Rev. Clyde W. Ash, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, Piedmont, those who sent floral tributes, the pallbearers and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral.
WILLIAM WARNICK and FAMILY, FLOYD, ELMER, HARRY AND HERALD MANSBERRY, WESTERNPORT.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear father Hanson P. Twigg who died one year ago, Feb. 10th, 1953.
God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb.
He gently closed his loving eyes,
And whispered "Peace be thine."
His weary hours, his days of pain
His weary nights are past
His ever patient worn out frame,
Has found sweet rest at last.
Sadly missed by his daughter,
Nita M. McLaughlin and Family.

In memory of our dear son and brother, Pfc. Charles "Pete" Jones, who sacrificed his life in Germany, 9 years ago, Feb. 10, 1945.
A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled!
Some may think you are forgotten
Though on earth you are no more;
But in memory you are with us
As you always were before.
Sadly missed by,
MOTHER, SISTER and BROTHERS.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph O. Mellott who died Feb. 10, 1942.
Twelve years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will,
But in our hearts, he liveth still.
You have left a beautiful memory,
A sorrow too great to be told,
But to us who loved and lost you,
Your memory will never grow old.
Sadly missed by, Wife and Children.

HENRY—A tribute of love to our beloved mother, Mrs. Anna E. Henry, who departed this life, February 9, 1953.
We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often, and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.
Loving Children.

On The Line
by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, (INS) — Three Marine generals and an admiral next week will have the trying duty of determining, in effect, whether a fine man whose will is temporarily broken by sadistic torture must undergo formal military court martial.

Maj. Gen. Henry Linscott, Maj. Gen. C. P. Schilt, Brig. Gen. Robert Bare, all of whom have great records as Marines, and Rear Adm. Thomas Cooper, Navy medical authority, comprise a board set up by the Marine Corps to decide whether or not Col. Frank Schwable shall have a court.

Col. Schwable, Naval Academy '29, World War II veteran, and decorated up to his collarbone, wrote and signed a "confession" accusing the United States of waging germ warfare in Korea. He was knocked down behind enemy lines in 1952, was captured, and underwent months of unspeakable cruelty before the Reds could get his signature on their phony document. They made much use of the "confession," for Col. Schwable, at the time he went down, was the Marine Corps' second highest ranking flier in Korea.

One cannot envy the four-man board that has had this problem dumped in its lap. Every man in uniform will be holding his breath for the board's decision — as to whether Col. Schwable will be tried or not. Whatever the board's verdict, the conduct of fighting men for generations to come will be affected, subtly or bluntly.

Lt. Col. Guy Richards, USMC (res.), a fine reporter for the N. Y. Journal American, has made a most comprehensive study of the Schwable case and the colossal significance involved. He writes what must be in the hearts of many when he pens. "The reaction to the Schwable case in the armed services appears to be this—'Thank God it was not I who was put in that spot. I don't know what I would have done.'"

Here are some of the things the four-man board must have in mind as it mulls over whether there will be a full-scale examination in open court of Col. Schwable's conduct:

Returned prisoners have revealed that an undetermined number of fellow POWs died terrible deaths rather than cooperate in the least detail with sadistic captors practicing this new, vile and most depraved form of coercion. Would acquittal of Col. Schwable and others—via courts—suggest to the families of those heroes, and to future generations counted upon for all-out efforts in the event of wars, that these brave men foolishly laid down their lives?

Col. Schwable was a flier. In all of his training there was nothing to accustom him to what he eventually underwent while prisoner. His fighting had been done during swift, darting visits to the clear clean air above the reek and tumbled disorder of Korea. (". . . I wallowed in dirt and filth," he said of his ordeal.) More than 30 other fliers signed similar statements. The Reds put more pressure on airmen than captured infantrymen because the satellite peoples would be more inclined to believe that germ warfare, if it did exist, was waged from above.

Col. Schwable had had a war, a big one in which he was decorated many times. He, like some of the others facing courts, was a retread, physically. He has a fine, large family. Still has, and he's sure he would never have looked upon their beloved faces again if he had not signed a document which, he felt sure, nobody who knew him would ever believe.

Col. Richards suggests that his case and inferentially all other cases now pending in the services may be dismissed when Col. Schwable's lawyer brings up Article 31 of the new Uniform Code of Military Justice. The article apparently provides that military folk have as much right to immunity from prosecution for acts committed under coercion as civilians have.

But in the minds of the four-man board will be the memory of those gone and of Maj. Gen. Dean and the others who would not capitulate. Dean and others tried to kill themselves when they felt they no longer could be responsible for the terrible dictates of their assaulted bodies and minds.

A colossal issue is involved in the Schwable case. It involves a way of life, a national stance. Col. Richards and the New York Journal American appear to be alone in their recognition of this stupendous moment in the history of our military justice.

that there is a middle ground, and that in America and Western Europe the people who hold that middle ground have defeated both extremes. This is a matter of record."

In essence, Davis is a very great patriot who knows and loves his country and his countrymen, who knows and profoundly understands the American heritage and American history and who is appalled by what the McCarthys are trying to do to weaken the nation and shackle the people with ignorant fears. I never thought I would live to see the courtly, white-haired gentleman from Indiana get so angry, but I think it's perfectly wonderful that he has.

Clubs Urge Woman Be Named As White House Staff Assistant

Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, announces that the General Federation has joined with the American Association of University Women and other women's organizations in requesting President Eisenhower to appoint a qualified woman as an administrative assistant on the White House staff.

In her letter Mrs. Ahlgren wrote: "The General Federation of Women's Clubs wishes to commend you for your appointment of capable women to high positions in our government during the first year of your administration.

"The number of women in the labor force is growing, the amount of economic power concentrated in the hands of women is expanding and the effect of government policies is bearing more and more directly on the lives of women. All these factors are contributing to greater awareness and interest among women in the conduct of our government.

"For these reasons the General Federation of Women's Clubs wishes to join with the American Association of University Women and other women's organizations in urging you to name a woman to your White House staff. We believe that a woman in this position would be helpful in bringing to the attention of the executive branch of our government some of the problems that confront women and in conveying women's attitudes toward these problems. We also feel that such an appointee would interpret most effectively administrative policies to the women of our country.

"For many years the General Federation of Women's Clubs has encouraged women to prepare themselves for public office, to become active in the political party of their choice, and to support qualified women for elective and appointive posts. This much has been within our power, but we have not always been able to find receptive minds or sympathetic ears among the men in government and politics who are in a position to promote qualified women for public service.

"We feel that you have shown an understanding of the potential role women can play in our national life, and we are confident you will give serious consideration to the appointment of a qualified woman as an administrative assistant on your White House staff.

"The General Federation of Women's Clubs sends its best wishes to you as you bear the heavy burden of your office in the second year of your administration."

On The Line
by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, (INS) — Three Marine generals and an admiral next week will have the trying duty of determining, in effect, whether a fine man whose will is temporarily broken by sadistic torture must undergo formal military court martial.

Maj. Gen. Henry Linscott, Maj. Gen. C. P. Schilt, Brig. Gen. Robert Bare, all of whom have great records as Marines, and Rear Adm. Thomas Cooper, Navy medical authority, comprise a board set up by the Marine Corps to decide whether or not Col. Frank Schwable shall have a court.

Col. Schwable, Naval Academy '29, World War II veteran, and decorated up to his collarbone, wrote and signed a "confession" accusing the United States of waging germ warfare in Korea. He was knocked down behind enemy lines in 1952, was captured, and underwent months of unspeakable cruelty before the Reds could get his signature on their phony document. They made much use of the "confession," for Col. Schwable, at the time he went down, was the Marine Corps' second highest ranking flier in Korea.

One cannot envy the four-man board that has had this problem dumped in its lap. Every man in uniform will be holding his breath for the board's decision — as to whether Col. Schwable will be tried or not. Whatever the board's verdict, the conduct of fighting men for generations to come will be affected, subtly or bluntly.

Lt. Col. Guy Richards, USMC (res.), a fine reporter for the N. Y. Journal American, has made a most comprehensive study of the Schwable case and the colossal significance involved. He writes what must be in the hearts of many when he pens. "The reaction to the Schwable case in the armed services appears to be this—'Thank God it was not I who was put in that spot. I don't know what I would have done.'"

Here are some of the things the four-man board must have in mind as it mulls over whether there will be a full-scale examination in open court of Col. Schwable's conduct:

Returned prisoners have revealed that an undetermined number of fellow POWs died terrible deaths rather than cooperate in the least detail with sadistic captors practicing this new, vile and most depraved form of coercion. Would acquittal of Col. Schwable and others—via courts—suggest to the families of those heroes, and to future generations counted upon for all-out efforts in the event of wars, that these brave men foolishly laid down their lives?

Col. Schwable was a flier. In all of his training there was nothing to accustom him to what he eventually underwent while prisoner. His fighting had been done during swift, darting visits to the clear clean air above the reek and tumbled disorder of Korea. (". . . I wallowed in dirt and filth," he said of his ordeal.) More than 30 other fliers signed similar statements. The Reds put more pressure on airmen than captured infantrymen because the satellite peoples would be more inclined to believe that germ warfare, if it did exist, was waged from above.

Col. Schwable had had a war, a big one in which he was decorated many times. He, like some of the others facing courts, was a retread, physically. He has a fine, large family. Still has, and he's sure he would never have looked upon their beloved faces again if he had not signed a document which, he felt sure, nobody who knew him would ever believe.

Col. Richards suggests that his case and inferentially all other cases now pending in the services may be dismissed when Col. Schwable's lawyer brings up Article 31 of the new Uniform Code of Military Justice. The article apparently provides that military folk have as much right to immunity from prosecution for acts committed under coercion as civilians have.

But in the minds of the four-man board will be the memory of those gone and of Maj. Gen. Dean and the others who would not capitulate. Dean and others tried to kill themselves when they felt they no longer could be responsible for the terrible dictates of their assaulted bodies and minds.

A colossal issue is involved in the Schwable case. It involves a way of life, a national stance. Col. Richards and the New York Journal American appear to be alone in their recognition of this stupendous moment in the history of our military justice.

that there is a middle ground, and that in America and Western Europe the people who hold that middle ground have defeated both extremes. This is a matter of record."

In essence, Davis is a very great patriot who knows and loves his country and his countrymen, who knows and profoundly understands the American heritage and American history and who is appalled by what the McCarthys are trying to do to weaken the nation and shackle the people with ignorant fears. I never thought I would live to see the courtly, white-haired gentleman from Indiana get so angry, but I think it's perfectly wonderful that he has.

Clubs Urge Woman Be Named As White House Staff Assistant

Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, announces that the General Federation has joined with the American Association of University Women and other women's organizations in requesting President Eisenhower to appoint a qualified woman as an administrative assistant on the White House staff.

In her letter Mrs. Ahlgren wrote: "The General Federation of Women's Clubs wishes to commend you for your appointment of capable women to high positions in our government during the first year of your administration.

"The number of women in the labor force is growing, the amount of economic power concentrated in the hands of women is expanding and the effect of government policies is bearing more and more directly on the lives of women. All these factors are contributing to greater awareness and interest among women in the conduct of our government.

"For these reasons the General Federation of Women's Clubs wishes to join with the American Association of University Women and other women's organizations in urging you to name a woman to your White House staff. We believe that a woman in this position would be helpful in bringing to the attention of the executive branch of our government some of the problems that confront women and in conveying women's attitudes toward these problems. We also feel that such an appointee would interpret most effectively administrative policies to the women of our country.

"For many years the General Federation of Women's Clubs has encouraged women to prepare themselves for public office, to become active in the political party of their choice, and to support qualified women for elective and appointive posts. This much has been within our power, but we have not always been able to find receptive minds or sympathetic ears among the men in government and politics who are in a position to promote qualified women for public service.

"We feel that you have shown an understanding of the potential role women can play in our national life, and we are confident you will give serious consideration to the appointment of a qualified woman as an administrative assistant on your White House staff.

"The General Federation of Women's Clubs sends its best wishes to you as you bear the heavy burden of your office in the second year of your administration."

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Aircrafts spurted upward today in an otherwise steady and highly selective stock market.

Reports of heavy fighting in Indochina and prospects that the United States would soon be asked by France to supply more military aid, especially planes, prompted demand for aircrafts, brokers said.

Douglas jumped more than four points to a new peak during the early afternoon, but closed up 3⅛ points at 100½. United Aircraft rose 1½ at 51¾, Lockheed was up ¾ at 29½ and Boeing was up ½ at 55⅞.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at $114.50. However, the utility component climbed 10 cents at $57.40, a 1953-54 high. Industrials were also up 10 cents but railroads declined 40 cents.

There were more advances than declines, though volume slipped to 1,880,000 shares compared with 2,180,000 yesterday. Of the 1,170 issues traded, 452 rose and 377 lost ground. There were 67 new highs and only one new low.

RKO Pictures was the most active stock for the second successive session, closing unchanged at 5⅛ on turnover of 110,500 shares.

Steels and motors were nominally lower most of today's session. But during the final hour, a sudden burst of orders for Chrysler sent the auto producer up ¾ at 59¾. Shortly before the close, Studebaker announced layoffs of between 2,500 and 3,000 employes and a return to a single work shift. Studebaker finished off ⅛ at 21.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"My figures are correct up to a point—where my husband got mad and wouldn't do any more."

Lepley Convicted Of Assault In Raccoon Case

Jury Hears Wife's Surprise Testimony

After hearing contradictory testimony from Eugene Lepley, 30, of 616 North Centre Street, and from his estranged wife, an Allegany County Circuit Court jury yesterday deliberated 45 minutes and then convicted Lepley of assault with intent to rob an Ellerslie man of three raccoons.

Mrs. Velma Lepley, now residing on a farm near Kingsville, Ohio, was considered a surprise witness. She said that she returned here voluntarily to offer her testimony as to what happened on the night of November 25 when her husband was accused of having assaulted Joseph A. Ryan of Ellerslie. A previous trial January 25 ended with a hung jury.

Walked To Ellerslie

The 17-year-old Ohio girl acknowledged that she and her husband had walked out along the Western Maryland Railway tracks from Cumberland to Ellerslie, a distance of about six miles, to hunt turkeys.

Mrs. Lepley said that her husband got into an argument with a man at Ellerslie over his 'coon dog. She added that Lepley accused the other man of having killed his dog, raised his double-barreled shotgun and demanded that the man give him one of the three raccoons the other man had with him. The stranger refused and the Lepleys then left to resume their walk back to Cumberland.

On cross-examination by Attorney Edwin M. Horchler, who with Attorney George R. Hughes Jr., represented Lepley, the young wife admitted that she had previously told Horchler in his office that her husband was at home on North Centre Street on the night of November 25.

Agreement Reached

Mrs. Lepley explained that this earlier story had been agreed upon after her husband's arrest November 30. This agreement was reached, she added, at a conference in the Lepley home with Mrs. Cindie Lepley, the defendant's mother, his sister, Mrs. Margaret Herpich of Baltimore, and Mrs. Herpich's son by a previous marriage, Richard Welch. Mrs. Lepley, Mrs. Herpich and Welch all testified yesterday that the accused was at home the night of November 25 when the offense allegedly occurred.

Lepley then took the stand to refute most of the statements made by his estranged wife. He explained that he had been a navigator aboard a tuna clipper which operated out of San Pedro, Calif., and had returned for a visit last September. He said that he and his wife were married in Garrett County, after having obtained a license in Oakland. He asserted that he falsely gave his wife's age as 20 then because she told him that was her age.

The defendant testified that he had gone hunting for pheasants on the afternoon of November 25 with Welch, his nephew, but they returned about 6 o'clock. He contradicted his wife's testimony by saying that he had used a single-barreled gun and did 't own a double-barreled weapon. He further asserted that he and his wife were home and in bed at the time Ryan allegedly was assaulted. He asserted that after his arrest his wife visited him every day and assured him that she knew he was innocent.

Earlier in the trial Ryan had testified about a threat that he said was made against him near his Ellerslie home. He said he did not previously know Lepley.

"I'm Gene Lepley," Ryan said his assailant told him. "I have shot a man for less than that." Later when confronted by Lepley in the State's Attorney's office, Ryan

Red Shield

These lads, the vanguard of the Red Shield Boys Club, are seen playing and working in their new clubroom in the Salvation Army Citadel. Enjoying games of checkers and "cootie" are Roger Hutzell, Jimmie Johnson, Woodrow Johnson, Bobby Cannon, George Capel, Michael Brewer, Charles Cannon and Tommy Lueck. Below, Aggie Catlett is operating a jigsaw under the direction of Russell Rice, volunteer instructor, and Lt. James Pappas, director, as Wayne Brewer and Bernard Michael look on. One of the objectives of the shop will be to make and repair toys for gifts during the Christmas season. The clubroom, located in the newly-remodeled basement of the Citadel, is divided into recreation and workshop areas.

Salvation Army To Sponsor Red Shield Club For Boys

By C. WESLEY BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

Cumberland's newest youth organization, the Red Shield Boys Club, opened last night at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Sponsored by the Cumberland Salvation Army Corps, the club will be open to all boys of the community between the ages of six and 18.

Lt. James Pappas, who came here last week to serve as assistant at the Citadel, will be sponsor of the club which meets in the remodeled basement of the North Mechanic Street building.

Some 35 youths registered at last nigt's meeting, and Capt. Daniel K. Biggs, commander of the local corps, said membership is expected to hit 100 before the end of the month.

During the winter, the club rooms will be open Monday through Friday from 4 to 5 p. m. and on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p. m. All-day schedules may be adopted during the summer months.

Although the full program is yet to be worked out, present plans call for dividing the members into groups according to ages, and providing a balanced program of recreational and handicraft activities for each group.

The basement of the Citadel has been divided into a recreation room and a shop room.

For recreation, ping pong tables and equipment for games, including checkers and Chinese checkers, have been provided. A library, to be stocked with magazines and books for youths, has been placed at one end of the room.

The woodworking shop is already equipped with many of the power tools needed, but two more jigsaws and hand tools must be secured.

The youths will make small wooden articles, such as whatnots, bookends and novelties. They will also repair and make toys which will be used during the Salvation Army's Christmas program.

Typical of the spirit of the club are the mottos at each end of the play room:

"Through these doors pass the future citizens of Cumberland," and "No man ever stands as straight as when he stoops to help a boy."

Several adults who attended the meeting gave assurance that adult help will be available.

Daniel Y. Browne, chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, spent much of the time playing with the lads, and Robert W. Young, a member of the board, turned up to greet the boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rice, Bedford Road, were among the guests. Rice, a B&O employe who makes a hobby of woodworking, will serve as one of the volunteer instructors in the woodworking shop.

Police Alert For Phony Ad Salesmen

Maryland State Police are receiving reports that a number of persons are representing themselves as members of the department in an effort to secure advertising for police and other magazines, as well as contributions or other aid for an individual of the department.

Col. Elmer Munshower, superintendent of the State Police at Pikesville, ordered a directive be sent to all barracks and headquarters in order that such persons be apprehended.

In a teletype message received at LaVale sub-station last night, Col. Munshower said that numerous such incidents have been reported to the department.

The purpose of the information sent throughout the state is to alert and advise citizens that the department does not condone the selling of advertisements or the collecting of contributions and that persons doing so are misrepresenting themselves when they claim to be members of the department.

In the event citizens are approached by such persons, they are advised to get all information possible and then to notify the nearest barracks or headquarters.

Webster Offers Explanation Of Report System

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said yesterday that he would not like to comment upon a proposed change in school report grading system which is now being advocated for all of Maryland's public schools by the Anne Arundel County Delegation to the General Assembly, now in session.

As reported by the Associated Press, all Maryland public schools would have to adopt a five-symbol grading system if the Anne Arundel County proposal is adopted. The delegates from that county report that school children in that Annapolis area get only two ratings, either "S" for "satisfactory," or "N" for "needs improvement."

Webster did emphasize that Allegany County now has a more complete grading system than that now in effect in Anne Arundel County. Children from the second through the sixth grades may get any of four different ratings on their subjects. They are "highly satisfactory," "satisfactory," "unsatisfactory," and "progressing, but has the ability to do better."

Pupils in the elementary grades also are rated on their social habits, and parents are advised to check a certain part of the report if they wish to have a conference with the teacher or principal.

On the junior and senior high school level, county pupils now have the five-symbol grading system. They may get A, B, C, D or E in their subjects.

Nurses To Get Instruction On Pneolator

Tomorrow morning a group of nurses of Memorial Hospital will be given a demonstration on artificial respiration by city firemen.

Virgil A. Parker, fire chief, yesterady said the class will be conducted in the Nurses' Classroom from 10 to 11 a. m. with the assistance of Mrs. Leo E. P. Law, R. N.

Parker said the nurses will be shown the use of the pneolator of the City Police and Fire departments.

The back-pressure-arm-lift method of artificial respiration also will be demonstrated. Similar classes have been held in the past and Parker noted that all members of the department are qualified in the new method.

On December 3, 1951, this new method was adopted by various groups including the American Red Cross and the American Medical Association. The technique was first introduced by a Dane, Holger Nielson, in 1931. It found acceptance only recently, however.

Research has demonstrated that the new method produces more adequate ventilation than the Schafer method, which has been used for over 45 years as the standard technique of artificial respiration.

Beall Is Speaker

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall will be one of the principal speakers tonight at the Lincoln Day dinner in Masonic Temple, Hagerstown.

Beall St. Home Is Damaged In Two-Alarm Fire

Flames Confined To Upstairs Bedroom

Considerable damage was caused yesterday afternoon in the upstairs front bedroom of the residence of George R. Clise, 222 Beall Street, when a two-alarm fire burned a mattress, bedclothes and clothing in the room.

Thick smoke filled the upstairs of the two-story frame house as firemen from West Side Fire Station were called to the scene at 1:39 p. m. when Box 142 at the corner of Beall and Lee streets was pulled. Three minutes later Central firemen were called.

The blaze was confined to a corner of the bedroom. The smouldering mattress and bed clothes were thrown from the house by the firemen, who used all-purpose masks in fighting the flames.

Some water damage was caused in the blaze which firemen believe was started by a cigaret. Firemen said there were no defective wires in the immediate vicinity of the blaze.

Clothes in a nearby press were burned and the fire scorched the side of the wall. Firemen probed into the ceiling to see if the flames had spread toward the roof.

Dick Dismisses Name-Calling Cases

Two cases, resulting from charges filed following an alleged name-calling incident last Wednesday at the National Jet Company where employes are on strike, were dismissed yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on motions by the attorneys.

The cases came to Trial Magistrate Court after Mrs. Georgia M. Peer, RD 1, Ridgeley, charged that Raymond Bartlett, 147 Hanover Street, had used loud and profane language against her. Bartlett later filed a similar charge against Mrs. Peer.

City Air Raid Siren Test Is Set Saturday

Check Of Relay System Is Planned

A 90-second test of this city's disaster warning system is scheduled Saturday at noon, according to Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense coordinator.

The simultaneous blasts from the sirens, scheduled exactly at noon, will be an operational test of relays which have been installed by telephone company workers so the entire system can be activated from the control board at Central Fire Station.

The sirens have been tested twice—the first time during "Operation Checkup" the state-wide alert held September 22, and again on December 9.

In both cases, the sirens worked satisfactorily, but had to be set off individually.

Since then, relays have been installed on each siren and connected with the central control board, so all will blast when one button is pressed at the fire station.

Officials believe that the total coverage of the sirens will be more effective when all are operated at the same time.

Generally satisfactory coverage was reported in former tests, but there were some indications of "dead spots."

Gibson said that Civil Defense officers may report on the results of the tests, although it is not necessary, since the test will actually be an equipment check.

Four sirens have been installed by Civil Defense officials to give the city warning of an air raid or other major disaster.

Big 10-horsepower sirens are located at South End Fire Station and opposite SS. Peter and Paul School. One-horsepower devices have been placed at Ridgedale Avenue and at Camden Avenue.

Lions To Meet

The Cumberland Lions Club will meet today at 12:15 p. m. at Central YMCA. A musical program will be provided for entertainment.

Meyer To Play Major Role In Civic Theatre Comedy

Ed Meyer will play the part of a member of a famous Hollywood playwriting team in "Boy Meets Girl" which will be presented Friday at 8:15 p. m. in Allegany High School Auditorium by the Recreation Department's Civic Theatre.

Meyer came to Cumberland in 1950 as an announcer for WDYK, and after a year spent with a Philadelphia radio station returned here to become program director of the local station.

He married a Cumberland girl, Betty Lou Vogel, who is a stage star in her own right and is a member of the Civic Theatre.

Following his graduation from Passaic, N. J., High School, he served three years with the Army Signal Corps—two of them in the South Pacific.

He then entered the University of Missouri, where he received a bachelor's degree in journalism. While in college, he was a member of the Missouri Dramatic Workshop, the Stevens College Playhouse and the Purple Mask, an honorary dramatic society.

Meyer starred in the Civic Theatre's first production, "Ring Around Elizabeth."

Music Workshop Leader Summarizes Her Findings

Dr. Frances Andrews, associate professor in music at Pennsylvania State University, yesterday afternoon wound up her two-day workshop on the Allegany County Junior High School Music Program by summarizing some of her findings.

"Since the area of junior high school music is exploratory in nature, music educators believe that in singing specific help and guidance be given the use of a changing voice of the junior high school student," Dr. Andrews observed.

"The general music class of junior high school is not a vocal class but one in which there are opportunities for student singing, playing of instruments, dancing and listening to music as most of the boys and girls will be consumers of music in adult life.

"It is of prime importance that the musical experience be varied so as to meet the individual differences and needs of adolescents. A greater enjoyment in singing will come through the accompaniment provided by the use of social instruments such as the autoharp and rhythm instruments which are found in the percussion section of bands and orchestras," she concluded.

From here Dr. Andrews is going to Hagerstown to conduct a similar workshop in Washington County the rest of the week.

The workshop consultant yesterday conducted three demonstrations for elementary school resource music teachers and high school vocal music teachers. In each demonstration she showed various methods of conducting music classes for seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

Attending with the teachers were Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster, Assistant Superintendent Richard T. Rizer, and Raymond O. McCullough, principal of Allegany High School, where the workshop was conducted.

On Monday, Dr. Andrews and W. Valgene Routch, supervisor of music education, visited four county schools to give her an idea of the type of program offered here. They saw classes at Valley High School, Lonaconing; Beall High School, Frostburg; Mt. Savage High School, and at Allegany High School.

The Weather

Maximum temperature climbed a few more degrees yesterday for an official reading of 38 degrees. The Weather Bureau said high today would be between 38 and 44, while skies will have some cloudiness. Low yesterday was 30, and at 7:30 p. m. mercury stood at 33 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 67 per cent. In the last two days Cumberland has had .3 inches of snow or a melted precipitation of 0.02 inches. For the first nine days of February melted precipitation totaled only 0.04 inches. Normal for the month is 2.34 inches of moisture.

Resignation Of Clerkship Disturbs GOP

Group Undecided On New Recommendation

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Washington County Republican Central Committee is "up in the air" over the resignation of J. R. R. Black, whose appointment as clerk of court here caused a hassle among judges of the district.

Black's appointment was called "political" by Judge Joseph D. Mish, Democrat, who wanted to appoint an experienced deputy to the job. The deputy clerks here are Democrats.

The Republican judges, Morgan C. Harris and George Henderson, insisted on naming Black. One of them came to Hagerstown and swore him in when Judge Mish refused to do so.

Black resigned yesterday because of "ill health."

John O. Dunn, acting chairman of the county's Republican Central Committee, said the resignation had the group "up in the air."

He said committee members would have to talk to Judges Harris and Henderson before deciding whether or not to recommend someone else for the clerkship.

Black has also resigned from the County Liquor Board. Dunn said the committee probably would act next week in recommending a successor to that post.

Meanwhile, Merlin Snyder, deputy clerk of circuit court, is acting clerk. Snyder is a Democrat.

10 Gallon Club Members To Aid Red Cross Drive

Volunteer Workers To Meet Tonight

Ten members of the Gallon Club have volunteered their services as an "advance guard" to help solicit funds in the annual campaign in Allegany County for the American Red Cross.

Gallon Club personnel are those who have donated more than a gallon of their blood to the Red Cross blood bank, and headed by chairman Thomas J. Cumiskey Jr., assistant postmaster, the group has agreed to help raise Allegany County's quota of $35,000 in the national drive for funds. The nation's goal is set at $85,000,000.

Full Strength

These 10 men are part of a group of over 500 volunteer workers who will assist in the local campaign for Red Cross money. They are Charles Nuzum, E. J. Rice, Boston Sherwood, Arthur Fuller, Aden Everstine, Rudolph Kompanek, Raymond Dorn, Herbert Heineman, Robert Snowden and Cumiskey.

Cumiskey said the group feels it has "a solemn responsibility to the American people to keep their Red Cross up to full strength, especially in its local blood collection program." He added, "In addition to our personal contributions we will do all we can to enhance the Red Cross by maintaining public support and waging a constant campaign of factual information."

The Gallon Club now has a membership of 41 persons.

Meeting Scheduled Tonight

The first meeting of all volunteer workers in the fund drive in Allegany County will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the courtroom on the second floor of the Post Office building. Over 500 men and women are expected to attend.

The Red Cross work program will be detailed by James Foley, assistant manager of the Eastern Area National Red Cross, Alexandria, Va. Other speakers will include Walter Haschert, local manager of the C&P Telephone Company, general chairman of the county fund drive, and Mrs. Harry Beneman, chapter chairman of the Allegany County Red Cross.

On March 1 the local chapter will begin its drive to meet the goal set by the national organization.

Members of the Canteen Division will serve doughnuts and coffee to the workers at tonight's meeting.

Amcelle Plant Wins Coveted Safety Award

The Cumberland plant of Celanese Corporation of America captured the coveted 1953 Harold Blancke Safety Award for outstanding safety performance last year, it was announced yesterday by the president of the corporation and donor of the award.

Amcelle's victory over all other Celanese plants was gained with a safety record of less than one lost-time accident for each million man-hours worked. The significance of this performance is indicated by the fact that in 1952 the national average for all American industry was 8.4 accidents per million man-hours worked.

The actual accident frequency rate of the Cumberland plant was 0.81 per million man-hours worked, which represented a 77 per cent improvement over the preceding year's rate of 3.53. On two separate occasions during the year the plant achieved a record of operating 2,000,000 continuous man-hours without a lost-time accident.

Amcelle's award-winning performance in the inter-plant competition will be recognized at appropriate ceremonies at a later date.

The Harold Blancke Safety Award was established in 1952 to bring about the best possible operating conditions and an alert attitude toward the dangers of accidents and fires. It was won for the first time by the Bishop, Texas, plant.

In addition to the Blancke Award, Amcelle has won a Presidential Certificate for top safety performance in the Textile Division.

Seven of the 18 participating plants, laboratories and facilities, by not having a single lost-time accident, were granted certificates of commendation. They were the Hopewell, Va., dyeing and finishing plant; the Burlington, N. C., spun yarn plant; the Pampa, Texas, chemical plant; the Summit, N. J., and Clarkwood, Texas, research laboratories; the Central Trucking facilities at Cumberland, and the New York Warehouse.

Senator Beall Seen On Television Show

United States Senator J. Glenn Beall of Frostburg last night was seen on the television screens of area residents who were watching the John Cameron Swayze news program carried in the area by Station WJAC in Johnstown, Pa.

Senator Beall appeared briefly in a filmed portion of the show as he explained what progress had been made in the investigation of the high price of coffee by a Senate Banking subcommittee of which he is chairman.

Set Safety Mark At Amcelle

Standing at extreme right is Magnus W. Work, safety engineer, while next to him is R. Finley Thompson, plant manager. The plant cut its number of accidents per million man-hours by 77 per cent during 1953.

On cross-examination by Attorney Edwin M. Horchler, who with Attorney George R. Hughes Jr., represented Lepl , the young wife admitted that she had previously told Horchler in his office that her husband was at home on North Centre Street on the night of November 25.

Agreement Reached

Mrs. Lepley explained that this earlier story had been agreed upon after her husband's arrest November 30. This agreement was reached, she added, at a conference in the Lepley home with Mrs. Cindie Lepley, the defendant's mother, his sister, Mrs. Margaret Herpich of Baltimore, and Mrs. Herpich's son by a previous marriage, Richard Welch. Mrs. Lepley, Mrs. Herpich and Welch all testified yesterday that the accused was at home the night of November 25 when the offense allegedly occurred.

Lepley then took the stand to refute most of the statements made by his estranged wife. He explained that he had been a navigator aboard a tuna clipper which operated out of San Pedro, Calif., and had returned for a visit last September. He said that he and his wife were married in Garrett County, after having obtained a license in Oakland. He asserted that he falsely gave his wife's age as 20 then because she told him that was her age.

The defendant testified that he had gone hunting for pheasants on the afternoon of November 25 with Welch, his nephew, but they returned about 6 o'clock. He contradicted his wife's testimony by saying that he had used a single-barreled gun and did 't own a double-barreled weapon. He further asserted that he and his wife were home and in bed at the time Ryan allegedly was assaulted. He asserted that after his arrest his wife visited him every day and assured him that she knew he was innocent.

Earlier in the trial Ryan had testified about a threat that he said was made against him near his Ellerslie home. He said he did not previously know Lepley.

"I'm Gene Lepley," Ryan said his assailant told him. "I have shot a man for less than that." Later when confronted by Lepley in the State's Attorney's office, Ryan

Webster Offers Explanation Of Report System

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster said yesterday that he would not like to comment upon a proposed change in school report grading system which is now being advocated for all of Maryland's public schools by the Anne Arundel County Delegation to the General Assembly, now in session.

As reported by the Associated Press, all Maryland public schools would have to adopt a five-symbol grading system if the Anne Arundel County proposal is adopted. The delegates from that county report that school children in that Annapolis area get only two ratings, either "S" for "satisfactory," or "N" for "needs improvement."

Webster did emphasize that Allegany County now has a more complete grading system than that now in effect in Anne Arundel County. Children from the second through the sixth grades may get any of four different ratings on their subjects. They are "highly satisfactory," "satisfactory," "unsatisfactory," and "progressing, but has the ability to do better."

Pupils in the elementary grades also are rated on their social habits, and parents are advised to check a certain part of the report if they wish to have a conference with the teacher or principal.

On the junior and senior high school level, county pupils now have the five-symbol grading system. They may get A, B, C, D or E in their subjects.

Red Shield

These lads, the vanguard of the Red Shield Boys Club, are seen playing and working in their new clubroom in the Salvation Army Citadel. Enjoying games of checkers and "cootie" are Roger Hutzell, Jimmie Johnson, Woodrow Johnson, Bobby Cannon, George Capel, Michael Brewer, Charles Cannon and Tommy Lueck. Below, Aggie Catlett is operating a jigsaw under the direction of Russell Rice, volunteer instructor, and Lt. James Pappas, director, as Wayne Brewer and Bernard Michael look on. One of the objectives of the shop will be to make and repair toys for gifts during the Christmas season. The clubroom, located in the newly-remodeled basement of the Citadel, is divided into recreation and workshop areas.

Salvation Army To Sponsor Red Shield Club For Boys

By C. WESLEY BLACKBURN
News Staff Writer

Cumberland's newest youth organization, the Red Shield Boys Club, opened last night at the Salvation Army Citadel.

Sponsored by the Cumberland Salvation Army Corps, the club will be open to all boys of the community between the ages of six and 18.

Lt. James Pappas, who came here last week to serve as assistant at the Citadel, will be sponsor of the club which meets in the remodeled basement of the North Mechanic Street building.

Some 35 youths registered at last nigt's meeting, and Capt. Daniel K. Biggs, commander of the local corps, said membership is expected to hit 100 before the end of the month.

During the winter, the club rooms will be open Monday through Friday from 4 to 5 p. m. and on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p. m. All-day schedules may be adopted during the summer months.

Although the full program is yet to be worked out, present plans call for dividing the members into groups according to ages, and providing a balanced program of recreational and handicraft activities for each group.

The basement of the Citadel has been divided into a recreation room and a shop room.

For recreation, ping pong tables and equipment for games, including checkers and Chinese checkers, have been provided. A library, to be stocked with magazines and books for youths, has been placed at one end of the room.

The woodworking shop is already equipped with many of the power tools needed, but two more jigsaws and hand tools must be secured.

The youths will make small wooden articles, such as whatnots, bookends and novelties. They will also repair and make toys which will be used during the Salvation Army's Christmas program.

Typical of the spirit of the club are the mottos at each end of the play room:

"Through these doors pass the future citizens of Cumberland," and "No man ever stands as straight as when he stoops to help a boy."

Several adults who attended the meeting gave assurance that adult help will be available.

Daniel Y. Browne, chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board, spent much of the time playing with the lads, and Robert W. Young, a member of the board, turned up to greet the boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rice, Bedford Road, were among the guests. Rice, a B&O employe who makes a hobby of woodworking, will serve as one of the volunteer instructors in the woodworking shop.

Police Alert For Phony Ad Salesmen

Maryland State Police are receiving reports that a number of persons are representing themselves as members of the department in an effort to secure advertising for police and other magazines, as well as contributions or other aid for an individual of the department.

Col. Elmer Munshower, superintendent of the State Police at Pikesville, ordered a directive be sent to all barracks and headquarters in order that such persons be apprehended.

In a teletype message received at LaVale sub-station last night, Col. Munshower said that numerous such incidents have been reported to the department.

The purpose of the information sent throughout the state is to alert and advise citizens that the department does not condone the selling of advertisements or the collecting of contributions and that persons doing so are misrepresenting themselves when they claim to be members of the department.

In the event citizens are approached by such persons, they are advised to get all information possible and then to notify the nearest barracks or headquarters.

Nurses To Get Instruction On Pneolator

Tomorrow morning a group of nurses of Memorial Hospital will be given a demonstration on artificial respiration by city firemen.

Virgil A. Parker, fire chief, yesterady said the class will be conducted in the Nurses' Classroom from 10 to 11 a. m. with the assistance of Mrs. Leo E. P. Law, R. N.

Parker said the nurses will be shown the use of the pneolator of the City Police and Fire departments.

The back-pressure-arm-lift method of artificial respiration also will be demonstrated. Similar classes have been held in the past and Parker noted that all members of the department are qualified in the new method.

On December 3, 1951, this new method was adopted by various groups including the American Red Cross and the American Medical Association. The technique was first introduced by a Dane, Holger Nielson, in 1931. It found acceptance only recently, however.

Research has demonstrated that the new method produces more adequate ventilation than the Schafer method, which has been used for over 45 years as the standard technique of artificial respiration.

Beall Is Speaker

U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall will be one of the principal speakers tonight at the Lincoln Day dinner in Masonic Temple, Hagerstown.

Beall St. Home Is Damaged In Two-Alarm Fire

Flames Confined To Upstairs Bedroom

Considerable damage was caused yesterday afternoon in the upstairs front bedroom of the residence of George R. Clise, 222 Beall Street, when a two-alarm fire burned a mattress, bedclothes and clothing in the room.

Thick smoke filled the upstairs of the two-story frame house as firemen from West Side Fire Station were called to the scene at 1:39 p. m. when Box 142 at the corner of Beall and Lee streets was pulled. Three minutes later Central firemen were called.

The blaze was confined to a corner of the bedroom. The smouldering mattress and bed clothes were thrown from the house by the firemen, who used all-purpose masks in fighting the flames.

Some water damage was caused in the blaze which firemen believe was started by a cigaret. Firemen said there were no defective wires in the immediate vicinity of the blaze.

Clothes in a nearby press were burned and the fire scorched the side of the wall. Firemen probed into the ceiling to see if the flames had spread toward the roof.

Dick Dismisses Name-Calling Cases

Two cases, resulting from charges filed following an alleged name-calling incident last Wednesday at the National Jet Company where employes are on strike, were dismissed yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on motions by the attorneys.

The cases came to Trial Magistrate Court after Mrs. Georgia M. Peer, RD 1, Ridgeley, charged that Raymond Bartlett, 147 Hanover Street, had used loud and profane language against her. Bartlett later filed a similar charge against Mrs. Peer.

City Air Raid Siren Test Is Set Saturday

Check Of Relay System Is Planned

A 90-second test of this city's disaster warning system is scheduled Saturday at noon, according to Arthur B. Gibson, Civil Defense coordinator.

The simultaneous blasts from the sirens, scheduled exactly at noon, will be an operational test of relays which have been installed by telephone company workers so the entire system can be activated from the control board at Central Fire Station.

The sirens have been tested twice —the first time during "Operation Checkup" the state-wide alert held September 22, and again on December 9.

In both cases, the sirens worked satisfactorily, but had to be set off individually.

Since then, relays have been installed on each siren and connected with the central control board, so all will blast when one button is pressed at the fire station.

Officials believe that the total coverage of the sirens will be more effective when all are operated at the same time.

Generally satisfactory coverage was reported in former tests, but there were some indications of "dead spots."

Gibson said that Civil Defense officers may report on the results of the tests, although it is not necessary, since the test will actually be an equipment check.

Four sirens have been installed by Civil Defense officials to give the city warning of an air raid or other major disaster.

Big 10-horsepower sirens are located at South End Fire Station and opposite SS. Peter and Paul School. One-horsepower devices have been placed at Ridgedale Avenue and at Camden Avenue.

Meyer To Play Major Role In Civic Theatre Comedy

Ed Meyer will play the part of a member of a famous Hollywood playwriting team in "Boy Meets Girl" which will be presented Friday at 8:15 p. m. in Allegany High School Auditorium by the Recreation Department's Civic Theatre.

Meyer came to Cumberland in 1950 as an announcer for WDYK, and after a year spent with a Philadelphia radio station returned here to become program director of the local station.

He married a Cumberland girl, Betty Lou Vogel, who is a stage star in her own right and is a member of the Civic Theatre.

Following his graduation from Passaic, N. J., High School, he served three years with the Army Signal Corps—two of them in the South Pacific.

He then entered the University of Missouri, where he received a bachelor's degree in journalism. While in college, he was a member of the Missouri Dramatic Workshop, the Stevens College Playhouse and the Purple Mask, an honorary dramatic society.

Meyer starred in the Civic Theatre's first production, "Ring Around Elizabeth."

Music Workshop Leader Summarizes Her Findings

Dr. Frances Andrews, associate professor in music at Pennsylvania State University, yesterday afternoon wound up her two-day workshop on the Allegany County Junior High School Music Program by summarizing some of her findings.

"Since the area of junior high school music is exploratory in nature, music educators believe that in singing specific help and guidance be given the use of a changing voice of the junior high school student," Dr. Andrews observed.

"The general music class of junior high school is not a vocal class but one in which there are opportunities for student singing, playing of instruments, dancing and listening to music as most of the boys and girls will be consumers of music in adult life.

"It is of prime importance that the musical experience be varied so as to meet the individual differences and needs of adolescents. A greater enjoyment in singing will come through the accompaniment provided by the use of social instruments such as the autoharp and rhythm instruments which are found in the percussion section of bands and orchestras," she concluded.

From here Dr. Andrews is going to Hagerstown to conduct a similar workshop in Washington County the rest of the week.

The workshop consultant yesterday conducted three demonstrations for elementary school resource music teachers and high school vocal music teachers. In each demonstration she showed various methods of conducting music classes for seventh, eighth and ninth graders.

Attending with the teachers were Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster, Assistant Superintendent Richard T. Rizer, and Raymond O. McCullough, principal of Allegany High School, where the workshop was conducted.

On Monday, Dr. Andrews and W. Valgene Routch, supervisor of music education, visited four county schools to give her an idea of the type of program offered here. They saw classes at Valley High School, Lonaconing; Beall High School, Frostburg; Mt. Savage High School, and at Allegany High School.

Low yesterday was 30, and at 7:30 p. m. mercury stood at 33 degrees. Humidity at 6 p. m. was 67 per cent. In the last two days Cumberland has had .3 inches of snow or a melted precipitation of 0.02 inches. For the first nine days of February melted precipitation totaled only 0.04 inches. Normal for the month is 2.34 inches of moisture.

Resignation Of Clerkship Disturbs GOP

Group Undecided On New Recommendation

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Washington County Republican Central Committee is "up in the air" over the resignation of J. R. R. Black, whose appointment as clerk of court here caused a hassle among judges of the district.

Black's appointment was called "political" by Judge Joseph D. Mish, Democrat, who wanted to appoint an experienced deputy to the job. The deputy clerks here are Democrats.

The Republican judges, Morgan C. Harris and George Henderson, insisted on naming Black. One of them came to Hagerstown and swore him in when Judge Mish refused to do so.

Black resigned yesterday because of "ill health."

John O. Dunn, acting chairman of the county's Republican Central Committee, said the resignation had the group "up in the air."

He said committee members would have to talk to Judges Harris and Henderson before deciding whether or not to recommend someone else for the clerkship.

Black has also resigned from the County Liquor Board. Dunn said the committee probably would act next week in recommending a successor to that post.

Meanwhile, Merlin Snyder, deputy clerk of circuit court, is acting clerk. Snyder is a Democrat.

Volunteer Workers To Meet Tonight

Ten members of the Gallon Club have volunteered their services as an "advance guard" to help solicit funds in the annual campaign in Allegany County for the American Red Cross.

Gallon Club personnel are those who have donated more than a gallon of their blood to the Red Cross blood bank, and headed by chairman Thomas J. Cumiskey Jr., assistant postmaster, the group has agreed to help raise Allegany County's quota of $35,000 in the national drive for funds. The nation's goal is set at $85,000,000.

Full Strength

These 10 men are part of a group of over 500 volunteer workers who will assist in the local campaign for Red Cross money. They are Charles Nuzum, E. J. Rice, Boston Sherwood, Arthur Fuller, Aden Everstine, Rudolph Kompanek, Raymond Dorn, Herbert Heineman, Robert Snowden and Cumiskey.

Cumiskey said the group feels it has "a solemn responsibility to the American people to keep their Red Cross up to full strength, especially in its local blood collection program." He added, "In addition to our personal contributions we will do all we can to enhance the Red Cross by maintaining public support and waging a constant campaign of factual information."

The Gallon Club now has a membership of 41 persons.

Meeting Scheduled Tonight

The first meeting of all volunteer workers in the fund drive in Allegany County will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the courtroom on the second floor of the Post Office building. Over 500 men and women are expected to attend.

The Red Cross work program will be detailed by James Foley, assistant manager of the Eastern Area National Red Cross, Alexandria, Va. Other speakers will include Walter Haschert, local manager of the C&P Telephone Company, general chairman of the county fund drive, and Mrs. Harry Beneman, chapter chairman of the Allegany County Red Cross.

On March 1 the local chapter will begin its drive to meet the goal set by the national organization.

The Cumberland plant of Celanese Corporation of America captured the coveted 1953 Harold Blancke Safety Award for outstanding safety performance last year, it was announced yesterday by the president of the corporation and donor of the award.

Amcelle's victory over all other Celanese plants was gained with a safety record of less than one lost-time accident for each million man-hours worked. The significance of this performance is indicated by the fact that in 1952 the national average for all American industry was 8.4 accidents per million man-hours worked.

The actual accident frequency rate of the Cumberland plant was 0.81 per million man-hours worked, which represented a 77 per cent improvement over the preceding year's rate of 3.53. On two separate occasions during the year the plant achieved a record of operating 2,000,000 continuous man-hours without a lost-time accident.

Amcelle's award-winning performance in the inter-plant competition will be recognized at appropriate ceremonies at a later date.

The Harold Blancke Safety Award was established in 1952 to bring about the best possible operating conditions and an alert attitude toward the dangers of accidents and fires. It was won for the first time by the Bishop, Texas, plant.

In addition to the Blancke Award, Amcelle has won a Presidential Certificate for top safety performance in the Textile Division.

Seven of the 18 participating plants, laboratories and facilities, by not having a single lost-time accident, were granted certificates of commendation. They were the Hopewell, Va., dyeing and finishing plant; the Burlington, N. C., spun yarn plant; the Pampa, Texas, chemical plant; the Summit, N. J., and Clarkwood, Texas, research laboratories; the Central Trucking facilities at Cumberland, and the New York Warehouse.
